CHECK FOR $10,000 IS SENT

To Washerwoman, Mother of Thirteen Children, by J. P. Morgan.

New York, Dec. 25.—A story which men of the financial district are telling at their Christmas dinners, had J. P. Morgan, a dentist and a washerwoman as its principals. Mr. Morgan was in a dentist's chair, it was related, suffering considerable pain for the relief of which the dentist was telling the financier how the case of his wife's washerwoman was one of the worst instances of destitution he ever knew. "Her husband died and left her 13 children, only five of them being large enough to work," he said, and while keeping on with his dental work he continued the hard-luck narrative in detail.

Mr. Morgan left after the operation without comment, but the next day the dentist received a letter which is quoted as follows:

"Dear Doctor: You hurt me like the devil yesterday, but your vivid story about the widow and her 13 children helped some. Inclosed find my check for $10,000; turn over to the washerwoman, and tell her for me that she was a fool to ever have so many children.

Boys' Corn Clubs.

Warren county may well feel proud of her champion boy corn grower with his 118 buahels to the acre record. The "dads" of old Warren will have to do some great going to keep pace with the youngesters on the farming line.—Bowling Green Times-Journal.

The Warren county boys have taught their dads a thing or two about corn growing. In fact the lesson was so strikingly illustrated the fiscal court appropriated the money necessary to secure a farm demonstrator to help the boys teach dad how to make farming profitable.—Owensboro Inquirer.

George Bickers won first prize in the Owen county corn growing contest conducted by the State Department of Agriculture, his yield being thirty-two barrels and three bushels or 163 bushels. The corn was grown on the farm of J. W. Gayle. This is an extraordinary yield and stands a good show to win the State prize.—Owenton News-Herald.

A most remarkable corn production per acre is reported by Capt. J. W. Riley, of Christian county. By careful cultivation one acre of ground on his farm tilled by his son as a member of the Boys' Corn Club, produced 125½ bushels. This was sold at $2 a bushel shelled, for seed, and allowing for wastage, has brought $250. The land on which the corn was raised is valued at $65 an acre.—Harrodsburg Herald.

They have shown the capabilities of the soil of Daviess county. They have shown what can be done when determination is supplemented by energy. They have shown that the soil is rich and its cultivation profitable. They have shown generously rivalry. They have set the pace for the corn growing prizes of next year. They have shown that there is money in the soil, money in corn, money in the farm, and health and vigor and strong young manhood as well. —Owensboro Messenger.

The boys' corn clubs are doing a great deal of good along the lines of farming and the associated industries. In one county alone, Meade, the corn production this year has increased 10 per cent. over the previous yield. What has been done in Meade can be done in Lawrence. An increase of five per cent. in this county would mean many thousands of dollars to the raisers. And the good results to the boys of the clubs is by no means a quantity to be neglected. The boys get new and useful ideas, they have something to stimulate them, something to look forward to, a laudable ambition to be gratified. The industrious, intelligent honest boy, with a noble aim in life, is the hope of the land. Let us do all we can to encourage and develop them.—Louisa News.

Mr. Jas. Scobee suffered a very bad loss Wednesday evening. His large tobacco barn on his farm on the Mt. Sterling pike, burned to the ground with 2,500 pounds of tobacco, 140 barrels of corn and a large number of farming implements. The fire is unknown.—Winchester Democrat

FALSE IDEAS OF PERFECTION

Absurd Development of Muscle Has Little Part in Production of Perfect Athlete.

A recent portrait of a lumpy athlete, who invites others, and not without success, to [illegible] system of physical development, shows that the false idea of physical perfection which obtained for so many years, and which demanded huge and knobby muscles of its disciples, has not yet quite died out. This type of manly perfection, once useful perhaps to hang armor upon, was thought to possess the sanction of the golden age of artistry when the lubberly Farnese Hercules came to light, to be hailed as a supreme product of the Greeks. We know it now for an example of decadent Greek taste, fit companion of the absurd and sensational Laocoon. It is naught but a type of the strong man of vaudeville with his clumsy masses of beef and his brain of a spoiled child, fit only to push his awkward dumb bells into the air, an enviable sum of achievement truly after a lifetime of work by a civilized human being. No less than strength, are speed and grace demanded of the ideal athletes, likewise a face of refinement and intelligence to tell of a brain within to comprehend art, music and literature, and the ability to plan victories either of peace or war. Look upon the Apollo Belvidere, which embodies the true dreams of health and mental and physical efficiency, with its face of exquisite beauty above a form whose lines are tranquil poetry, yet shadow forth their readiness to start into sinewy vigor when the call for action comes. Even the Indian, the perfect savage, never resembled the Farnese monstrosity, the emulators of which find their place in modern life so much better filled by the derrick.—New York Medical Record.

TACT BETTER THAN COMMAND

Good Idea to Let "Less Criticism and More Comradeship" Be Your Guiding Motto.

"Less criticism and more comradeship," would be a helpful maxim for all homes.

It is easy enough to be pleasant to the casual acquaintance, but the great difficulty lies in being decent to those who are devoted to us—to those who are ever willing to forgive our shortcomings. There is no duty above treating your friends courteously and trying to illuminate the general monotony of the lives of those you love.

In home life tact will succeed often where command will fail. Suggestions will go farther than argument. Direction is so much better than dictation. Criticism of loved ones is a vice that takes possession of one like a stimulant, or a drug, once it is encouraged. It may begin in our so-called high moral standard and hatred of sin. But once it becomes a habit, it is indulged in for the satisfaction it gives.

An Eden can be ruined by constant fault-finding, selfishness, and withholding the words of praise. A paradise can be created by small kindnesses and by thinking sweet and helpful thoughts of those about you.

The next time you feel like criticising a loved one, force yourself to say something complimentary to him instead.

Try it and see if you won't be happier.

New Directory Wanted.

One directory that New York needs but has not got is the names and addresses of former celebrities who are now running rooming and boarding houses.

Such a volume would be highly appreciated by our nomadic population. Many a singer, actress, or writer who formerly held a place in the public eye has now settled down to the prosaic occupation of housing and feeding a small portion of that same public.

Their houses are a magnet for young persons with the artistic temperament. One woman who once enjoyed a fair reputation as a violinist has five furnished apartments which she sublets, room by room, to aspirants for dramatic, operatic, and literary honors. Reflected glory rather than physical comfort is the portion of most of these satellites, but the privilege of hobnobbing with yesterday's greatness compensates for material discomfort.—New York Times.

Cantines Maternelles.

There are five dining-rooms in Paris where from fifty to eighty nursing mothers daily receive free meals. Cantines Maternelles these restaurants were called when they were started eight years ago by Mme. Henry Coullet of Paris. At first the only passport needed was the possession of a baby, but owing to the development of a confusing habit of borrowing babies so as to procure a meal, the rule was altered, and the provision of free meals is now dependent upon regular attendance at an adjoining baby clinic.

The Otter a Wanderer.

Of all the beasts in the world, the otter, that fierce outlaw, is the greatest wanderer. It is as if he were afflicted with a curse that forbids him to be still, that forces him ever to push on—on—on! Rest, as rest, he knows not. Three days will see the end of his longest inaction, and the amount of miles he covers in a fortnight would amaze some folks.—Outing.

AUTOGRAPH TELLS A TALE

Character of the Kaiser Revealed to Expert by Close Analysis of His Signature.

There is always a certain amount of interest attached to the deductions drawn by graphologists [illegible] natures of eminent men. Here, for example, is an illuminating description of the kaiser's autograph, supplied by an eminent Berlin graphologist:

"To begin with, there is a crochet, a sign of pertinacity, followed by a vertical dash, showing audacity, energy, regardless of any obstacle. Then there is an acute angle, a sign of firmness and aggressiveness. The first stroke of the 'W' indicates a feeling of superiority over the rest of the universe. The termination of the imperial 'W' suggests that the sovereign sometimes finds himself struggling with the multitude of his thoughts, or the power of his instincts.

"The other letters forming the signature show similar characteristics," the graphologist proceeds. "The final 'm' is indicative of great diplomacy, which to the analyist suggests subtlety. The letter also suggests the impossibility of the suppression of the 'ego.' The flourish which terminates the imperial autograph shows a suppleness of spirit, a desire to be loved, also self-esteem.

"The two terminating points indicate defiance and generally the characteristics are those of an extraordinary imagination."

THIEF NOT ALTOGETHER BAD

Proved He Had at Least Some Consideration for Victim He Had Wronged.

In the mail of a local sporting goods dealer, recently, was a letter which indicated that the writer was considerate, even though he failed to back up his consideration with square dealing in its entirety, relates the Indianapolis News. The letter bore a Peoria (Ill.) postmark and read in substance as follows:

"Peoria, Ill. Gentlemen—I am inclosing you a pawn check for $4.50 on the —— loan office in your city. The check is for an Arrow bicycle, which I know you sell. It was stolen in Indianapolis. By referring to your records and comparing the number on the wheel with your books you will be able to find the owner. No doubt he will be willing to present inclosed check with $4.50 in exchange for his wheel, I am, yours truly."

The writer neglected to sign his name, but the store was able to find the owner and the wheel was redeemed.

Benefits of Royal Academy.

A membership of the Royal academy of London carries with it numerous advantages. In a word the academy is a benefit society founded on a very generous scale. The pension fund of Burlington house is a splendid one. Any Royal Academician who falls upon hard times or who is prevented by ill health from following his profession may claim a pension, and the pension sometimes runs into as much as $2,000 a year.

The Royal Academician who dies in straitened circumstances and leaves his widow and children insufficiently provided for is not thought any the less of for his ill fortune. The Royal academy shows its sympathy by generously allowing those who were dependent on him a liberal sum for their maintenance. And the wife and the children of a deceased Royal Academician receive many kindnesses and acts of charity from the hands of the living Royal Academicians, which are quite distinct from those given by this academy.—National Magazine.

Source of the Brahmaputra.

For 40 years the birthplace of the great Brahmaputra river of India was thought to be among the high valleys of the eastern Himalayas or on the Plateau of Tibet north of those mountains. The theory could not be proved, for hostile Abors in the Himalayan valleys killed the explorers or barred their way when they sought to solve the mystery.

It was believed 20 years ago that the Sangpo river, flowing far eastward through southern Tibet, was the upper part of the Brahmaputra. Marked logs set afloat in the Sangpo were watched for in the Brahmaputra, but were never found. At last, however, the explorers sent out with the troops who have punished the Abbors for their massacre of Williamson and his 200 carriers have shown that the two rivers are identical. The Brahmaputra rises far west near the headwaters of the Indus, among the mountains bordering southern Tibet.

Pretty and Novel Device.

A girl who has passed part of her life in Japan invited 16 friends to dinner recently, and in the center of the table was a large bird made of forget-me-nots. That the bird covered a phonograph was not known until the finger bowl stage of the banquet. In the water were floating rose petals, and they gradually unfolded into a scroll, on which was written: "Get my secret from the bird." Curiosity was at high pitch when the young hostess turned the key and the bird softly sang "Marie and Philip want me to tell you that they are engaged and invite you all to the wedding." Congratulations then were in order, but the secret was kept so well until the bird talked that no one suspected more than a casual friendship existed between the hostess and her admirer.—New York Press.

GRUMBLER ALWAYS WITH US

Discontented Man Accomplishes Some Good, With Much Harm, Through His Eternal Wails.

We are all natural-born grumblers. From childhood to the grave we look for the few things that are wrong, forget the many that are right. When we are strong and healthy we offer no prayer of thanksgiving. But let us have an ache or a pain, a cut finger or a sore thumb and hear the wails of distress.

We expect to be healthy, happy and well. We feel that that is an inheritance to which we are entitled. So we think nothing of it. But how we magnify our little troubles!

We forget that if we inherit health so we may also have an inheritance of suffering. If we have days of sunshine we must also have days of storm. If we expect to enjoy happiness we must also anticipate hours of pain. If we have joys we must also have sorrows.

We never voice contentment. We always proclaim our discontent. Hear the cries of unrest by those who magnify their grievances against the present order of things. This has much to do with the clamor in favor of upsetting our established form of government and trying experiments, costly, unnecessary and in many instances foolish.

The grumblers are responsible for the unreason, discontent and unbelief that so widely prevail. It has been so always from ancient biblical times to this so-called "new century of progress."—Leslie's.

ANCIENT CRIME UNPAID FOR Murder 700 Years Ago Still Causes Annual Tribute to Be Paid by the Community.

Seven hundred years ago some shepherds of the Valley of Roncal, in Navarra, were murdered by shepherds of the Valley of Bareton, in Bearn, the crime taking place on the high pasture lands of Aries, in the Pyrenees.

It would have been difficult to bring the murderers individually to justice, and the Spaniards were preparing to make war upon the valley from which the French murderers had come, when the French village proposed that peace be maintained at the price of a yearly tax or tribute, to endure for all time, and this proposition was accepted without demur.

The payment of this blood tax—originally three white mares, but later three cows of a particular breed and color—has been made ever since, the custom—it is nothing more—having survived even the great wars in which both France and Spain have engaged, and the storm of the French revolution.

Yearly the representative men of the two valleys meet on the frontier, at a certain stone, remote from any town, and go through the ceremony of presenting and receiving the cattle.

The order of procedure, which is elaborate and impressive, is fixed by a document bearing the date 1375, though the tax was paid a hundred years prior to that time.

Story of Clemenceau.

It is said that Monsieur Clemenceau who bears the pleasant sobriquet of "the tiger," is about to connect himself with a new journal to appear in the near future. This return to the limelight from which he had not withdrawn to any distance, gives occasion for some new stories concerning him. One of these is that a young man applied to him for a place. "Do you know anything about foreign affairs?" asked the tiger. "Yes, monsieur," was the answer to which he modestly added, "a little." Clemenceau appeared greatly astonished. "Ah, truly! Do you know what is the question of the Orient, the Austro-Hungarian problem, and pan-Slavic politics?" "Yes, monsieur." Then the tiger turned on him. "This is too wearisome. It would amuse me much more if you knew nothing at all."

Wisdom Worth Heeding.

What is true of men can be true of women. The realm of achievement is sexless. The brain is not at its best until you are forty or past. A bishop in a play cried: "Oh, that we were born old and could die young!" You are fulfilling in business the bishop's wish. He longed to start the race with experience. That is what you can do, may do, must do. Start the real race. Count fourteen years as the first half, as the learning time, as the warming up time. Begin again. Get your second wind. No man is whipped until he takes the count. No woman has failed until she tells her soul she will no longer try. Work and earn an old lady's home that shall not be the old ladies' home.—Exchange.

Just the Place for Her.

He bustled into his home and began vigorously:

"Now, wife, I want you to go out on a nice farm and rest for the summer. I have located a nice farm out in Elizabeth township, not too far from Pittsburg for me to run out."

"How can I go anywhere for the summer?" demanded his wife. "I have no clothes."

"That's just the point. You can wear old clothes on this farm. Everybody wears old clothes. Old clothes are the thing."

"Old clothes are the thing, eh? Then for once in my life I can make a splurge. If old clothes are the caper, I'll take along seven trunks of oldest clothes in Pennsylvania."—Pittsburg Post.

FRAIL, SICKLY CHILD

Restored to Health by Vinol—Letter to Mothers.

Anxious mothers often wonder why their children are so pale, thin and nervous and have so little appetite. For the benefit of such mothers in this vicinity we publish the following letter.

J. Edmund Miller, New Haven, Conn., says: "My little daughter, ever since her birth, had been frail and sickly, and was a constant source of worriment. Several months ago we commenced to give her Vinol. I immediately noted an improvement in her health and appearance. I gave her three bottles of Vinol, and from the good it has done her I can truly say it will do all you claim."

This child's recovery was due to the combined action of the medicinal elements extracted from cods' livers,—combined with the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron, which are contained in Vinol.

Vinol will build up and strengthen delicate children, old people and the weak, run-down and debilitated. We return the money in every case where it fails.

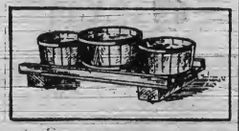
SORE SHOULDERS AND NECKS

Trouble Found in Many Horses Due Ordinarily to Improper Fitting Collars and Hames.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Sore shoulders and necks in horses are, as a rule, due to an improper fit in collar orhames. Occasionally uneven surface or hard lumpy areas in the filling may be the cause, or improper care of the horse in early spring before the skin and underlying tissues have become hardened to the collar pressure.

Diseased conditions of the foot or limb may cause sore shoulders from an abnormal gait. A horse'a collar should be fitted with greater care than a pair of patent leathera on an aggregation of bunions, corns and ingrown toe nails. Why? Because the horse has no means of making his pain known to the majority of drivers, while the wearer of patent leathers can "grin and bear it," consoling himself with the thought that his understanding shows up well even if his face does wear a peculiar, puzzling expression.



The collar should be well made, with a fair amount of springiness on pressure, smooth, even surface, and adapted to the use required; as, for instance, a heavy collar for heavy draft work, while a lighter one can be used for driving horses. Let it be sufficiently long that the hand may be easily passed beneath the under surface of the neck and wide enough that the fingers can just be passed between the front border and the side of the neck.

This rule varies somewhat, of course, in the various types of horses, as some thick-necked horses expand the neck when drawing a load. These will require a slightly wider collar. Let the collar fit snugly over the entire bearing surface. Having fitted the collar, next comes the fitting of the hamee to the collar and the proper adjustment of the height of the attachment of the tug.

WATERING TANK FOR STOCK

Small Stream of Water May Be Kept Flowing by Use of Barrels as Shown.

Some animals like to splash the water after they have quenched their thirst. This will render the water unfit for use of other animals, and also causes a muddy place near the tank. I have prevented this, says a writer in the Popular Mechanics, by making the arrangement shown in the illustration. Iron-hooped barrels were used for tanks. They were sawed in the center and the half-barrels set on a board platform made of several planks. The one shown is made of three half barrels, the center one being a little larger than the other two. They were held in place on the planks with a piece of two by four inch material bolted at each end. Their inner surfaces were notched to fit the barrels. Two short pieces of pipe connect the center tank to the other two. The center tank receives the water from the source of supply. A small stream of water, keep flowing in and out all the time, keeps the water from becoming stagnant.

The earth can be kept dry about water tanks of any kind by preparing the base as shown. The overflow or leakage will drain away and prevent a mud hole. Many times ashes or dirt are thrown about a tank to absorb the moisture, which makes the leakage flow back under the tank. Constant dampness dots the wood and renders the foundation insecure.

Worth of Buck Lambs.

It is a mistake to send the buck lambs to market as they are never desirable and bring down the average of the shipment. When a buck lamb is about three months old it begins to develop coarseness and a disposition to fight.

INDIVIDUAL HOUSE FOR HOGS

Something New That Proves More Satisfactory Than Old Style "A" Shaped Building.

For 20 years the A style of individual house has been in use. We were well satisfied with them, writes John M. Jamison, in the American Swineherd, until we saw a neighbor using something that we liked better. Then we were anxious for some of the old ones to go to pieces so we could build a few of the new ones to give them a trial.

Recently we built three, and liked them so well that we shall take to pieces the balance of the old-style ones and make them go as far as they will in building the new ones.

The most satisfactory dimensions are as follows: Six feet square, two and one-half feet high at the back and five and one-half feet at front. The front always to the south. The creep door, eighteen inches wide and two feet high, cut in the east end, six inches from the southeast corner. The large door, eighteen inches wide and four and one-half feet high, cut in south side at east corner. Should be built of the best matched lumber, battened or tongued and grooved of best quality. If metal is used for roof, it should be laid over paper or felt of some kind to prevent moisture forming on the under side of the roof which keeps the floor wet.

It should be built as close as possible. The only ventilation and sunshine needed can be had at the doors. When the weather is too cold for safe farrowing, a lantern can be hung to a rafter on the high side with a short hurdle across the floors. There is no need of crawfishing to get away from an angry sow.

Shipping Breeding Pigs.

In shipping breeding pigs be sure and write or wire—better wire to be on the safe side—the buyer what train the pig is shipped on so that he will be looking for him and get him home and uncrated promptly. Pigs that are shipped become chilled when they are crated and allowed to sit around a cold station, often out on the platform for some time. Numerous losses from freezing have been reported. Some station agents have about as much intelligence as the railroad requires and this often does not take in "hog sense."

Lambs and Parasites.

The greatest loss of lambs is due to tape, stomach and lung worms, and these parasites are always most numerous in old pastures; the proper plan is to frequently shift pastures. When they are attacked there are numerous remedies, but one of the simplest and best is 2 tablespoonfuls gasoline in 4 ounces of sweet milk, used as a drench twice about three days apart. Care must be taken to avoid strangling.

Best Feed for Sheep.

Four pounds of Dwarf Essex rape sown broadcast, or three pounds drilled in, will give a crop in six or seven weeks. This is one of the best feeds for sheep.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Cleanliness adds much to the appearance of a hog.

Hogs require attention regardless of conditions, age or sex.

A hog once stunted can never be fed so economically afterwards.

Barley has practically the same feeding value as oats for work horses.

Pure bred stock fed liberally and handled right will surely make a profit.

Farming on a business basis eliminates small mules just as it displaces small horses.

It is conducive to health to feed hogs when they can have the range of the pasture field.

Bran is worth more pound for pound as a part of a ration for a work horse than alfalfa meal.

Dusty feeding places are very injurious and lack of sunshine for early pigs is detrimental.

The young pig wants to be got out into the sunshine and on to the dirt, as early in life as possible.

If pigs are well fed they will usually wean themselves at the proper time, without any trouble.

A good way to make a start with the use of cement on the farm is to build a concrete feeding floor for hogs.

The general health and condition of work horses is greatly influenced by the regularity and manner of feeding.

One of the most common mistakes is to let the colt grow up big enough to work before bothering to teach him much.

Sheep are utilizers of waste. They clean fields of weeds, utilize to great advantage any kind of pasture and fit in well with farm practice.

BOONE CO. RECORDER

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

The Recorder is authorized to announce the following candidates for nominations, subject to the action of the Democratic party at the primary election, Saturday, August 2d, 1913:

U. S. Senator:
J. C. W. BECKHAM,
Frankfort

For Assessor:
JAMES F NORTHCUTT,
Belleview Precinct
TEMP GRAVES,
Bullittsville Precinct

Democratic Opportunities.

Few of our citizens, and still fewer of the class known as politicians in this country, realize the great opportunities for brilliantly successful administration which are open to President Wilson and his party when they assume Federal power.

Conditions now are in marked contrast with those of early 1893, when Cleveland and the Democratic party entered into power with a Treasury reserve depleted and the plates for an issue of bonds already designed, if not prepared, by the Harrison Administration.

There is now no currency question to settle at once, and by such settlement to divide the party and disqualify and discredit the Administration in the very first six months of its existence.

The Democratic party now takes power united and its opposition is divided. It comes into that power with a full Treasury reserve at its command, with every branch of trade in high tide of prosperity and its leaders determined upon progressive measures, constructive and beneficial in their character, and neither unsafe through radicalism, nor destructive through lack of careful consideration.

The Democratic party is to reform, but not destroy. It is to build up in the interests of the people, not to pull down to their loss or injury. It comes into power when it will be able to claim all the benefits of the Panama Canal as results of its own administration, and it will be aided by the general prosperity and the business activities which that great enterprise will bring to our country.

It will be in position to develop the parcels post system to a scale that will cover our entire domain, from the central point to the farthest extremity, and the hundreds of thousands of persons that will be employed in that service when that system is developed and the benefits it will bestow upon the hundred millions of our population will go far to strengthen the Democratic party.

The enlargement of the work of the Department of Agriculture in nearly every one of its important branches will not only necessitate strong additions to the numbers of employees, out if the present able Secretary Wilson is succeeded by as able and energetic an official as he has proved himself to be the country will be enthusiastic over the work in that department by the Democratic Administration.

So in the Departments of the Interior, of Commerce and Labor, of the Treasury, of War and of the Navy, all are entering into an era of not only greater development, but into a period where, with able, competent and wide-awake, up-to-date officials as the heads of these departments, they can largely impress the people of the country with the efficiency of the Democratic Federal Administration.

Not one Administration since the Republican party came into existence has entered into Federal power with the advantages of position in so many important affairs at its command as will that of President Wilson, when it takes control next March. —Enquirer.

Sales were resumed this week at the numerous loose-leaf tobacco warehouses throughout the State, and good prices were the result again. The numerous places at which the growers can find sale for their tobacco is very convenient, but the question is can so many rural points of sale get enough buyers to sustain their market? The prices which tobacco is bringing are calculated to result in the growing of a bumper crop in 1913. It does not take long to prepare for a crop of tobacco under favorable conditions, and there is yet an abundance of time for the growers to make up their minds as to what they will do, and concluding to pitch a large acreage, to prepare for the work that will be necessary.

The editor of a Kansas paper says that he picked up a Winchester rifle recently and started up the street to deliver the weapon to its owner. The delinquent subscribers got it into their heads that he was on the war path, and everyone he met insisted on paying all they owed. One man wiped out a debt of ten years' standing. On returning to the office he found a load of hay, fifteen bushels of corn ten bushels of potatoes, a load of wood and a barrel of turnips.—Ex.

When our mail carriers begin to carry wash tubs, sewing machines fixtures, buckets, jugs, valises, hot water bottles and parcels of various other kind, some of them will have to get a good yoke of oxen and a farm wagon. Going up some of the mountains in this locality will be fierce, but it can't be helped now—the thing is did. —Harrison News.

Full Ticket in Every County.

New impetus is to be given the Progressive or Bull Moose movement in this State. Steps are being taken to hold a conference for the purpose of forming a perfect organization which will establish the new party on a firm foundation in Kentucky. Plans will also be made to inaugurate an educational movement whereby the people will be shown that the new party has come to stay and that the principles are for the best interests of the people. Candidates for office in every county in the State will be made, no matter whether the sections happen to be known as Democratic or Republican strongholds.

Lexington, Dec. 26.—"Old Jane," a mule, which for 33 years agricultural students at Kentucky University had followed with a jerk line through field and meadow at the Experiment Station Farm, was humanely put to death today.

Jane had been suffering with rheumatism, and her poor bones were so full of the racking disease that the faculty decided death was her only relief.

Many now distinguished men of the state had more than a speaking acquaintance with Jane, for numerous of them have felt the none too tender caress of her handy heels in plowing time.

Here is a remedy that will cure your cold. Why waste time and money experimenting when you can get a preparation that has won a world-wide reputation by its cures of this disease and can always be depended upon? It is known everywhere as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and is a medicine of real merit. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Hen Sells for $800.

Quite a number of the readers of the Recorder having overlooked the Parcel's Post page published last week, and the further fact that everybody is interested in the Parcels Post, the page is reproduced this week. It would be well to file it away for future reference.

(Lawrenceburg Press.)

Jacob Platt died at his home opposite Lawrenceburg Saturday evening, aged 82 years. He is survived by his wife and one son, David A. Platt.

The city of Lawrenceburg, the Lawrenceburg Ferry company and Jacob Rief, Lawrenceburg citizen, are jointly constructing a road from the foot of Walnut street to the ferry landing. By making a fill beginning at the Big Four track it is thought that a much more satisfactory grade can be obtained than the approach that has so long been in use.

By the use of six syphons eight and ten inches in diameter the harbor boats Hercules Carroll and Ranger succeeded in getting the water out of the hull of the wharf boat and raising it Saturday. The boat sank Sunday, Dec. 8. An investigation disclosed that a rotten plank was the cause of the boat going down. The damage will not be so heavy as first antiipated.

The appearance of diphtheria in Petersburg caused the school at that place to continue its vacation over this week at least.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Phipps entertained with a big dinner, last Saturday. Among the guests were Ralph Cason and bride.

Rev. Campbell preached for the Baptist congregation last Sunday night. He may be employed by the congregation for the year.

On account of the illness of one of his children, Caddie Maurer and family, of Belleview, have not been able to move to Burlington.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Gaines gave a family dinner, last Sunday, on which occasion their son, Gordon and wife, of Covington, were with them.

Born—To John Furlong and wife of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, on the last day of the month and the last day of the year, a fine boy.

At Burlington the old year passed out and the new year came on without a sound, the like of which was never before known in Burlington.

W. A. Gaines went to Frankfort last Friday on business pertaining to the United American Insurance Company of which he is one of the directors.

The game wardens throughout the State have been a busy set of officils the past month, and have made numerous arrests for the violation of the game laws.

The returns that have come in from the Boys' Corn Clubs in the State show that the boys in many counties have taken great interest in their work and in many instances remarkable results have been obtained.

It is seldom that the farmers reach the first of January without using more food for their livestock than has been required this winter. In some instances stock has not been fed any, and yet the animals are in fine condition.

If your children are subject to attacks of croup, watch for the first symptom, hoarseness. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse and the attack may be warded off. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

As usual Robert Gaines inaugurated the Christmas festivities with a party at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Gaines, out on the Florence pike. A large number of young people responded to the invitations and a most delightful time was the result.

Candidates for nomination for county offices will begin to appear in every section of the county now. The state paying the cost of the primary election will cause several of the boys to throw their hats into the ring who, otherwise, might not enter the battle.

At a special term of the fiscal court held last Monday, all the justices of the peace being present except O'Neal, Chas. Goodridge, of Hebron, was elected county engineer of public roads, and his salary fixed at $1,200 a year. Mr. Goodridge has a big job on his hands on which the Recorder will speak more fully next week.

The farmers will now begin to arrange for their 1913 crops. Considerable plowing for corn has already been done by those who make a practice of taking advantage of favorable fall weather for that class of work. It is always very gratifying to the farmer to have a considerable portion of his plowing done by the beginning of the new year.

Mrs. A. R. Tabor, of Crider, Mo., had been troubled with sick headache for about five years, when she began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. She has taken two bottles of them and they have cured her. Sick headache is caused by a disordered stomach for which these tablets are especially intended. Try them, get well and stay well. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

Deeds of Kindness.

Several of the Limaburg people and a number of the citizens of Burlington sent Jas. Strouse and family a generous Christmas donation. Mr. Strouse has been sick for some time and not able to work and his neighbors realized that he and his family needed attention. Neither community was aware that the other was engaged in the commendable work, but of course that made no difference as they would have done as they did even though they had known the other was engaged in the same good work.

Robt. Gaines, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Gaines, who reside about a mile and a quarter out on the Florence pike, has gone to Washington, D. C., to take a position as page in the National House of Representatives. The young man had made an application for the place, and was surprised on Monday of last week when Congressman Arthur Rouse informed him that he had secured the appointment for him. Mr. Gaines at once went about arranging to go to the National Capital and in a few days he had his affairs adjusted. His friends here wish him all kinds of good luck at Washington.

Very Annoying.

Some of the Farmers' lines that center at Burlington are very much out of repair, and it is almost impossible to get the central station at Waterloo. This is not as it should be as the telephone has become a very important factor in the farmer's everyday life and it is very annoying to him to have his 'phone to fail him when he needs it. The telephone puts the farmer in touch with all his neighbors and after having used it for a while he can not dispense with its services very well. Kept in repair a telephone is a luxury, but when out of commission it is a nuisance. A single wire line should not be hard to keep in working order, and of that kind are the lines that enter the Waterloo switchboard.

Henry Ross McGlasson

was born in Boone County, Ky., December 21, 1823. He united with Pt. Pleasant Christian church January 6th, 1839, and was united in marriage to Harriet Elizabeth Wright, a member of one of the county's oldest and most honored families. To them were born eight children, six sons and two daughters, all of whom survive—A. H. McGlasson, of Madison, Indiana; George, Harvey, Robert, Lloyd, Frank and Mrs. Bert Berkshire and Miss Laura, all of this county. He has 16 grandchildren and is survived by one brother, Wm. McGlasson, of Hebron neighborhood. Mr. McGlasson departed this life on the 84th anniversary of his birth, after being an invalid for two years because of asthma and heart trouble.

Henry McGlasson's life was worthy of emulation and should be studied by the young men of this time. Starting with but little of this world's goods he made a success of life, and was one of the wealthiest men of this county. His success was obtained by persistent effort and true business judgment, and it was a satisfaction to him in his last years to know that he had placed his children beyond the hardships he endured in early life, and that they are among Boone county's best citizens. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Edgar C. Riley at Hebron Lutheran church in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends, after which the interment took place in the cemetery at that place.

Thus after many years of usefulness has one of Boone county's staunchest citizens paid the debt that hangs over all, and of his generation but few remain in the county, and although he lived beyond man's allotted time his departure creates a vacancy that cannot be supplied.

For Sale—Cow and heifer calf. Apply to Mrs. Joe Graves, Burlington R. D. 3 near Francesville.

Leonard B. Crigler.

In memory of Benjamin Leonard Crigler, who died at his home near Hebron, Kentucky, Dec. 22d, 1912, aged 68 years and 4 months.

He was born and reared in Boone county and has lived an honest, upright life. The community has lost a good citizen, a good friend and neighbor.

Mr. Crigler never united with any church but he lived near the Golden Rule. If he had any preference, it was towards the Old Baptists. He leaves a widow, one child, Dr. C. H. Crigler, and two grandchildren, who believe that beyond the grave he will be waiting to welcome them to their Heavenly home, to that city not made with hands eternal in the Heavens.

Mrs. Crigler desires to thank the many friends who were so thoughtful and kind during the sickness and sorrow thru which she has just passed; also the Rev. Runyan for his words of sympathy and the quartett of voices for their beautiful music rendered at the funeral services.

Holding Them Down.

State Auditor Bosworth has determined not to pay Barksdale Hamlett, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, the $125 per month increase in salary provided for him under the act of the recent Legislature, which increased Hamlett's salary, $1,500 a year. Hamlett has concluded to sue for the salary. Bosworth's action was taken upon the advice of Attorney-General Garnett, who holds that the clauses in the act providing for the increase of salary and creating the office of General Supervisor of Schools for Hamlett are in violation of Sections 156 and 235 of the constitution. This move by Auditor Bosworth is meeting with great appreciation by all tax payers, who have become disgusted with the doings of several politicians in the state administration. It seems if Hamlett had his heart and soul in the great work of Kentucky's schools he would attend more to the business of seeing that the teacher's are paid and not to a fat increase in his own salary. His predecessor, Mr. Regenstein and also Dr. Crabbe, of the State Normal received the same salary and they ran the office with great credit to themselves and the state.—Winchester Democrat.

Christmas Not Like it Use to Be.

It was a beautiful, bright, white Christmas day, but there was very little doing.

Charles Westbay was out early on a mission of mercy to which there was a liberal response.

Church circles at Erlanger had quite a lively Christmas, each of the local congregations having an interesting entertainment.

Jailer Adams did not set up turkey to occupants of the jail this year, his bastile having been cleared just before Christmas.

Christmas was white enough to save the reputation of the weather forecaster in this zone. Three weeks before he predicted a white Christmas.

Kirb Tanner was out early in the day inviting friends to assist him to enjoy his Christmas supplies. The responeses were limited only by the invitations.

Recognizing that there would be a heavy run of business on Christmas day Uncle Sam required his rural mail carriers to make their usual rounds that day but permitted them to knock off on New Year's day.

The features of an old time Christmas were lacking in every respect. It seems that with the passing of the old carding machine building those who enjoyed the excitement of the old time turkey raffle have disappeared from the scene, and the thoughts of the boys have turned to other channels. Christmas in Burlington is not what it use to be, but it may be for the better.

That Road Law.

To the Recorder:

I saw in the issue of Dec. 19th a statement of the road law introduced in the legislature by Mr. Carroll, and which he thinks was a very fair proposition. He takes the East Bend road for an example. Now the road through East Bend along the foot of the hills back of the bottom land has land within a half mile of it on the north side that is not worth more than one dollar an acre, while within a half mile of said road on the south is land that is worth one hundred an acre. Does Mr. Carroll think it would be fair to tax the land on the north side of said road the same per acre as the land on the south side? If his bill had become a law it would have been very unfair along this road. If this bill had provided for a one dollar assessment for each $100 valuation of land as shown by the assessor's books then it would have been a fair measure to this locality.

He is as handsome a man as you will meet in a day's journey and quick and bright. He has held a position with the National Cash Register Company for years and received numerous promotions until now he holds one of the most responsible positions under the company.

FIXING RATES UNDER PARCEL POST SYSTEM

Government Goes Into Business of Transmitting Merchandise Through the Mails.

NEW LAW FULLY EXPLAINED

Country Divided Into Zones and Units for Purpose of Fixing Charges for Carriage—No Package Weighing More Than Eleven Pounds Is Mailable—Anything Properly Wrapped Which Will Not Injure Other Mail May Be Sent.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

With the coming of the New Year the United States government will enter into a new field of enterprise—the transmittal of merchandise by what is known as the parcel post. For years there has been a demand for such a system of inexpensive transmittal of packages. The camps of favor and disfavor of the parcel post scheme have been about equally divided. Finally at the last session of congress a bill was passed which will put the plan into operation, but only it must be said in little more than an experimental way.

It is the intention of Uncle Sam to move rather slowly in the parcel post matter. He wants to find how popular it will be, how much it will cost the government, and whether there is to be a profit or loss at the end of each year. If it is found that the plan is successful from the point of view of the people, which means the government also, the parcel post will be extended until finally it reaches the proportions which its proponents say they believe it is destined to assume.

Zone System Explained.

It is no exaggeration to say that thousands upon thousands of inquiries have been made of the postmaster general as to just what the parcel post will mean to the people. It was the law of congress establishing the system which made provision for a division of the country into zones and into 35,000 units which are to be used as centers in describing the circles which mark the boundaries of the zones. There has been no clear understanding, apparently, of this zone system, but really it is a very simple matter.

The accompanying map shows the country divided into zones from the unit in which Washington is situated, as the center. Accompanying the map is a table showing the rate of postage per pound for parcels from Washington to places within all the zones.

Each unit contains an area thirty miles square. Now each unit is a center from which the zones are drawn and so every unit in the country no matter where it is situated will have zones drawn from it just exactly as Washington has them drawn from it. For instance, take Keokuk, Ia., which is in a unit in the fifth zone. From that will be drawn circles exactly as they are drawn from Washington and they will be numbered from Keokuk as number one, just as they are numbered from Washington as number one. Of course, however, Zone Six will have a different geographical position as related to Keokuk than it has as related to Washington, but as the radius of the circles drawn from Keokuk is the same length as the radius of the circles drawn from Washington, Keokuk's Zone Six will be just as far from its center as Washington's Zone Six is.

How Rates Are Fixed.

It can be seen from this readily enough that the postal rates from Washington to its particular zone will be the same as the postal rates from Keokuk to its particular zones. Each unit being about thirty miles square will of course contain in most cases a number of postoffices, but each office in the same unit is considered as being the center of the circles from which the zones are drawn. The rates of postage are fixed from the unit in which the sending postoffice is situated, but the price to every place in any zone is just the same. To illustrate, it will cost exactly the same amount to send a parcel from Washington to Erie, Pa., that it costs to send it to Atlanta, Ga., because Erie and Atlanta with reference to Washington are situated in the fourth zone. The rates therefore are fixed from the unit in which the postoffice is located, but they are the same from that office to any point in any one zone.

It will be seen by reference to the table of rates of postage that it will cost more per pound to send a package a long distance than it does to send it a short distance. The rate increases for a package weighing one pound at the rate of one cent for each zone. No package weighing more than 11 pounds can be sent under the new parcel post law. It should be said right here that on the long hauls the parcel post may not be able to compete with the express companies, but that on shorter hauls it can so compete. It was the expressed desire of the legislators and of the postoffice officials that the parcel post system should be made of particular use to persons having farm and factory products to transmit to customers. It is probable that producers must study the rates of postage and the convenience of transmittal and compare them with the cost and convenience under present methods before individually a man can determine whether he is to profit or not by the change. Then there is another thing to be considered and which only can be known definitely when fuller regulations have been made to specify exactly what kind of things can be sent by parcel post. It can be said in a general way that anything can be sent which is properly wrapped and which will not injure other mail matter with which it may come in contact.

Copy Foreign Countries.

It is probable that the government will adopt a means of transportation for certain kinds of its merchandise much like those which have been adopted in parcel post countries abroad. What the English call hampers, basket-like arrangements, probably will be adopted, and as these can be kept separate from the ordinary mail matter it is believed that the regulations as finally adopted will allow the sending of eggs, butter, dressed poultry, live poultry, honey, fruit, and other products of the country.

The 11-pound limit for a single package may work at first against any very extended use of the parcel post for some of the articles which have been named. Of course, more weight can be sent if it is sent in different parcels, but the cost in that case would be heavier because the increase per pound on a single package is not great up to 11 pounds, and probably it would increase at no greater rate if the government were to raise the limit of weight which is now fixed. To make it simpler, it will cost more to send two packages of 11 pounds than it would to send one package of 22 pounds if the government eventually should allow a heavier single package to be carried and should charge in proportion just what it does now for one package of 11 pounds weight.

Every postmaster in the United States will have a parcel post map like the one which is here reproduced except that the zone lines will be shown with the unit of his postoffice as a center. All that a postmaster will have to do when a parcel is presented for transportation is to find out in what zone the destination of the package lies. His table will show him instantly the rate per pound from the unit in which his postoffice lies to the zone of the package's destinations, the price as has been explained before, to every postoffice in any one zone being the same. The parcel post will take nothing but fourth-class matter. Printed matter is still in the third-class designation. Therefore books cannot be sent by the parcel post system. This the postoffice authorities seem to think is in a way unjust and may work a hardship. It may be that in the future the law will be changed so as to include all printed matter. It seems to be certain that an attempt will be made to bring about this change as speedily as possible.

Must Bear Stamp.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has ordered that postmasters be advised that parcel post packages cannot be accepted for mailing unless they bear a distinctive parcel post stamp and have attached to them the return card of the sender. A series of distinctive stamps is now in course of preparation for this class of mail as required by the law creating the parcel post system. Consignments of these stamps will be ready for shipment to all postoffices in ample time for the establishment of the new system on New Year's day.

The postoffice department has given instruction to every postmaster in the country to enlighten his patrons as much as possible on the general subject of the parcel post and especially on the use of the special stamps and the necessary attachment of the return card. The law requires that all fourth-class matter mailed after January 1, 1913, without parcel post stamps attached shall be treated as "Held for postage" matter. Parcel post packages will be mailable only at postoffices, branch postoffices, lettered and local named stations, and such numbered stations as may be designated by the postmasters.

It has been announced by Postmaster General Hitchcock that nearly 70,000 scales will be required for use in the parcel post system which is to go into effect January 1st. He has accordingly authorized the issuance of bids for that number. Two hundred of the largest postoffices and their branches will be supplied with automatic springless scales. The next class of offices, numbering about 10,000, will be given high grade beam scale, while the four class offices, numbering about 55,000, will be furnished with the best spring balances obtainable, each having a capacity for twenty pounds. These scales will be used by postmasters to determine the amount of postage required on parcel post packages. The fact that many of the postoffices of the country are now furnished with scales of a limited capacity makes it necessary for the postmaster general to make this very large purchase of scales capable of taking care of the parcel post business. It is understood that this will be the largest single order ever placed for scales.

Rate on Seeds Not Affected.

It should be said that the act of congress which puts a parcel post plan into operation does not in any way affect the postage rate on seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants as fixed by section 482 of the postal laws and regulations.

The classification of articles mailable as well as the weight limit, the rates of postage, zone or zones and other conditions of mailability under the act of congress, if the postmaster general shall find on experience "that they or any of them are such as to prevent the shipment of articles desirable, or shall permanently render the cost of the service greater than the receipts of the revenue therefrom, he is hereby authorized, subject to the consent of the interstate commerce commission after investigation, to reform from time to time such classification, weight limit, rates, zone or zones or conditions, in order to promote the service to the public or to insure the receipt of revenue from such service adequate to pay the cost thereof."

Through many years different members of the house and senate have been interested in promoting parcel post legislation. Among the men most active in securing the legislation which soon is to go into effect as law are Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon, Representatives David J. Lewis of Maryland and William Sulzer of New York, who has just been elected governor of that state.

To ascertain conditions surrounding the establishment of the parcel post system in places differing widely in size, climate and industries, Postmaster General Hitchcock recently summoned to Washington, to confer with the special parcel post committee, the postmasters of five typical offices. They are William H. Davis, Pittsburg, Pa.; Daniel T. Gerow, Jacksonville, Fla.; M. H. Joster, Wilmington, Del.; E. M. C. Quimby, Suffolk, Va., and Henry N. Bradley, Charlestown, W. Va.

Confer With Postmasters.

The postmasters of the five largest offices in the country have already appeared before the committee, so Pittsburg was represented as being a large first class office, though smaller than any of the greater five, and as being the center of a tremendous manufacturing area. The postmaster of Pittsburg reported that the board of trade of that city has a special parcel post committee, working toward bringing the consumer and producer nearer to each other by the new system. He also said that many of the merchants are planning to have their city deliveries made by parcel post.

Wilmington, Del., represented a large farming and manufacturing district, with its mail connections close with Philadelphia, one of the largest offices. Jacksonville is the largest office in Florida, and the outlet for all the mail of the state. It is peculiar in having a special increase of force in winter, the tourist season, and the postmaster said that it was expected that travelers would use the parcel post extensively in sending home five and ten-pound packages of fruit.

Suffolk, Va., and Charlestown, W. Va., are both very small second class offices, one in the tide-water district, with large truck interests; the other far inland in an orchard country, with diversified farm products. The postmasters of both offices reported great interest in the parcel post, and said that they had continual inquiries regarding its scope.

From these postmasters the committee was able to glean a great amount of valuable information, which, added to that gained from the recent hearings in Maryland, puts it in a position to plan the details of the service to the greatest advantage of the producing farmer.

Give Him Time.

"You're a pretty old man to be beggin'," said the lady to the man at the back door.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the man with his hat in his hand.

"Have you been begging all your life?"

"Not yit, ma'am."

RATES OF POSTAGE

Parcels weighing four ounces or less are mailable at the rate of one cent for each ounce or fraction of an ounce, regardless of distance. Parcels weighing more than four ounces are mailable at the pound rate, as shown by the following table, and when mailed at this rate any fraction of a pound is considered a full pound.

APPROVES RULES FOR PARCEL POST

Postmaster General Issues Regulations Governing System.

WHAT MAY BE SENT BY MAIL

Gives American People Opportunity to Send Farm and Factory Products by Mail From and to Any Point in United States.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has just approved the regulations which cover in detail the articles which may or may not be sent by parcel post. These regulations are now being turned off at the government printing office on a "rush order" and they will be distributed as rapidly as possible.

The rules as to what can be sent and what cannot be sent and the instructions for the preparation of mailable articles with other "official advice" are given here as they have just been prepared by the postoffice department in Washington.

The minimum rate will be five cents for the first pound and three cents for each additional pound to any point not exceeding fifty miles from the office of mailing; the local rate, which is five cents for the first pound and one cent for additional pound, applies to all parcels the delivery of which does not involve their transportation on railway lines. The rates increase for each successive one of the eight zones, the maximum rate being twelve cents a pound, which will carry a parcel across the continent or to any of our possessions. Parcels will be limited to eleven pounds in weight and six feet in length and girth combined.

Mailable Perishable Articles.

Butter, lard and perishable articles such as fish, fresh meats, dressed fowls, vegetables, fruits, berries and articles of a similar nature that decay quickly, when so packed or wrapped as to prevent damage to other mail matter, will be accepted for local delivery either at the offices of mailing or on any rural route starting therefrom. When inclosed in an inner cover and a strong outer cover of wood, metal, heavy corrugated pasteboard or other suitable material and wrapped so that nothing can escape from the package, they will be accepted for mailing to any offices within the first zone or within a radius of 50 miles. Butter, lard, or any greasy or oily substance intended for delivery at offices beyond the first zone must be suitably packed. Vegetables and fruit that do not decay quickly will be accepted for mailing to any zone if packed so as to prevent damage to other mail matter. Eggs will be accepted for local delivery when securely packed in a basket or other container. Eggs will be accepted for mailing regardless of distance when each egg is wrapped separately and packed in a container.

There is no restriction on salted, dried, smoked or cured meats and other meat products, but fresh meat in any form will be transported only within the first zone.

Parcels containing perishable articles must be marked "PERISHABLE," and articles likely to spoil within the time reasonably required for transportation and delivery will not be accepted for mailing.

Manufactured Articles.

Manufacturers or dealers intending to transmit articles in considerable quantities are asked to submit to the postmaster for approval a specimen parcel showing the manner of packing.

When sharp pointed instruments are offered for mailing, the points must be capped or encased. Blades must be bound so that they will remain attached to each other or within their handles or sockets.

In Powders, pepper, snuff, or other similar powders not explosive, or any similar pulverized dry substance, not poisonous, may be sent when inclosed in cases made of metal, wood or other material to render impossible the escape of any of the contents. Flour of all kinds must be put up in such manner as to prevent the package breaking or the flour being scattered in the mails.

Queen Bees and Nursery Stock.

Queen bees, live insects, and dried reptiles may be mailed in accordance with the regulations that now apply to other classes of mail.

Seeds of fruit, nursery stock, and all other plant products for preparation may be mailed under the same conditions.

Confectionery and Soap.

Candies, confectionery, yeast cakes, soap in hard cakes, etc., must be inclosed in boxes and so wrapped as to prevent injury to other mail matter.

Sealed original packages of proprietary articles, such as soaps, tobacco, pills, tablets, etc., put up in fixed quantities by the manufacturer, and not in themselves unmailable, will be accepted for mailing when properly wrapped.

Millinery.

Fragile articles, such as millinery, toys, musical instruments, etc., and articles consisting wholly or in part of glass, or contained in glass, must be securely packed and the parcel stamped or labeled "FRAGILE."

Unmailable Matter.

The following matter is declared unmailable by law:

Matter manifestly obscene, lewd, or lascivious; articles intended for preventing conception; articles intended for indecent or immoral purposes; all matter otherwise mailable by law, the outside cover or wrapper of which bears and delineation or language of a libelous, scurrilous, defamatory, or threatening character. All such matter, when deposited in a post office or found in the mails, shall be withdrawn and sent to the divisions of dead letters.

Intoxicants, Poisons and Inflammable Materials.

Spirituous, vinous, malted, fermented, or other intoxicating liquors of any kind; poisons of every kind, and articles and compositions containing poison, poisonous animals, insects and reptiles; explosives of every kind; inflammable materials (which are held to include matches, kerosene oil, gasoline, naphtha, benzine, turpentine, denatured alcohol, etc.), infernal machines, and mechanical, chemical or other devices or compositions which may ignite of explode; disease germs or scabs, and other natural or artificial articles, compositions or materials of whatever kind which may kill, or in any wise injure another or damage the mail or other property.

Pistols, Animals and Birds.

Pistols or revolvers, whether in detached parts or otherwise; live or dead (and not stuffed) animals, birds, or poultry, except as elsewhere provided; raw hides or pelts, guano, or any article having a bad odor will not be admitted to the mails.

Treatment of Undeliverable Parcels.

Perishable matter will be delivered as promptly as possible, but if such matter can not be delivered and becomes offensive and injurious to health, postmasters may destroy it, or the injurious or offensive portions thereof.

Undeliverable perishable matter which in its nature does not become offensive or injurious to health may be delivered by postmasters to the proper local municipal authority to be distributed to hospitals, asylums or other charitable or reformatory institutions. If there is no such municipal authority, the matter may be delivered to any charitable institution or organization making application therefor. If no application is made, the matter will be destroyed at the expiration of two weeks.

Parcels Improperly Packed.

Postmasters will refuse to receive for mailing parcels not properly indorsed or packed for safe shipment.

When parcels on which the postage is wholly unpaid or insufficiently prepaid is deposited for local delivery and the sender is unknown, notice of detention need not be sent but such matter will be delivered and the deficient postage collected from the addressee by the carrier. If the addressee refuses to pay the postage the matter will be sent to the Division of Dead Letters.

Insurance on Parcels.

A mailable parcel on which the postage is fully prepaid may be insured against loss in an amount equivalent to its actual value, but not to exceed $50, on payment of a fee of ten cents in parcel post stamps, such stamps to be affixed.

When a parcel is insured, the sender will be given a receipt showing the office and date of mailing and number of the parcel.

When a return receipt is desired by the sender of an insured parcel the postmaster at the mailing office will note the request on the margin of the insurance tag, and the postmaster at the office of address will obtain from the addressee a receipt and mail it to the sender.

The liability for indemnity shall cease when delivery has been effected.

Forwarding of Parcels.

Parcels may be remailed or forwarded on the payment of additional postage at the rate which would be chargeable if they were originally mailed at the forwarding office, in which case the necessary stamps will be affixed by the forwarding postmaster. Payment must be made every time the parcel is forwarded.

Preparation for Mailing.

Parcels must be prepared for mailing in such manner that the contents can be easily examined. A parcel will not be accepted for mailing unless it bears the name and address of the sender preceded by the word "From."

In addition to the name and address of the sender, which is required, it will be permissible to write or print on the covering of a parcel, or on a tag or label attached to it, the occupation of the sender, and to indicate in a small space by means of marks, letters, numbers, names or other brief description, the character of the parcel, but ample space must be left on the address side for the full address in legible characters and for the necessary postage stamps. Inscriptions such as "Merry Christmas," "Please do not open until Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With best wishes," and the like, may be placed on the covering of the parcel in such manner as not to interfere with the address.

Distinctive Stamps.

The law requires that the postage on all matter must be prepaid by distinctive parcel post stamps affixed. Postmasters cannot receive for mailing parcels that do not bear such stamps.

Parcel post stamps are not valid for the payment of postage on matter of the first, second, and third classes, and when used for that purpose, the matter to which they are affixed shall be treated as "Held for postage."

Maps and Guides.

Parcel post maps, with accompanying guides, are to be sold to the public at their cost, 75 cents, through the chief clerk of the post office department. In ordering maps care should be taken to specify the post office from which the postage rates are to be determined.

Man from Monkey

is not more marvelous than is the evolution of this magnificent Greencastle Cabinet.

¶Milady formerly stood on a step ladder or a chair to fill her flour bin. Now, the bin gently descends to the table to be filled.

¶Mother's Cabinet had swinging doors that would not open or close until she cleared the table. Now, Daughter's Cabinet has handsome sliding doors that disappear inside like a roll-top desk. Grandma had a Cabinet with a tin sugar bin nailed to the door; Granddaughter's has an ant proof, automatic valve, crystal glass one, swinging to the Cabinet side.

¶Mother and Grandmother hid their ironing-boards behind the kitchen door. In our Cabinet an Ironing-board instantly comes from underneath the table top, and when ironing is done, Presto—out of sight it goes.

Don't buy a Cabinet until you see this.

WOMAN'S ADVANTAGE IN LIFE

British Physicians of Prominence Give Some Figures That Explain Disparity Between the Sexes.

Though doctors have long realized that, thanks to a better knowledge of sanitation and personal hygiene, people are living longer than formerly, the much greater relative longevity of women as shown in the recently published British national debt office's report on the mortality of government life annuitants has come as a general surprise.

In a summary of these figues it was shown that the expectation of life of a woman of fifty is now more than a year greater than it was in 1875, while that of a man of the same age is only three months greater.

Discussing the reasons of our increasing longevity and in particular woman's stronger hold on life, physicians at St. Bartholomew's hospital advanced widely different theories. "The essential cause of death," one stated, "is a wearing out from overwork of our brain cells. Women may be inst as brainy as men, but they do not work their brain cells as vigorously or as continuously as do their male relatives. If they did there would not be so great a disparity in the length of life of the two sexes."

Another consultant puts down woman's greater expectation of life to the more sheltered existence she leads, and the lack of the physically depressing competition which is part of nearly every man's life. "A woman may have hard work to do," he explained, "but except for the few who work in offices or who follow professions, they work in their own homes, and at a pace they set for themselves. The home is also, as a rule, vastly more airy, sunny and generally more wholesome than is her husband's shop or office."

"Information" Added Little to the Small Amount of Knowledge Young Matrons Possessed.

Two young matrons, who are sisters, keep house in their old family homestead in Kansas City, Kan. Recently their cook left them. While neither had had much experience in cooking, yet they decided to take charge of the kitchen. They bought three cook books. For Sunday evening lunch it was determined to have sauerkraut and spare ribs. Several friends were asked in.

The kraut and ribs were put on the fire to boil. Suddenly it occurred to one of the "cooks" that she did not know how long the combination should cook. She asked her sister. She didn't know. They consulted the cook books. Each gave this instruction: "Cook until done." They were in despair. One of the husbands happened to drop into the kitchen. He saw that something was wrong. He asked, and was told.

"That ought to be easy to find out," he said. He stepped to the telephone and called: "Information, please."

In a moment a gentle voice came over the wire: "This is information. What is it, please?"

"Information, can you tell me how long sauerkraut and spareribs should boil?"

Without a moment's hesitation the silver voice replied, "Certainly. Cook until they are done."—Kansas City Star.

He Wouldn't Tell.

The eminent Doctor Llorente, physician to the royal family of Spain, told a reporter in New York recently that he thinks the American woman is spoiled.

"In my own country," said Doctor Llorente, "a woman is content to be queen of her household, but here woman wants to be both king and queen."

"I was surprised to hear that in some cases the American husband has, actually, to conceal the condition of his finances from his wife in order to curb her extravagances. Thus the rich young wife's complaint to her doctor, a friend of mine in New York, would be impossible in Spain, where married people are happy companions.

"'It is so ridiculous,' said my friend's young patient, 'to call the man at the bank a "teller." Why, he won't tell you anything. I asked one the other day how much money my husband had on deposit and he just laughed at me.'"

Sporting Element.

Willie liked ice cream, but he drew the line at turning the freezer. One day when his mother returned home she was agreeably surprised to find him working at the crank as if his life depended on it.

"I don't see how you got him to turn the ice cream freeser," she said to her husband. "I offered him a penny to do it."

"You don't go about it the right way, my dear," replied her husband. "I bet him a nickel he couldn't turn it for half an hour."

Refinement in Trades.

The world as it progresses becomes, if not more refined, at least more delicate in its phrases. A generation ago the dressmaker became a "modiste" and the ready made tailor's shop a "clothing emporium."

We have to thank America for such improvements as "ready to wear" for ready made clothes; "footwear" for boots and shoes; "neckwear" for collars and ties and doubtless for many others.—London Mail.

HAVE NO NEED OF THOUGHT

All That Troubles Eskimo Is That They Shall Be Sure of Getting Enough to Eat.

Where the physical struggle for life is at its keenest, as it is among the Eskimos, the years glide by free from the more subtle cares and worries of the civilized man. The Eskimo does not count the days and keeps no record of time. All his thoughts are centered on hunting.

Once I asked an Eskimo who seemed to be plunged in reflection, "What are you thinking about?"

He laughed at my question, and said, "Oh, it is only you white men who go in so much for thinking! Up here we only think of our flesh-pits, and whether we have enough for the long dark of the winter. If we have meat enough, then there is no need to think. I have meat and to spare!"

I saw that I had insulted him by crediting him with thought.

On another occasion I asked an unusually intelligent Eskimo, Panigpak, who had taken part in Peary's last North Polar expedition:

"Tell me, what did you suppose was the object of all your exertions? What did you think when you saw the land disappear behind you and you found yourself out on the drifting ice-floes?"

"Think?" said Panigpak, astonished. "I did not need to think. Peary did that!"

Eating becomes the great thing with the Eskimos. I once excused myself, when paying a visit, with the plea that I had already eaten and had had enough. I was laughed at, and the answer I received was:

"There thou talkest like a dog! Dogs can be stuffed till they are satisfied and can eat no more; but people—people can always eat!"—Knud Rasmussen, in The People of the Polar North.

MEETING WITH ROBERT BARR

Journey of a Couple to Cologne Was Materially Enlivened by the Novelist.

I have a pleasant recollection of Robert Barr, the popular novelist, whose death was recently announced, writes a woman correspondent of the London Chronicle. A relative and I were traveling some years since in Germany, and took the water way to Cologne. Among the numbers of brodchen devouring and beer drinking passengers on the little steamer I noticed one, a man with an eager expression, who was distinguished by his abstinence and by his absorption in the passing scenery of the Rhine. I got into conversation by chance with the observer, and the whole route to Cologne was from that moment made a living reality to me by the man's comment.

The following day we decided to continue our journey, and again we chose the transit steamer, and again we met the man of recollection and observation. I tried, by conversational openings, to discover his identity, but he heeded none, continuing to pour out a flood of history and legend of the Rhine. At length the time of parting came. With a sweep of the arm, which included my companion and myself, he said: "I shall hope to see you when you return from this, the journey of your lives," and handed me a card, on which was inscribed the name of Robert Barr. "I don't think we can call together," I replied, "for while I live in London, my brother's home is in the north, and I seldom catch sight of him on his day trips to town." "Your brother," replied the editor of the Idler, "then why the deuce do you both have new luggage?"

Ninety Miles Somewhar'.

A traveler waiting for a train in Greenville, S. C., observed a venerable, white bearded gentleman sauntering along the platform, whose appearance invited conversation. He approached the dignified, kind faced southerner with the customary salutation of "Good morning, colonel, do you live here?" "Yes, sah." "Engaged in growing cotton?" "No, sah, I am a statistician." After harvesting his crop of local statistics, I asked him how far it was to Atlanta. He replied that it was about ninety miles, when a young man who was standing near interposed: "Oh, no, uncle, it is more 'an ninety miles." The old gentleman stroked his beard meditatively for a moment, shifted his quid and said: "Waal, Jack, it's ninety miles somewhar'—whar's that place anyway, Jack?"

English "Society."

There are three classes of society in England—the aristocrats, who are barbarians; the middle class, who are philistines, and the dregs of society, who are nothing at all. It is a funny thing that the late King Edward, who had all the vices of the aristocrats, was beloved by the middle class, and that his son, King George, who has all the virtues of the middle class, is despised by the aristocrats. He and the queen are always spoken of as George and the Dragon.

His Chops.

"Here, waiter, I ordered two lamb chops and can't find but one."

"Let me see, sir. Quite true. Ah I remember now. I passed the open door an' th' drawft must have blowed it away, sir."

"Bring me another waiter, and this time don't forget the windshield and the safety net."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SAW FALL OF PAGAN ROME

Stones of the Coliseum Immortalize Today the Triumphs of a Christianity That Lives.

Christianity is crystallized in the Coliseum and St. Peter's. In the former by the triumphs of the martyrs; in the latter, by the dedication of art to the worship of God, writes Bishop Gilmour.

Come with me along the Via Sacra, past the Forum and the Arch of Titus. But a step, and we are at the Coliseum, pressed in between the Celian and Palatine hills, the Arch of Constantine and the Temple of Venus.

As we enter, the moon has risen, giving a weird appearance to the scene, as we see its shadows flit, dissolve and lose themselves amid the arches of this mighty ruin. Amid broken arch and coimnn and vaulted corridor, terrace rises upon terrace till the blood curdles and the hair stands on end. Memory is busy and hurries us back to when Christian martyr and gentle maid stood within the vast arena to die for Christ.

The emperor is there; the nobility of Rome is there; tier upon tier is densely packed; the wild beasts paw their cages, impatient for the feast; one hundred thousand voices shout, "The Christians to the lions!" A spring, a growl, a quiver and another hero has gone to God. Every brick, and stone, and grain of sand in this mighty ruin has been sanctified by the blood shed there. Here a Felicitas and Perpetua, a Cyriacus and Pancras died; here Rome brutalized herself, and within these walls strove to crush out truth.

Here Pagan Rome fell and Christian Rome rose. The blood of the martyrs was the seed of the church.

GOOD WORD FOR THE OYSTER

London Lancet, Always Pessimistic, Comes Forward With a Surly Meed of Praise.

When the Lancet, representative of the medical profession of Great Britain, says anything good about anything, it is listened to with emotions of mingled surprise and respect. Some one has remarked that every time he picked up the Lancet he discovered he was doing something right along, or taking something that was surely killing him. It has a good word for the oyster just at the time when that apparently innocuous edible is exciting the scrutiny of our always feverish advisers, the bacteriologists. This distinguished, if usually alarmist, authority declares that the oyster is a "tonic of the first order, and a complete food, most beneficial to weakened patients and those in whom appetite is deficient." Clinical results of a most favorable nature are reported where oysters are given to persons suffering from tuberculosis. If oysters are indicated for the diet of persons in the state described, they must be wholesome for the rest of us.

There was never any doubt about this, of course, before nervous bacteriologists sought to fill us full of fear instead of oysters. He was a brave man who first ate one raw, according to the philosopher of the breakfast table; and now the bacteriologists challenge our courage. The Lancet's commendation should help to sustain timid souls at this crisis.—Providence Journal.

The Angelus.

I've been reading a life of Millet and was struck with his poverty at the time he painted "The Angelus." When one considers how the pictures may now be found in countless homes in this and every country, it seems incredible that Millet had trouble selling the original. All his clients hesitated, until at last a Belgian diplomat was persuaded into buying it. About this time Millet wrote, "We have wood only for one or two days. They will not give it to us without money." Better times were ahead, however, and the wonderful pictures eventually brought Millet at least a living. He is said to have named "The Angelus" in this way: A friend was looking at it for the first time. "What do you think of it?" said Millet. "I hear the bells ringing. It is the Angelus!" was the immediate answer. "It is indeed!" said Millet. "I am contented. You understood it."—New York Press.

She Was Doing Press Work.

A young woman who was acting as newspaper correspondent at a fashionable hotel did not consider herself a reporter and never referred to herself as such. In talking with one of the women guests she spoke of doing "press work" for the hotel.

The woman hesitated a moment, then said: "Don't you find it hard?"

The girl, thinking how much help her little typewriter had been, replied: "Oh, no, I have a machine."

Another pause, then the bewildered guest put her question: "Do you do the work in your room or in the laundry?"

The young woman is trying now to make up her mind just what she had better call herself.

Heard Wrong.

"So Jessie Jejune is going to marry Billy Bibber?"

"Yes—what do you think of that?"

"I hear that she and Billy had a lot of trouble getting her father's consent."

"Then you heard wrong."

"Wasn't there some sort of objection to the match?"

"Yes. But it was Jessie and her father who had a lot of trouble getting Billy's consent."

KENTUCKY NEWS.

A Beech Grove, McLean county man has proved that ginseng raising can be made a success, a thing which many others have tried and abandoned because they said it didn't pay. But the Beech Grove farmer has made it very profitable. It is very probable that he is a progressive gin seng grower, like the boys of the corn clubs in corn raising, and not a standpatter. He planted one-twelfth of an acre in ginseng. In four years his crop had matured, and he sold it for $825, which is a return of $206.25 on the one twelfth of an acre for each year, from the time the crop was planted till it matured.—Owensboro Inquirer.

While digging a grave at the Milton Taylor cemetery, near Hart ford, last Friday, Mr. Dan King met with an unusual experience. When he started digging he noticed a smooth looking hole in the ground and when he had gotten down about three feet he unearthed a den of snakes at the end of the hole. The reptiles were seven in number and were coiled closely around each other in an oblong ball. Mr. King proceeded to unravel the ball and kill the snakes, the largest of which measured over five feet in length. The aggregation comprised three chicken snakes, three black snakes and a house snake. —Hartford Herald.

For several weeks Clarence Flora says he has been seeing a ghost near a beech tree between here and his home. He tried his revolver on it without effect. Each night it would come a little closer, cross the road and ascend the hill. On last Saturday night he started out to follow it; when he arrived at the spot there was the ghost. He followed it over the hill to a graveyard and he could see it no more.—Cynthiana Log Cabin.

We have now been publishing the Times for several years and from point of service are the oldest newspaper man on the same paper in this and many adjoining counties, Editor Spencer, of the famous Hazel Green Herald, being one of our few seniors. This does not mean, however, that the editor is an overly old man, he being yet in his thirties.—Clay City Times.

Farmer John F. Sheeler butchered a hog that had eleven toes on its fore feet, five on one and six on the other. This freak was discovered after the animal had bee n slaightered. Mr. Sheeler said had he known the facts he would have kept the hog and placed it in a museum.—Maysville Bulletin.

That there is money in raising tobacco no one better knows than Mr. M. B. Pigg, who owns a farm near Ford, this county. He put in only an acre and a quarter of the weed, but it was enough to bring him the snug sum of $331.50. —Richmond Climax.

HARD WINTER PREDICTED.

And Sixteen Snows Will Fall According to the Moon.

An exchange says: The moon was just sixteen days old on Sunday November 24, when the first snow appeared hence there will be sixteen snows this winter or just as many as the moon was days old when the first snow fell. It is also predicted that this is going to be a hard winter. The wise weather prophet says the moss on the north side of the tree is heavier than usual, the squirrels are busy filling their dens with food, the goose bone is very heavy, the wool is thicker on the sheep and the fur on muskrats is more plentiful than usual. All these signs are unmistakeable signs of a hard winter. Prepare in time with big woodpiles and with well filled coal bins.

How to Get The Best Mules.

There is need for a greater use of draft horses in the South for the production of mules. The draft mule is common in the South but when his history is written up it will be found that he was born in Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, was raised in Kentucky and Tennessee and spent his mature years in the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Light mules must weight draft mares with plenty of quality produce the highest priced mules on the market today. The lightweight draft mares weighing from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds can be bought for less money on the northern markets than the lighter trotting or saddle bred mares. It consequently is a question of economics to use the draft mare with quality to produce our mules. That the draft mare produces the highest type of mules is shown by the fact that nearly all of the highest priced mules on the market are evidently from draft mares. Blue ribbons on mules at the State fairs in the last few years have always gone to the mules that were out of draft mares. There has been in this respect an entire change from the practice that prevailed a few years ago when ribbons were tied on the light and more or less fine boned mules.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson who reside near Banklick, celebrated their golden wedding on Christmas day at the home of her sister Mrs. James Cross at Walton, in a most joyful manner with their immediate relatives. Fifty years ago Walter Wilson and Miss Mary Waite, and Thos. J. Stephens and Miss Fannie Waite were united in marriage, the occasion being a double wedding. Mrs. Stephens died about a year ago, and the happiness of a double celebration was not only destroyed but the absence of the dear one on Christmas day brought sorrow to the hearts of those who were celebrating the 15th anniversary of the couple who had been left to enjoy that privilege. The Philomathian Society is planning for a box social next Friday evening. A program of music and literary numbers will be rendered previous to the auction of the boxes. The assistance of all "young ladies," no lady is old under 70, is solicited. The erroneous idea seems to have been spread that only the Philomathian members will bring boxes. The help of all young ladies who are interested will be most welcome.

Come to the box supper and help on the first lift on the piano debt.

We are glad that our tourna ment promises to be a success again. Keep it going.

The remains of the late O. F. Glacken were taken from the vault at Hopeful, Thursday, and all that was mortal of a man that was industrious, honest and a good friend, was laid to rest to await the judgment day.

Estill Dutton, 28, of Somerset, an engineer on the Q. & C. Railroad was killed just above Richwood, Thursday afternoon. The air brake pipes became uncoupled and he went between the engine and first car and connected them, when the train was backed and caught him between the cars, mashing the life out of him. The crew missing him found him standing between the cars, but he was dead.

A construction train was ditched between here and Devon, Friday evening. The engine, several flat cars and the caboose, with about fifteen men in it, turned over and tore up the track for several rods. No one was hurt. The track was not cleared away until about two o'clock the next morning. Our commuter people arrived home about 2:30 a. m. and our section men did not get off until noon, Saturday.

Now that our road engineer is appointed it is up to us, especially us who live on mud pikes, to aid him in any and every way that we can and be patient and lenient with him, not expecting him to pike our roads or make them passable at all times of the year. If he understands his office he can improve in one year and at the end of five years if we do not have improved the county roads or a great portion piked, recall Mr. Engineer and make an assignment with Uncle Sam as a receiver, and then see us grow. Our mail routes are in danger if we do not do our best to improve the roads.

L. P. Aylor is confined to his room. He fell on a grind stone striking the stone with his side which is badly bruised and probably some ribs broken.

Mrs Agnes Wittenberg, an old and highly respected lady, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Emma V. Rouse, at Florence, last Thursday. A very impressive funeral service was conducted by Rev. E. R. Wagner at Hopeful last Saturday. After the service the remains were consigned to their last resting place in the Hopeful cemetery in the presence of a large concourse of friends.

HERMAN GEIBBING

A Prosperous German Citizen Commits Suicide by Hanging Himself in His Barn.

Herman Geibbing, aged 60 years, committed suicide last Saturday morning at his home in the Ft. Pleasant neighborhood. He went to his barn near the house about four o'clock that morning to feed, and not coming back to the house in a reasonable time his wife went to hunt for him and found the body suspended from a cross timber in the barn, where it had evidently hung for several minutes, life being extinct. Mr. Geibbing was an industrious, prosperous German citizen, and his rash act cannot be accounted for, and casts a gloom over the entire neighborhood in which he had resided for many years. Only a few days before Mr. Geibbing took his life he and his wife were in Burlington in consultation with an attorney in regard to business matters, and appeared to be in his usual good spirits and thoroughly at himself. Mr. Geibbing owned and operated a little farm which he had brought to a high state of cultivation and which was making him a comfortable living and there is nothing to which his rash act can be attributed.

Drove Near Death.

Florian Gex, of Gex, came close to losing his life in an automobile accident on Monday morning of last week. Mr. Gex, in company with his brother, Robert, was returning home from Craig's store, where he had been to make some purchases, and was going down the road, witnesses to the accident say at a high rate of speed. While a short distance above his home a dog started across the road in front of his car. In trying to avert an accident and save the animal's life, Mr. Gex evidently lost control of his car, and the machine a light Foard run-a-bout was wheeled around, its position in the road reversed, and turned over on its side, throwing its driver's head against the frozen ground with terrific force. Robt. Gex escaped without injury. For several days the injured man lay in a state of unconsciousness, and since then has, at rare intervals had brief periods of consciousness. Though nearly two weeks have elapsed since the accident his condition is still precarious. Later reports indicate a marked improvement, and chances are now favorable for improvement.—Warsaw Independent.

Chicken Thieves at Work.

Some persons visited Mrs. Albert Conner's chicken roost one night last week while Mr. Conner was absent. Mrs. Conner heard the thieves and called her son, Harold, who took his gun and started out to put a stop to the theft, his mother having cautioned him not to shoot at the parties simply using his gun to frighten them. Harold proceeded so cautiously that he got so near the parties as to be able to recognize them, after which he discharged his gun in the air, when they left the premises at a rate of speed that would put to shame the last derby winner at Latonia. They took no chickens with them.

Tax Supervisors in Session.

The county board of supervisors of tax met at the court house last Monday. The board is composed of the following gentlemen:

John L. Jones, of Hamilton.
R. O. Powers, of Verona.
J. W. Conner, of Union.
H. H. Grant, of Petersburg.
W. P. Cropper, of Bullittsville.

The board organized by electing J. W. Conner as chairman. County Clerk W. R. Rogers is exofficio clerk of the board.

These gentlemen have composed the board for several years and are perfectly familiar with their duties as supervisors.

Common School Graduates.

Common School Graduates' examinations for year 1913 will be held on 24th and 25th of January in Burlington and on second Friday and Saturday of May in both Burlington and Walton. A Gold Medal will be given by Hon. A. B. Rouse to the pupil who receives the highest general average in these examinations. The county Supt. would be glad to publish names of any others who would care to give prizes in this contest. The examination will in a large sense be a tournament for 8th Grades in Boone Co.

EDGAR C. RILEY,
Superintendent.

Dr. L. C. Perkins Dead.

Dr. L. C. Perkins, formerly located at Belleview, this county, died of consumption at El Paso, Texas, on the 2nd inst. He left Belleview last summer on account of failing health, and for a while he thought he was improving. The interment was at Alledonia, Ohio, the old home of his wife. Dr. Perkins was well liked by the people of Belleview, among whom he resided only a few years.

Allen Gaines, of Walton, was the guest of his cousins, Harold and Virgil Gaines, several days the past week.

Rev. Earl, of Erlanger, will preach at Bullittsville Christian church next Sunday at 11 a. m. All the members are requested to be present.

County Supt., Riley and Courtney Kelly, of Burlington, and Robert McGiasson, of Hebron, are attending the State Dairy Show at Lexington this week.

Capt. Geo. Williamson, of McVille, was a business visitor to Burlington, Tuesday. He said the river bid fair to get out of its banks in the next few days.

Dr. Hafer and family, of Florence, have gone to St. Petersburg, Florida, to spend the winter and it is hoped that the Doctor's health will be improved by a sojourn in the land of flowers.

Col. Allie Winston, of Bullittsville, was in Burlington, last Friday afternoon and said that he thought that he and W. C. Watts and Temp Graves would be in the matrimonial market again next leap year.

Albert Conner spent several days last week with his brother-in-law, J. E. Rouse at Paynes Depot, Scott county. While there he attended the Lexington tobacco market, and was surprised at the large amount of tobacco that is sold there. He considers the Cincinnati market a small affair when compared to the Lexington market.

Among the business visitors to Burlington, Tuesday, were ex-County Judge Ben Stephens and son Ben, and Wm. B. A. Dulaney, of Florence; Ben Hensley and Leslie Sebree, of Plattsburg; Everett Souther, of Ft. Pleasant; Temp Graves, of Bullittsville; Chas. Garnett, of Kidville; County Engineer Goodridge, of Hebron, and others whose names are mentioned elsewhere.

Dr. J. M. Grant, of Petersburg, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Tuesday. The doctor may be growing older but that genial disposition that has always been his does not fail him. Dr. Grant has numerous friends in Burlington who are always glad to have him among them, and will always remember the many pleasant hours spent with him when he was a citizen of the town.

Malchus Souther was in Burlington, last Friday, and turned over to R. B. Huey, his successor in office as secretary of the Boone County Farmer's Insurance Company all the records and equipment of the office, and he is now an ex-secretary, while R. B. Huey wields the pen and keeps the books for that institution. Mr. Souther made a good official for the company and his successor will be as good.

GASBURG.

Look out for a big river.

Some tobacco has been sold and delivered.

Hogs are as scarce in this country as ever known.

The health of this community has been extra good so far this winter.

Early, the two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Terrill, died on the 1st inst.

Ernest Grant was hauling fifty cent corn from the bottom across the river last week.

The three oldest men in Petersburg died in 1912, to wit: Geo. Howze, 85, Mr. Calvert 84 and Tim Smith 82.

Bert Smith went out on rural route No. 2, last Monday, and got caught between the two Gunpowder creeks and had to remain over until Tuesday with the mail. Route No. 2, out of Burlington is about the worst route in the county and the carrier very nearly earns his money. He has hills, mud and creeks to contend with, and when the mud is at its worst it is the worst ever.

Bert Smith did not get in from his Monday trip out on rural route No. 3 until late Tuesday afternoon, having been water bound all that time. His horse lost a bar shoe between Burlington and Jas. Mitchel's which he hopes the finder will return to him as it is a special make.

HORSES LOVE THE SMITHY

Endearing Terms Used Led Massachusetts Animals to Run Away To Be Shod.

Scituate has a blacksmith who is so polite to animals that they go to him of their own accord. Julian Sneed is this village smith.

Scituate people accustomed to the "Whoa there," and "Git your tail outer the way" method of some other smiths, stood around and marveled when Mr. Sneed assumed his duties at the local smithy. Sneed may be heard almost any day after this fashion:

"Now, dear," in the softest of tones, "now, sweetheart, let's have your foot. Raise up now, please, dearies."

Whatever the passerby might think of this method, the horses undoubtedly approve of it.

Two horses, Lady Jane and Lady Mary, belonging to Henry T. Cole, the owner of the local livery, recently escaped from the stable. They walked to the blacksmith shop, entered, hurried up to the hitching ropes by the side of the work bench and held up their feet to be manicured, desiring to hear sweet nothings.

The story is true and goes to prove that endearing conversation can be combined with chiropody to good effect as well in a blacksmith shop as in any other place in the world.—Boston Journal.

MADE HIM STOP AND THINK

Leading Citizen Wanted to Be Remembered as Something More Than an "Old Grouch."

"I had a little lesson several weeks ago," remarked the man with the gray mustache, "and it called me in good shape."

"Go ahead," said the stout man.

"I was in the garage where I keep my car and happened to overhear a conversation among the boys. A certain man had been injured while traveling abroad—very badly injured, it was reported—and one of the boys was telling the others about it. 'The story in the paper says he can't get well,' the youngster went on.—'Did you know him, Pete?' And the boy addressed promptly replied, 'Sure. I knew th' old grouch.' Say, that hit me pretty hard. Here was a leading citizen dying and all the boy could remember about him was that he was a grouch. Yes, sir, it made me sit up and think hard. And I got in my mind that when I passed out I'd like to be remembered for something different."

He paused.

"That's worth considering," said the other man.

"Good text," said the first man.

"Good sermon," said the other.

New Women of Persia.

Persian women are essentially feminine. They want our dress, our education, our freedom, our happiness. Dress, it will be observed, comes first in the catalogue of feminine wants, but a change of dress or coiffure seems essential to all revolutionary movements.

In Teheran, in place of the face veil of white cloth, the Persian new woman now wears a small square of black net or woven horse hair; her shoes have high heels; a European skirt has taken the place of the short skirt and narrow trousers; the head kerchief is being abandoned. One lady tried to introduce an outfit to take the place of the "chuddur," leaving the face heavily veiled; but it was too revolutionary even for Teheran, and, after being mistaken for the ex-Shah in disguise, the wearer reverted in disgust to more orthodox clothes. In her home the new woman offers cigarettes instead of the water pipe.—Moslem World.

How the Eiffel Tower Moves.

That the Eiffel Tower moves daily in a vertical and horizontal sense has long been beyond doubt. Apart from the scientific laws of expansion and contraction, which inevitably affected it, one could see it during a gale swaying from side to side. But its vertical movements were a mere matter of conjecture until M. Guillaume undertook to investigate them. He shows that the great iron structure may vary an inch in height every day. The elevation or depression is not equally distributed, as only one of its sides may be affected by the rise or fall of the temperature, and thus the tower may be compared to a person shifting his weight alternately from one foot to the other.

Festival of Old Maids.

St. Catherine's Day, the festival of old maids, was celebrated gaily in the Rue de la Paix, Paris.

It is the custom in Paris dressmaking establishments for the workgirls on November 25 to crown with white caps those comrades who, during the year, have reached the age of 25. The other girls put on caps of various kinds, and carry sprigs of orange blossom. During the afternoon, if the head of the business is generous, they drink the health of the old maids in champagne.

Exception.

"How did you find the roads up around Jingleville Corners?" asked Bilkins of Slatherberry, who had just returned from a motor trip.

"Oh, I wasn't particularly stuck on them," said Slatherberry.

"Really?" said Bilkins. "Well, I guess you're the only man that wasn't. I was stuck on 'em for a whole day last year."—Harper's Weekly.

READ A HALF HOUR A DAY

How a Housewife With Intelligence Kept Herself From Drifting Into a Dull, Old Woman.

A woman who has brought up a big family on a small income, yet has managed to keep mentally alert, says it is due to a Half-Hour club.

This club has as its fixed rule that half an hour each day must be spent in solid reading. There was a leeway of 24 hours, after that there was a fine of five cents each day for failure to get through the prescribed reading.

Twice a month the club meets for discussion of the reading done and to collect fines of delinquents and spur them on to fresh effort.

The woman who told of this club says: "No one knows what it has meant to me. When you are the one woman in a family of boys, have a bushel basket of stockings to darn weekly, six children to sew for, lessons to be heard, it is a big temptation to stop reading entirely or to fritter spare minutes on novels. That half hour a day of solid reading has kept me up with the times, has rested my body and stimulated my brain, and, best of all, it has kept me from drifting into a dull old woman, of whom my sons might love, but would pity for her ignorance.

Especially if you live in a small town is such a club of importance. It is easy to stagnate, unless a conscious effort is made. The winter season is the time to start such a club among your neighbors. Do not be content with planning a half-hour reading daily for yourself. You will never hold to it without the stimulus of companionship and the broadening interest of the fortnightly meetings.

WHEN PINS WERE VALUABLE

In Years Gone By, the Humble Household Utensil Was Given Much Consideration.

The custom of making presents on New Yea's day is now practically obsolete among English speaking people, the day of gift giving now being Christmas. When pins were first invented and brought into use about the beginning of the sixteenth century they were a New Year's gift very acceptable to ladies, and money given for the purchase of them was called "pin money." This expression has since been extended to money settled by a husband on his marriage fer the private expenses of his wife. Pins made of metal, in their present form, were in use some time before the year 1543. It was during the reign of Henry VII. that "an acte for the true making of pynnes" was made in which it was enacted that the price should not exceed 6 shillings 8 pence a thousand. Pins had previously been made of box wood, bone and silver for the richer classes. Those used by the common folks were made of common wood and were, in fact, skewers.

Bacilli for Consumption.

An alleged new bacilli treatment for consumption, an alleged discovery of a Dr. Friedmann, which has been widely exploited by a newspaper syndicate, is discredited by the Journal of the American Medical association. In order to secure curative effects it is asserted that these living bacilli derived from some kind of a turtle must be injected deep into the muscles of the patient. The preparation of the remedy is secret. "The use of the fluid," says the Journal, "is probably not without danger. There is not sufficient warrant for any other attitude toward Friedmann's treatment of tuberculosis than one of critical neutrality and judicious skepticism."

Newest Pest.

The newest pest in the west and middle west is the dog. Not the prairie dog, just the common dog. He is responsible for the decline in the sheep raising industry. In many states in the section of the country once largely devoted to cattle and sheep raising, there are more dogs than there are sheep. It takes three barb wires on top of two feet of woven wire to make a fence that will keep dogs away from sheep. Kansas had 175,000 sheep and 199,000 dogs in 1910, according to the secretary of the Kansas board of agriculture.

The usual answer farmers in the west give to the question, "Why don't you keep sheep?" is "We can't keep dogs from killing them."

Fata Morgana.

The celebrated Fata Morgana, a presentation of natural "moving pictures" on an immense scale, which is occasionally seen in the Straits of Messina, is explained by a scientific writer as being a mirage, such as frequently occurs in various parts of the world. "In fact," he says, "one may see a mirage any day by looking through the strata of air overlying a hot stove, or adjacent to the side of a wall heated in the sunshine." Young scientists will be interested in verifying this statement.

New England's Advantage.

Here is how the spirits of the wise sit in the clouds and mock us. "Even at the risk of arousing western prejudice, I maintain that New England and all broken, hilly, rocky countries have a decided advantage over regions of great fertility, in that human stupidity and mole-eyed greed can never wholly divest them of forests—that their sterile crags and steep acclivities must mainly be left to wood forever."—Horace Greeley.

TIME FOR HIM TO DEPART

Youthful Lecturer, at a Loss to Know What Next to Do, Had to Be Given Strong Hint.

A young author and critic, who had come to be an authority upon a certain modern phase of education, went a few days ago to deliver his first lecture at a girls' school. He had lectured before, but never at a "young ladies' seminary;" and as two white-frocked, curly-haired ushers led him out to the platform, and he sat down beside the matronly principal among the women who made up the faculty, and faced a sea of girls' faces, he was young enough to feel a bit of embarrassment himself. It was rather difficult at first, but once the lecture was started things went all right.

He finished what he had to say and sat down. The audience and the matronly principal and the women who made up the faculty clapped their hands enthusiastically. Then the applause died down and silence settled upon the lecture hall. The young man sat on waiting for some one to say something, dimly conscious that a move of one kind or another was expected of him. But his lecture was finished; he had said all he had to say; there were no questions from faculty or students. A few of the girls began to fidget, but no one spoke.

The young man became unpleasantly aware that he was expected to do something and to do it at once; but he did not know what to do. He reflected miserably that he did not know the etiquette of a girls' school anyhow. And then there was a signal from the principal and a move in the audience, and the prettiest of the two girl ushers approached him, a little shy, determined to do her duty.

"I'm so sorry, Mr. B.," she murmured, "but I'm afraid you'll have to—you'll have to start right this minute if you want to make your train!"

OIL FOR JAPANESE UMBRELLAS

Seeds of the Rubber Plant Furnish Material for Peculiar Outfit of the Island Empire.

The vegetable oil used in making paper umbrellas in Japan is pressed out of the seeds of the rubber plant. This oil is made in the various islands famous for oil and seeds from these plants. Sandy ground is favored for the cultivation of the plant and the oil is extracted from the seeds by presses. The yield of seeds is estimated at 20 bushels an acre.

The annual production throughout Japan amounts to 350,000 bushels, from which over a gallon of oil a bushel is extracted. The oil before it is used boiled and then cooled until it can be applied by hand to umbrellas with a piece of cloth or waste. No machinery or tools are used in applying the oil. When the oiling is completed the umbrellas are exposed in the sun for about five hours. This oil is also used in making the Japanese lanterns, artificial leather, printing ink, lacquer varnishes, oil paper, and paints.—Scientific American.

Chair Built for Tramps.

Of late Bingham, Me., has been able to say that it had fewer tramps than any other town of its size in the state. The reason for this is a "tramp chair." This chair is made in the form of a common upright chair of strap iron, but is encased, the door being made of the same strap iron material. It is on wheels, and can be moved to any part of the town. Not a great while ago a tramp went to the village, and there being no lockup there, the officers had occasion to take care of the man, and he was put into the tramp chair. It is not known how long the tramp stayed there, but at least long enough so that he wanted to get out of the town as quickly as he could. He evidently got word to his brother tramps, and warned them to stay clear of Bingham, as no tramps have been seen in the town since.—Technical World Magazine.

His Appreciative Way.

"My Uncle Rinkleneck is the nicest old man!" triumphantly chortled little Jimpsey. "He never gives us improving books, nor things that are good for us or that we really need, but just things we can eat and things we can smash—things we want. And then he tells us to whale right in, blame our little skins, and have a good time, and break the stuff all up, or eat till we are sick—whichever they are made for—as quick as we please. Aw, I tell you, old Uncle Rinkleneck is all right!"

She Put Them Away.

A lady who had been giving a Christmas party told her maid to put away all the refreshments that were left on the tables before retiring to bed. The next day, on looking, the lady could not find them, and called to her maid:

"Bridget, what did you do with those things I told you to put away last night?"

"Shure, mum, and yez told me to put 'em away, and I did, mum, and enjoyed 'em."

Japanese Boys the Healthier.

Boys appear to be slightly healthier than girls in Japan, but the girls have better eyesight. According to official reports covering medical inspection of nearly 2,000,000 children in the public elementary schools, 47.7 per cent. of the boys had strong constitutions, 47.4 per cent. medium, and 4.9 per cent. weak. Of the girls, 42.7 per cent. had strong constitutions, 51.2 per cent. medium, and 6.1 per cent. weak.

HOW CHRONIC COUGHS

Are Being Cured by Vinol.

Did you ever cough for a month? Then just think how distressing it must be to have a cough hang on for three months.

Mrs. Maria Primrose, of 87 Newell Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I had a very heavy cold which settled into a chronic cough, which kept me awake nights for fully three months, and felt tired all the time because my rest was broken so much. The effect of taking your cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol, is that my cough is gone. I can now get a good night's rest, and I feel much stronger in every way."

It is the combined action of the medicinal elements, cods' livers, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of peptonic iron which makes Vinol so efficient in curing chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis—at the same time building up the weakened, run-down system.

Try a bottle of Vinol, with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

INJURY TO TRUMPET CREEPER

One of the Most Beautiful Vines Is Subject to Attacks of Small Black Beetle.

(By PROF. L. SWINEY.)

The trumpet creeper, one of our most beautiful of vines, is, compared with other ornamental plants, relatively free from pests, but it is subject to the attacks of a singular small black beetle that may injure the leaves so badly and cause them to become so unsightly as to render the plant valueless for the purposes for which it is planted.

The adult insect is a flattish elongate beetle belonging to the same family as the cucumber beetle. Seen on the leaves in July when it is abundant as an adult, it looks like a bit of bark, or other rubbish, and since it remains quiet to escape detection, with its legs folded up about the body, and drops to the ground if the leaves are disturbed, the collector is more likely to collect it by accident, than from a recognition of it as an insect.

The females begin placing their eggs promptly in June, and may be found on the plants until July 18, or thereabouts. Somewhat later they disappear, but reappear again in numbers about September 11, these being the individuals that hibernate.

The eggs are placed singly on the upper side generally over the midrib, and toward the tip of the leaflet. They are fastened down with a brown glue which hardens and gives them the appearance of being a deadened part of the leaf. This separates from the leaf readily when pried up with a needle. The adult always gouges the leaf just above the place where the egg is attached as if she meant to brand it and warn away other females bent on similar errands.

The mines made by this insect are very striking and characteristic. The larva penetrates the leaflet above the midrib and works toward the center in a straight course at first, then at intervals makes excursions to the right or left on each side of the midrib, and often reaches nearly to the margin of the leaflet before turning back and starting another. The final result is a branched mine with long curved or slightly tortuous extensions on each side of the midrib. When ready to pupate the larva returns to the center of the leaflet and pupates in the central chamber over the midrib.

Treatment for the insect is simple. The adults can be destroyed in the spring when they appear on the leaves to place their eggs by spraying with arsenate of lead.

MEASURING HAY IN STACKS

Kansas Experiment Station Issues Bulletin Giving Instructions For Doing the Work.

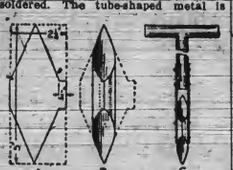
Bulletin No. 155, of the Kansas Experiment station, contains instructions for the measuring of hay in long and round stacks. The measuring of a stack or rick to ascertain the tons of hay it contains is, at best a guess. The bulletin states that when alfalfa hay has been in the stack 30 days it requires 512 cubic feet to make a ton; that when the hay has been in the stack five or six months, 422 cubic feet are calculated for a ton. In the case of old, well settled stacks, 343 cubic feet are figured as making a ton. It further says that slough hay is heavier than alfalfa and that upland prairie hays are lighter than alfalfa. Having found the contents of a stack in cubic feet, divide the number of feet required to make a ton to find the number of tons in the stack.

Sweet Corn.

No vegetable withstands severe drought and heat so well as sweet corn. It succeeds well in either hills or drills; probably in the latter plants do not blow over so much during wet and windy weather. The soil should be very rich for the best results.

WHITEWASH SURE TO STICK

Preparation Easily Made and Will Add Greatly to Appearance of Many Farm Buildings.



There are many brick and stone walls, as well as wooden outbuildings, fences and the like, about a suburban place which, lacking paint, detract much from the general appearance of the home. But paint is somewhat expensive and cannot be applied with too lavish a hand by the average citizen. There is, however, whitewash, which is easily made and applied; is inexpensive and which for most outdoor work will answer quite as well as oil paint. For chicken houses, brick walls and the like it is excellent.

To make the whitewash slake half a bushel of fresh lime with boiling water, keeping it covered during the process. The lime should not, of course, be confined, but merely covered, as confined, it possesses considerable explosive force. Strain it and add a peck of salt dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice put in boiling water and boiled to a thin paste, half a pound of powdered Spanish whiting and a pound of clear glue dissolved in warm water. Mix these well together and let the mixture stand for seven days in a reasonably cool and shaded place. Keep the wash thus prepared in a kettle, and when it is being used put it on as hot as possible, using a painter's or an ordinary whitewash brush. Always use magnesian lime for whitewash.

HOW TO MAKE WEED PULLER

Tool That Will be Found Extremely Handy on Any Farm Is Made of Heavy Galvanized Wire.

The weed puller is made of a piece of heavy galvanized iron, 5 by 5½ inches, as shown in A, and bent into the shape B. After shaping the metal, the small ¼-inch projection is placed under the opposite side and then soldered. The tube-shaped metal is then fastened to a handle with two pieces of strap iron, using bolts and rivets as shown at C.

The puller is used by pushing the sharp point of the metal into the earth, having first inserted the stalk of the weed in the hole. Then turn the handle and draw the puller out, and the weed with its roots will be removed.—Popular Mechanics.

SURE DEATH TO ALL INSECTS

Paris Green Mixed With Land Plaster Is One of the Best Preventives of Ravages of Bugs.

Paris green mixed with dry powdered land plaster or rye flour, one tablespoonful to the gallon, is the best preventive of the ravages of potato bugs, coddling moth, caterpillars, slugs and worms. If in solution mix one pound in 200 gallons of water. Buy pure freshly made paris green. A cheap kind is lacking in strength. The paris green should be applied as soon as the first worms appear. The quickest way is to sprinkle it on with the hand. An active man can cover several acres in a day. Apply early in the morning when the dew is on the leaves. Two applications will nearly always answer. In case a shower should wash off the powder, a third application will be needed. Slug shot may be used instead of paris green.

GARDEN and FARM NOTES

Take care of your surplus garden crops.

Well-graded seed grain is free from foul seed.

Corn silage has passed the experimental stage.

Millet should be cut for hay when it is just heading out.

The cultivation of kaffir corn and milo maize is very similar.

Wheat may be cut for hay when it is in blossom or shortly after it has headed.

Every season sees some new use to which explosives may be put on the farm.

Milo maize is similar in composition to Indian corn and will make very good silage.

Cement will solve the fence post problem for those who have a gravel pit near by.

Corn silage is perhaps the most economical stock food any western farmer can raise.

It doesn't pay to use old, worn-out cultivator teeth when new ones can be bought so cheaply.

Alfalfa is too good a feed to be condemned by those fellows who do not know much about it.

Fence wires that are grounded do not represent very much expense and they may prove mighty profitable in case of storm.

Sorghum has proved a very profitable crop on many of the most improved farms. It is especially good for dairy cows and hogs.

County Road Engineer.

Charles Goodridge, who was appointed county road engineer, last week, will move to Burlington, as the law requires that he have and keep an office at the county seat. His office will be on the second floor of the court house, immediately across the hall from that of county judge Cason. The appointment of Mr. Goodridge as county engineer does away with the old system of working the roads under overseers. Every county road being placed directly under his supervision. The law under which the engineer operates makes it his duty to within thirty days after the first of January if ordered by the county court and every year thereafter, to lay out and divide the county roads into sections not exceeding two miles in length, which he shall number and describe in a book kept by him for that purpose. He shall distinctly specify therein what he shall deem necessary for the improvement and keeping in repair each section of said county road for the period of one year and may also recommend the establishment and construction of such roads as he may think for the benefit of the general public.

It shall be the duty of the county road engineer to call a meeting in each magisterial district in his county, each year, of all persons interested in road work within the district. Such meeting shall be open to the general public and shall be held at a time designated by the county engineer, between the 20th day of February and the 30th day of March, notice of letting all contracts shall be given by posting hand bills at not less than two of the most public places of each road precinct, and by advertising in a paper having general circulation in the county. All bids for working the roads shall be opened by the county judge in the presence of the members of the Fiscal Court at a special meeting held for that purpose, and the fiscal court of the county shall have the right to reject any bids that may be deemed by them too high, or may be objectionable for any other good reason.

Any contractor may contract for one or more sections of road, and in purchasing a contract or contracts, shall give bond with security to be approved by the county court of the county in a sum equal to the estimated cost of the work in question, to be fixed by said court, for the performance of every contract so purchased.

The above is a synopsis of some of the most important sections of the law which is distinguished for its length and which those who have made a study of it say has some conflicting clauses.

Mr. Goodridge has the reputation of being one of the best road workers in the county, and will give the office of county engineer his entire attention, and will do all in his power to improve the condition of the roads in the county. The road money in the county is about $30 to the mile, which is a small amount considering the amount of work that should be done.

To Elect New Committees.

Under the terms of a resolution that became a part of the organic law of the Democratic party at the state convention in Louisville last May new county committees are to be chosen in each of the 120 counties of the state Saturday, Jan. 18. The Democratic voters in each of the 2,179 voting precincts of the state are to meet at two o'clock in the afternoon of the date specified. The retiring Precinct Committeeman or, should there be a vacancy existing, some qualified Democrat designated by the County Chairman, will call the meeting to order and state the purpose of the meeting. The Precinct Committeemen so selected by the voters are to serve until another state convention shall specify when and how their successors shall be chosen. On the Monday following their election, which will be Jan. 20, the Precinct Committeemen will meet at their various county seats and organize by selecting a Chairman and Secretary. In those counties containing more than one legislative district the Precinct Committeemen for each legislative district will organize by selecting a Chairman and Secretary. Calls for the precinct meetings have been prepared and are now being circulated by the various county Chairmen.

While playing Monday at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Blyth, little Laura Eloise Baldon fell and got her hand in the fire, burning it considerably.

Care of the Insane.

In recent years there has been an increasing tendency to eliminate strong wards and straight jackets in the treatment of the insane at public hospitals. A special from Athens, Onio, relates that the restraint policy has been abandoned in the State Asylum for the insane at that place with most favorable results.

There is a greenhouse connected with the asylum and many of the patients gladly employ themselves in growing and tending the flowers and plants. Masses of flowers and ferns are placed in the corridors of the building. In every ward there is a sitting-room with a piano and flowers and cushions. There is also a library where patients may get books to read. Patients who are musicians are allowed to play. The women patients are taught fancy work. Every patient who has any ray of reason left is given something to do and it is as different as possible from his or her occupation in the outside world. The superintendent of the asylum is quoted as saying: "They could do their ordinary tasks automatically and the kink in their brain would grow and grow, but when they have to apply their minds to a new task it's different."

Under the new system at Athens about 28 per cent. of the patients are being cured and all are more tractable and in better state of mind than when the old system of strong wards was in use. Now that the inmates are treated as human beings the results are more satisfactory in every way than ever before in the history of the institution.

The non-restraint policy was adopted in the Kentucky institutions for the insane a few years ago and has proved to be vastly better for the welfare of the patients. For the last four years the several hospitals have been operated practically without chemical or mechanical restraint.—C. J.

The "Perfect Woman."

The "perfect woman" who has been found among the 100 girl students to Cornell University overturns many old fashioned notions. She is not a farm girl, but city-bred, yet she is studying agriculture for a profession. She does not eat candy. She is 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighs 124 lbs.

The young lady of the fashionable novel 50 years ago had a waist that could be spanned with two hands, meaning some sixteen inches wrought by painful artifice; naturally she fainted at least once every chapter and had to be restored with smelling-salts after cutting her corset strings. Cornell's perfect woman has a 30.3 inch waist and a chest measure 43 inches larger, about the proportion of the Venus of Milo. She has never fainted has never been ill at all.

Gone is the girl who used to chew slate pencils to make her face white and was never seen abroad without her veil and parasol. Forgotten is the maxim that "the finest women, like the finest flowers, are raised under glass." The American girl of today, if gifted with the leisure, plays ten-pins and golf and courts sunlight; the chances are about five to one that she cannot possibly squeeze herself into her grandmother's wedding gown. In the great transformation favorable environment and plenty of food have scarcely had more to do than active habits and the growth of sensible ideas of physical well-being.

The delinquent tax list that appears in this issue shows how well the taxpayers of this county come to time with their taxes. It is not like it used to be when the Sheriff was compelled to borrow money with which to make his annual settlement with the State, and then fail to collect a very large per cent of the taxes that were unpaid at the close of the year. The tax payers have got in the habit of paying their taxes within the prescribed time, and they experience no inconvenience thereby and make the office of Sheriff much less hazardous to the incumbent than it use to be.

The Burlington fur dealer was down in Waterloo neighborhood last week interviewing the trappers in that section. Some times he makes extensive purchases down there, always paying the top of the market for the pelts.

For a while last Sunday morning pesdertrians confined their movements to the middle of the streets on account of the sidewalks being covered with ice. It was a bad time for old people to be out of the house, but no accidents were reported.

About this time every year bad colds are prevalent the country over and so far this winter the weather has been so mild as to encourage carelessness on the part of the people, therefore there are more cases of colds and 'grippe than there would have been had the weather been cold enough to make people exercise more care as to their health.

EDUCATION

Something That Every Boy and Girl In Boone County Should Be Ambitious to Get.

The January examination for county graduates is at hand. It is hoped that many will avail themselves of this opportunity to test their qualification to graduate from the common schools. Those who do will have achieved something of which they may justly be proud and will have opened to them the opportunity of entering one of the County High Schools or one of the other Graded High Schools of the county. This every boy and girl should be ambitious to do.

It is not intended that every graduate from the High School should expect to assume a position of leadership at once. A good education fits one to do better the most ordinary labor of life. It makes a farmer a better one and a housewife a more efficient and happy one. But for all that it seems that an educated person naturally does take a position of leadership among the people.

Howard Huey, who was the first graduate from the County High school at Burlington is now principal of the Petersburg school. From all accounts this school is doing better work than it ever did in all its history. Howard Huey is making good. First, because he has in him the natural qualities that make for success, second, because by studious application he prepared himself for the work which he is now doing. The school from which he graduated is proud to acknowledge him as its first graduate and wishes that he may continue to increase in usefulness even as he has begun.

Of the seven who graduated in 1912, three are engaged in school work in the county. Ruth Kelly is acting as supervisor and teaches two classes in the High School. The office of Supervisor is one of the most important in the entire school system and she is filling it admirably.

Johns Northcutt is teaching the most successful term that has been taught in years in his district. The newer ideas are being put into practice there to a greater extent, perhaps, than in any school in the county. The man who sets a pattern now in rural school teaching is a coming man.

Marietta Stephens is making good in another one of our rural schools.

We are pleased to learn that Robert Gaines has just been elected to the position of page in the House of Representatives at Washington. We predict that Robert will be successful there as he has always been a universal favorite.

Wilbur Kelly, in a Cincinnati Commercial College, is preparing himself for a business career. Wilbur soon discovered after leaving B. H. S. what an advantage his High School training was to him.

Alice Carver and Mary Utz are making use of their education in their homes. As suggested above one does not need to be in public life to profit by an education. It elevates the home and makes one better company for ones self.

We have it as an aim "Seventy-five students in the Boone County High School in 1913." They must come from the rural schools. You country boys and girls are entitled to an education. Take advantage of your chance by preparing yourselves to be with us when the school bell rings in September. X. X. X.

The blizzard that arrived last Friday night pinched livestock considerably, there having been no severe weather previous to that time to prepare the animals for that class of weather. It is on just such occasions as that of last Friday night that livestock needs protection from the cold blasts that sweeps over this country frequently during the winter season.

Earl Smith, who was carrying the mail on rural route No.2 out of Burlington liked to have gotten stranded away down on Gunpowder, last Friday. He had an extra good horse and managed to pull through, but he came in minus four spokes in one of his buggy wheels, while mud had accumulated on the others until they resembled the spokes in the wheel of a log wagon.

Now is a good time for the farmers to test their seed corn from which they intend to plant next spring. Bad seed caused them considerable trouble last spring, and they ought to profit by that experience. The tests can be made without cost and at very little trouble, and are calculated to save much time and trouble, the time being saved when it is worth most to the farmer.

There has been a great deal of good-roads talk all over Kentucky the past three or four months, and in some sections efforts are being made to have the talk bear fruit. It seems that the roads in this county are about like the average county roads in the State, and the same dissatisfaction as regards the roads exist in other counties that is found in Boone, and nobody has appeared who can suggest a plan for improving the public highways that it is believed will prove a success. Nearly every county in the State is having its road troubles and they all seem to be along the same lines.

ANOTHER OLD CITIZEN GONE.

Jacob Piatt, 82, Passes Away at His Home Near Lawrenceburg Ferry.

(Lawrenceburg Register.)

Jacob Piatt was born in Boone county, Ky., Dec. 1, 1830 and died Dec. 21, 1912, aged 82 years and 21 days. He was a son of Abram Sedam and Mary Coy Piatt. On October 1, 1874 he married Miss Inez C. Abbott of Milan Ripley county, Ind. To this union were born three children, Jacob Eliza and David, the latter with his widow, survive him. He was the last of the grand sons of Capt. Jacob Piatt, who served on the staff of General Washington during the Revolutionary war who was a charter member of the society of The Cincinnati, composed entirely of Revolutionary officers, as well as being one of the early pioneers of Kentucky. Mr. Piatt's entire life was spent in Kentucky, where he followed the simple, peaceful life of a farmer. He was a loving husband and father, an open-handed generous friend and his name and his home were synonyms of hospitality.

At the meeting of the Boone county rural mail carriers held in Burlington, last Wednesday, every route in the county, except Burlington No. 3, was represented. A county association of rural carriers was organized, and officered as follows: R. F. DeMoisey, of Walton rural route, president; William Hughes, Burlington rural route No. 1, vice-president; Ernest Ryle, of Grant rural mail route, corresponding secretary. The next meeting will be held in Florence at the home of James Tanner, the rural carrier there. The boys were in session several hours, not a moment of which was allowed to drag. Besides the social feature the carriers expect to derive considerable benefit from the association, the meetings of which will be looked forward to with much interest by the members of the association. Here is hoping that the carriers will reap many benefits by reason of their organization.

Burlington rural route No. 2 was not represented at the meeting because it had no regular carrier at that time, it being supplied by Earl Smith, a substitute.

There is an effort being made to get Gov. McCreary to enter the contest for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. It is believed at this end of the line that the Governor will not be induced to throw his hat into the ring, as the people elected him Governor to be Governor and not to use that office as a stepping stone to the U. S. Senate. The financial condition of Kentucky is such that it requires the most careful attention, which it would be impossible for Governor McCreary to give it should he enter the Senatorial contest. It will be wisdom on the part of the Governor to turn a deaf ear to every entreaty to become a candidate for Senator, and give the people of Kentucky his best efforts trying to remedy the conditions of affairs that are calculated to bring the old State into bad repute in the financial world. Gov. McCreary has been honored beyond any other son of the State and his taste for official position should not lead him to an indiscretion of becoming a candidate for U. S. Senator.

Bert Smith went out with the mail on route No. 2 last Monday morning. Mr. Smith had the advantage of an acquaintance with the route, having made several trips over it as sub. for Mr. Conley while he was the carrier. It is not known yet who will be appointed as carrier on the route. As soon as made the appointment will be reported to the Burlington postmaster.

The water courses got on a high last Monday and kept some from attending county court who otherwise would have been in Burlington that day.

MILLIONS OF DOLLARS SAVED

And Land Prices steadily Advance Through the Operations of The Parcels Post.

For the past fifteen years the American farmers have made great financial advancement thru their ability to sell at fine prices the products of their farms, and in the same series of years those farms have yielded them very satisfactory harvests in amounts.

Conditions at this time warrant the belief that these prosperous times for the farmers will not only continue but that the future will bring still larger returns to the agricultural classes in the United States.

The elimination of the middleman is steadily progressing in all classes of business, and the more direct relations that are being established between producers and the ultimate consumers are sure to increase the prices to be received by the farming interests of the United States.

The establishment of the parcels post on January 1st next will prove of immense advantage to the farmers of the country, both in their selling and shipping of commodities they produce and in buying and receiving through the mail the many articles they desire to purchase from what are known in trade as "first hands" in the business of distribution.

Millions of dollars per annum will be made and saved to the farmers of the U. S. through the operations of the parcels post.

The system of rural banks which is to be organized to extend financial assistance to the farmers seems to have the unanimous support of the leaders of social thought and political action in the country and to have little or no opposition from the strong financial interests, and it seems now very probable that before 12 months have elapsed this system will be in operation in the United States.

The vigorous promotion of the farming interests by the National and State Legislatures, the more thorough tuition now given to agriculturists through the various state and county associations, and by the well directed and widely circulated agricultural publications weekly and monthly cannot fail to produce results very profitable to the farmers and very beneficial to the general interests of the country.

Carrying to its logical conclusion this combination of potent factors, favorable to agricultural prosperity, it makes it a certainty that prices of farming lands will continue to advance to much higher figures in the future.

The population of the United States increases by hundreds of thousands of persons every month, and the aggregated millions added to that population each year intensifies the demands for the products of the farm, broadens the market for all that farmers have to sell.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

High Price for Land.

The high at price ever paid for Grant county real estate of a like area, was paid for eight acres of land off the Blackburn subdivision at Dry Ridge last week. The purchase price, according to Mr. Blackburn, was $25,000, or a little more than $3,000 an acre. The land lies directly in the rear of the Baptist church, north of Broadway and south of the Warsaw pike. It constitutes the most desirable part of the holdings of Mr. Blackburn at Dry Ridge. In addition to the land, the syndicate secures a perpetual water right to the Blackburn lake, an artificial body of water, close to the land purchased.

The purchasers are a syndicate of Cincinnati capitalists, among whom it is said are numbered French Bros. and B. H. Kroger.

The purpose of the syndicate it is claimed, is to erect a modern hotel and sanitarium to cost about half a million dollars.

They will begin drilling within the next four weeks, and hope to find the same sort of mineral water that flows from the famous Carlsbad well which is owned by Mr. J. B. Sanders, and which has proven an attractive drawing card for hundreds of people seeking relief from rheumatic and other complaints.—Grant County News.

Big Cattle Deal.

The largest cattle sale made in Boyle county in many years was closed Tuesday, when Mr. J. C. Caldwell sold 323 head of extra high class exporters to Mr. Fox, of this city, and Mr. James Brown, of Chicago. The entire bunch averaged 1425 pounds and the price was $7.55 per hundred. It took eighteen freight cars to transport the exporters to New York. They were bought for the New York Butchers Dressed Meat Company. The total purchase price was $36,000.—Danville Advocate.

Gov. McCreary has appointed Superintendent of Schools Edgar C. Riley, of this county, one of the delegates to the Fourth International Congress of School of Hygiene, which will meet in Buffalo, New York, August 25th. All the delegates appointed by the Governor are educators.

The parcel post will be of untold value to business everywhere. The Times has already felt the benefit of this new law. It is so easy now to send job work to rural parties at a very small cost. —Clay City Times.

W. S. Thomas was the first to receive a package by parcel post on January 1, G. O. Patterson following quickly with the second. Mr. Patterson aspired to be the first sender of a package, but Coleman Goering is winner of that honor.—Hawesville Clarion.

Clyde LaMond was the first resident of Morganfield to send a parcel post package thru the Morganfield office. He sent a package to Louisville that would have cost him not less than 25 cents by express and 16 cents by mail. The parcel post charge was six cents.—Morganfield Sun.

Judging from the number of packages being held in the local postoffice because of the failure of those who mailed them to comply with regulations of the new addition to the postal department, Paducans do not yet thoroughly understand the parcel post law.—Paducah News-Democrat.

—!!—

The volumn of business, while not as heavy as anticipated, indicates that the parcel post service is to be used by a great number of shippers, both individuals and concerns. Eighty-one packages, a total of 109 pounds, were shipped from the local post office Thursday. Seven dollars' worth of parcel post stamps were sold from the time the windows opened until they closed at seven o'clock.—Owensboro Messenger

—!!—

The first package by parcel post to arrive at Mt. Vernon postoffice was received by Jas. Mc ret from Dr. M. Pennington, of Bertha, Ky., containing a New Year's gift of fruits, candies, etc. The postage was two five cent stamps of the new variety, which will be filed away as souvenirs. The express on this package would have been 25 cents, therefore a saving of 60 per cent.—Mt. Vernon Signal.

Postmaster Mathews was kinder astonished yesterday when the big truck of the Ohio Valley Pulley Works backed up to the mail receiving doors of the postoffice and after an hour's work deposited on the floors and tables 1,000 one pound packages, each containing a bulky 365 date pad calendar, which the company is sending out to its customers, past and prospective as a Christmas present. The packages are larger than the average cigar box, neatly wrapped and packed and they go to nearly every country on the globe.—Maysville Public Ledger.

Hopkinsville, Jan. 2.—The sweetest lot of mail ever received here was a pouch of letters and registered mail tonight in which a jug of molasses that had been sent by parcel post had broken. In breaking the jug had made a complete smash of it and the molasses had escaped from the package and covered everything else in the pouch. The clerks found it a proposition to get the molasses cleaned off the other mail. Nearly everybody who got a letter from that pouch noticed the sticky condition of the envelope. The molasses was sent as an ordinary parcel post package and was not insured, therefore the sender is not entitled to recover for it.

Cabinet Makers at Sea.

Princeton, N. J., Jany. 5.—President-elect Wilson tonight made it clear that nobody in the United States knew, as yet, who was going to be in his cabinet, or what would be the program he would suggest to Congress. He said he had not offered a single cabinet portfolio to anyone and had as yet reached no conclusions as to plans for the extra session.

Mr. Wilson stated that while he had canvassed a variety of subjects and had talked over many names with Democratic leaders, he had not given a definite intimation in any direction either as to his selections or what his course with respect to legislation would be. He indicated, however, that he expected the extra session would not be devoted exclusively to the tariff qucation and said he would in a special message, specify some of the subjects upon which he would like to see legislation enacted.

The President-elect admitted he is finding the task of cabinet making very difficult. He said would delay any announcements until he can name his entire cabinet.

Close of Quail Season.

The season for hunting quail in Kentucky has expired. With great majority of the hunters it was not a profitable season.

Few localities in the State have reported an abundance of quail. Thousands of hunting licenses were issued, but in rare cases was game found in appreciable quantities. Many of the birds perished during the severe weather last winter and the heavy rains last spring. There was much snow and ice on the ground in the winter and the birds were unable to procure food in sufficient quantities to enable them to withstand the cold, except in instances where they were fed by farmers. As comparatively few farmers take the trouble to give the quail any assistance of this kind the mortality among the birds was heavy.

The quail is a valuable helper to the farmer and there ought to be some reciprocity. The farmer should help the quail at such times as help is needed, and those times come when the fields are covered for days with ice and snow. If the bird's lives are saved during winter by the farmer's efforts they will amply repay the debt in the spring by destroying millions of insects which otherwise would menace the crops.

Now that the open season is passed the quail should be protected. They have been butchered in season and out of season in the past, and that is the chief reason why they are so few in number in most localities at present. The true sportsmen will not kill them out of season and others should not be allowed to kill them.

Financing The Farmer.

It is singular that the United States has been so long in awakening to the tremendous importance of farming as an industry, and to our inadequate provisions for financing the farmer. Agricultural credit societies are now a leading topic of discussion and occupy page after page of newspapers and magazines. The organizations abroad are being studied with a view to adapting them in American conditions. And the fact has been brought forcefully home that each of the agricultural credit societies abroad is buttressed by a scientific banking system. Not one could do extensive good without such support. Before we can finance the farmer as he deserves, our uncientific banking system must be reformed.—Ex.

A deed of assignment was filed Friday by Harris Fitch for his hardware and implement business in this city, Jas. C. Fitch, a younger brother, being named as receiver. The latter filed a bond for $20,000. Mr. Fitch has been conducting his hardware business in Lawrenceburg for nearly thirty-five years, and had one of the largest stores of its kind in southeastern Indiana. That a larger stock of goods was carried by Mr. Fitch than the trade possibilities of the community justified is said to be the principal cause for the failure of the business.

The assets are estimated as being $12,000 to $15,000, including real estate and the hardware stock, while the liabilities will probably reach $24,000.

Studying the needs of automobile lead John W. Oberting into the field of invention, with the result that he has perfected a gasoline saving device which promises to richly reward the inventor and to prove of incalculable value to automobile owners. Briefly Mr. Oberting has devised a valve arrangement and a novel mechanism which is guaranteed and possibly 25 per cent. In addition it makes auto motors practically self starting, and also prevents the accumulation of carbon. A test on auto trucks consuming from fifteen to twenty gallons of gasoline daily h as satisfactorily demonstrated the utility and economy of the invention. Mr. Oberting calls his device the Hoosier godevil. He has applied for a patent and is arranging for its manufacture on contract, he to manage the selling. The godevil will be exhibited at the New York automobile show this month, and at the Chicago and Detroit shows in February.

Here is a remedy that will cure your cold. Why waste time and money experimenting when you can get a preparation that has won a world-wide reputation by its cures of this disease and can always be depended upon? It is known everywhere as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and is a medicine of real merit. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

AVOID SPREADERS OF GLOOM

Chronic Grumblers and Avowed Discontented Persons Are Never the Best of Companions in Life.

The chronic grumbler is not a good companion nor in any way an admirable person. We fly from her as from a contagious disease. Nothing so certainly affects one's spirits as being in the constant company of a person who has a grievance.

The cherishing of discontent with our circumstances, business, dress, or any other thing in life soon robs us of beauty and marks the countenance with the lines of worry and ill temper that tell their own unhappy story.

Why anybody who is young should indulge in grumbling as a pastime is one of the puzzles that never is solved, yet such people there are, and we meet them to our sorrow almost every day.

If they happen to be passengers on a railway train they pile their bags and bundles on an extra seat for which they have not paid, are conveniently blind to the weariness of other passengers who are standing, and assume the aspect of martyrs when the conductor courteously but peremptorily informs them that they must make room.

They object to having the windows open, although the air may be loaded with impurities from the congestion of the crowd; they scold and fret at the throng or the conductor and rail at Providence in general because everything in life is not arranged with a view to their comfort.

RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SLUM

Society Can Not Ignore Its Share of Blame When the Facts Are Brought to Light of Day.

Children work out their destiny along the lines of environment. If two infants, one born in a slum hovel and the other in a palace, were exchanged on the day of birth, each would work out his destiny in accordance with his surroundings. The child of the hovel would grow up to the palace. The child of the palace would remain on the level of the slum hovel.

While a noted physician was making these statements before a body of learned colleagues, a jury in Chicago found three boys, aged consecutively seventeen, eighteen and nineteen years, guilty of murder and convicted them to long terms in prison. The slayers were all slum products. Their youth saved them from hanging.

Society cannot afford to wax sentimental over a murderer because of his youth. Its duty, in self-preservation, is to inflict punishment. A part of this self-preservation duty, however, is to prevent the growth of murderers. In so far as society allows slums to exist and other degrading influences to be fostered, it is not without responsibility for the criminal.

Wanted—Woman.

For a good many years now all civilised nations have had the census, in order to determine scientifically the approximate conditions of population at home and throughout the world. Some of the statistics relating to the porportions of the sexes in different parts are interesting.

The total population of the world is estimated to be 1,700,000,000, and the proportion is said to be 1,000 men and 990 women.

The proportion varies considerably according to the region. In Europe there are, for each 1,000 men, 1,027 women; in Africa, 1,045; in America, 964; in Asia, 961; in Australia, 937.

The maximum feminine population is in Uganda, where there are 1,467 women to each 1,000 men, and the minimum in the gold countries of Alaska and in Malaysia, where there are found only 391 and 589 women, respectively to each 1,000 men.—Harpers' Weekly.

Encouraging Generosity.

One of the cleverest of Cleveland's blind newspaper mafchants takes his stand daily at one of the corners of the public square. He's got a sarcastic little sign that reads:

"Don't be ashamed to give me a penny—I'm blind."

The other day a friend of ours dropped a nickel in front of this chap, just to see if he was faking. The blind never shifted his blank gaze, but he said:

"Make it a quarter, boss, and I'm likely to forget myself."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

One Can Write in the Dark.

A novelty is a penholder permitting one to write in the dark, since it is provided with an electric light. The tube through which the point of the pencil goes is fitted with a small accumulator and an electric lamp. The latter throws a disk of light over the point where the writing is being done. This luminous pencil has been invented for the use of doctors, reporters, detectives, etc., whose work necessitates the taking of notes in the streets and in darkness.—Harper's Weekly.

Was Misquoted.

The king of the hobos slouched into the office of The Daily Bread to make a complaint.

"You th' editor?" he asked.

"Yes."

"In yore paper this morain' you said I made a talk to th' boys last night on 'How to Be at Work All th' Time.'"

"Well?"

"You got it wrong. Th' subjeck of my little talk was 'How to Beat Work All th' Time.' I want it c'rected, mister. That's all."

LOOK ON THE CHEERFUL SIDE

After All, What Is the Use of Letting Worry Get the Upper Hand in the Journey Through Life?

Did you ever cross a room while you were busy and worried and catch a sight of your face in the glass or window.

Nine times out of ten your jaws are set, your eyes are hard, and the expression of your face would discourage the most enthusiastic optimist in the world.

The next time you catch yourself looking like that, stop and ask yourself what under the shining sun are you sulking about.

Everybody has a sense of humor, or if they have not they should have; so call it into play at once and talk to yourself, and keep on talking until you begin to laugh at yourself and the great big trouble that made you look like a scowling dog. What will you talk to yourself about?

Oh, any merry little thing that once occurred in your life—some pleasant surprise, some happy day—anything will do.

This is no foolish advice I am giving you, for, seriously, there is more in this looking cheerful than you can dream of. It is not half as feeble minded as it sounds. Try it for a few weeks and prove it for yourself.

Don't overdo it, of course, but let your face express good will and cheer and comfort, and the first thing you know you will feel it.

You cannot entirely forget your cares; nor would it be right to do so.

Every one has cares; they are good for us. The real God sent cares that test the strength of our souls—all of us have those, too; but let us meet them like real women.—Chicago Tribune.

UMBRELLA ALWAYS AT HAND

For Small Sum, Subscriber Is Guaranteed Protection From the Sudden Shower.

The Belgians have just founded a company whose originality will be hard to beat. This is the Umbrella Lending society.

The company has a capital of several million francs, and half as many umbrellas and its object is to save people from the trouble of buying and carrying these occasionally useful but cumbersome articles about when not in actual employ.

Subscribers pay $1 a year, and are given an aluminum counter with a number. It is much easier evidently to carry a counter than an umbrella.

If the subscriber is caught in the rain all that he has to do is to go into the nearest restaurant, tobacco shop, or big store, and in return for his ticket he is immediately furnished with a respectable umbrella.

When the sun comes out again he enters the first similar establishment and deposits his umbrella in exchange for another counter.—Stray Stories.

Concerning Apple Pies.

If you ask a man what sort of pie he will take, and he hesitates a moment, he is pretty sure to blurt out apple. That is always a sure thing. Custard, lemon, peach, blackberry, mince, all depend; there is always some doubt as to their manufacture and the quality of the concomitants; but with apple pie all is not so. Apple pie is itself; it reigns in its own right; it suggests no doubts; it is always safe. Therefore it will be gratifying news that the apple crop this year is a bumper. There will be a yield of 105,000,000 bushels. That will make about sixty pies to every man, woman and child in the country; and this will give an ordinary piece of pie to every inhabitant every day in the year. Was there ever a nation so highly favored that it could have apple pie for every person every day? Thus nature and enterprise kindly and bountifully minister to the taste of all the people.—Ohio State Journal.

The Going of Ulysses.

A Kansas City man said he always preferred red-headed office boys to any other kind, as he had found them to be unusually sagacious and alert; but he discovered recently that some of them are too much so. One day, returning from a short out of town trip, he went to his office and mentioned interrogatively that Ulysses, his promising assistant, was nowhere in sight, and the stenographer replied that he had not shown up.

Lifting up the last mail on his desk he found a note addressed to him in a very familiar, broad, vertical handwriting.

"Dear Mr. Cross," he said, "please accept my resignation to take effect yesterday. I got a better place with less work and more pay. Respectively "ULYSSES S. G. PARKER."

Dickens in Australia.

It is said that when a Scotsman leaves old Scotia to make his home in some other land he solaces his exile with the book of Robert Burns' poems, and that the Scot abroad comes to be even better versed in the rhymes of the peasant poet than the Scot who has remained at home. It has been remarked that the same is true as regards the Englishman and Charles Dickens. W. M. Hughes, acting prime minister of Australia, goes further than this and asserts that Dickens had an important influence on Australian democracy, and through men who read him and loved him, men imbibed his hatred of shams and humbuge, who wanted freer and better conditions, to have some other place to look to than the workhouse, had made Australia what it is today.

is not more marvelous than is the evolution of this magnificent Greencastle Cabinet.

¶Milady formerly stood on a step ladder or a chair to fill her flour bin. Now, the bin gently descends to the table to be filled.

¶Mother's Cabinet had swinging doors that would not open or close until she cleared the table. Now, Daughter's Cabinet has handsome sliding doors that disappear inside like a roll-top desk. Grandma had a Cabinet with a tin sugar bin nailed to the door; Granddaughter's has an ant proof, automatic valve, crystal glass one, swinging to the Cabinet side.

¶Mother and Grandmother hid their ironing-boards behind the kitchen door. In our Cabinet an Ironing-board instantly comes from underneath the table top, and when ironing is done, Presto—out of sight it goes.

Don't buy a Cabinet until you see this.

WORLD OWES DEBT TO WOMAN

Fostering of Agriculture Has Been From the Beginning of Time in Female Hands.

Agriculture today depends chiefly upon the work of the primeval woman. We are indebted to the nomad's wife for the greatest of all economic services. She tamed the young of the more tamable animals, gave them to her savage husband, and made of him the more civil herdsman who for ages followed his flocks after the manner of Jacob and Lot and Job. This fertile wife of the nomad became the wife of farmers, and she made a farmer of her son by placing in his hand the precious seed of the grains, the present basis of agriculture, the bread of man, and the concentrated food of all our domestic animals.

Where did this ancient mother get these precious seeds? In many cases we do not know, and cannot even guess. She found some plant with one or two rich seeds, planted them, and then generation after generation her descendants picked over their little grain patches, selecting seeds to be preciously preserved from the harvest festival to the next spring planting festival, which we now call Easter. By this process running on through unknown generations of men, the plants became so changed by the artificial application of Darwin's law of selection that now no botanist dares suggest what plant or plants were the wild forebears of some of the present grains from which the world today obtains its bread.

We are indebted to this cave or tent dwelling woman. But shall we accept her work as final? Can science do no better than follow along the path she laid out? The fact that agricultural science is today doing little more than this is one of the pathetic illustrations of the smallness of our view.—Prof. J. Russell Smith, in Harper's Magazine.

IN HOUSES OF CORNSTALK

Primitive Dwelling Places That Are Occupied by the Poorest Class of Egyptian Peasants.

On the outskirts of Alexandria we passed numerous groups of Bedouins, camping by the side of the Mahmoudieh canal. Out in the fields men and women, dressed alike in the loose cotton gown of the country, were busily at work. The fields were dotted with curious doorless structures made of cornstalks. They are used as temporary homes at certain seasons of the year, as, for instance, when the crops are being gathered.

Later on I entered one, and found it to be not more than five feet square; one could not stand upright inside. The place contained nothing but a few jars and cooking utensils. In the winter the occupants wrap themselves up in their clothes at night, covering the heads also, but leaving the feet bare. The hut I saw was occupied by a man and his son. These people, of course, are the fellaheen—the peasants—the pure Egyptian of the poorest class.—Christian Herald.

13,000 Miles of Silver.

The greatest money count in the history of the United States is now on. Every piece of money in the country's billion-bulging treasury must be handled and each security fingered. A corps of men—the most expert money counters in the world—will work at the task day and night, but it will take them sixty days to finish it. There are 156,708,960 silver dollars alone in this vast sum. Much of the coin counting is done by weighing, but there is an ingenious machine which digests silver dollars, quarters and halves and counts them as fast as a man can turn the handle. If the silver dollars were stacked one on top of another, they would tower 835 miles high. If they could be laid in a continuous line, each touching the other, the silver horde would stretch out for a distance of 13,000 miles.—Robert D. Heinl in Leslie's.

Egyptian Justice.

In ancient Egypt all court business was carried on in writing, in order that the decision might not be influenced by oratory or personal appeal. The laws lay before the judges upon a table, and the accuser declared in writing how he had been injured, whereupon the defendant stated in writing what he had to say. Then came a rejoinder from each party to the case, after which the judges deliberated among themselves until they had hit upon the proper legal penalty for the party who had in the meantime been adjudged guilty. This point being reached the president of the judges touched with an image of Thmei, the "Goddess of Truth," the manuscript of the guilty pleader and the case was over.

The President.

The president of the United States has nothing whatever to do with the making of the laws of the individual states or of the United States. He is purely and simply the national executive, his business being to carry out the laws that are made by the congress. In order to be able to make laws the president would need to be an absolute monarch, like the czar of Russia or the Sultan of Turkey. As it is, he is simply the head servant of the people, with his duties clearly laid down in the constitution, and from which he cannot deviate. Instead of making the laws the laws are made by the legislative servants of the people for him to execute.

TO DEAL DEATH IN SILENCE

Military Man Seek Devices That Will Do Away with the Noise Now Made by Aeroplane.

Noise of battle has always been considered an indispensable part of warfare. It is, however, a thing unnecessary and undesirable. The efficiency of a gunpowder weapon is measured by its killing capacity. The more noise it makes the fewer it kills. The booming battery is like the rattlesnake. Audibly it warns of its presence. The snake that does low strikes silently claims the most victims. The Maxim silencer is intended to make guns less noisy and more useful in their specific field of activity. The quite noiseless gun would be more desirable than the wholly smokeless powder from the standpoint of the warrior. Now comes the complaint that the military aeroplane is deprived of much of its usefulness because of the tremendous noise of its whirring propellers. At night, when the flyers dart about above the darkened camps, their presence is advertised to the ear. In daylight they have to fly high to dodge bullets, at night they might swoop down low enough to gain accurate information were it not for the inevitable noise. Therefore the inventors are striving to devise a noiseless aeroplane. If noiselessness is desirable in warefare how much more is it to be sought in humdrum times of peace? The business of war is to destroy life, and noise is a handicap. The business of peace is to prolong life, and to make life happy, and noise is a still greater handicap. Cities are becoming saner. They are, by ordinance, putting the muffler on some kinds of utterly senseless clamor. But there remain many cacophonies that might easily be eliminated. Anti-noise societies should find cheer and comfort in the fact that even war is falling in line for their reform. War would seem to be the final stronghold of noise, and silent battles the last dream of the optimist.

DANGEROUS ONLY IN PANIC

Hippopotami Will Not Attack Man Unless Impelled by Unreasoning and Blind Fear.

The hippopotamus which attacked Sir John Kirk and Livingstone was, no doubt, a "bachelor." Speaking of the hippopotami of the Chobe, Livingstone says that, "as certain elderly males are expelled from the herd, they become soured in their temper, and so misanthropic as to attack every canoe that comes near them. The herd is never dangerous except when a canoe passes into the midst of it when all are asleep, and some of them may strike the canoe in terror. As a rule, these animals flee the approach of man. The 'solitaires,' however, frequent certain localities well known to the inhabitants on the banks, and, like the rogue elephants, are extremely dangerous." Livingstone learnt that, when attacked by one, you should dive to the bottom and keep there a few seconds, since the hippo soon moves off if he finds nobody on the surface.

Odd Greek Superstition.

The belief, illustrated in the ballad of The Bridge of Arta, that a human victim is required to insure the stability of a bridge or building survives in Greece today, J. A. Lawson says.

There is no murder now. It suffices to obtain, preferably from an enemy or an old person, a hair, nail paring, shred of clothing, old shoe or a thread or stick marked with the person's height or footprint measure, and bury these beneath the foundation stone. The victim dies within a year, but the building is safe.

Even a shadow will do. Mr. Lawson was himself dragged back by a friend in Santorini so that his shadow might not fall across such a fatal spot; and the mayor of Agrinian told him that his four predecessors had all died from letting their shadows fall on foundation stones laid by them.

Gentle Reprimand.

As a young woman attired in a neat blue suit entered a street car a man his head buried in a newspaper, arose and offered his seat. With a curt nod the young woman accepted, and as soon as she had composed herself she became interested in the contents of her shopping bag. In spite of his apparent abstraction, the man with the newspaper watched her for a moment. Then, speaking hurriedly, he said:

"I beg your pardon, what is it—what did you say?"

The young woman lifted her eyes, and, seeing that she was addressed, answered coolly: "I said nothing, sir."

"Beg pardon, beg pardon," was the absent-minded answer. "I thought you said 'Thank you.'"—Milwaukee Free Press.

Life Under Pressure.

The bed of the Arctic seas is very fine and plastic, while in the other zones of the Atlantic the bed is covered with reddish mud and an accumulation of the remains of animals that lived in the surface waters, died and slowly sank.

The pressure of these increases about one atmosphere to nearly every 33 feet, so every additional 330 feet adds the pressure of ten atmospheres. When deep-sea fishes are brought to the surface they lose their scales, their teguments become brittle, and they are so inflated by internal distension caused by the lessened pressure that in many cases they burst asunder.

WORLD'S DEBT TO THE AGES

Modern Progress, Thoroughly Analyzed, Not So Much of an Improvement on the Past.

Not by a great deal are all the old-fashioned things admirable, but by no means are they all inferior and out of date because they are old-fashioned. The best of them we may strain all our modern resources to equal, and not do it. The best products of old-fashioned training and education are still models for contemporary semi-

So far back as we can reach into the history of mankind we find great people, easily the equals, and often the superiors, of our very best in mental and moral qualities. One good luck is not that we are superior to them in our human material, but that we have at our service an immensely greater accumulation of knowledge, mostly about material things. Thanks to that, we understand the laws of nature much better than our fathers did, and that has helped us to make wonderful machines, and put them to doing, after their fashion, what used to be done by fingers, brains, and brawn. But spiritually we got our highest inspiration two thousand years ago, and have been trying ever since to reach up to it; and mentally, though we use better tools, we are no better, surely, than Pythagoras or Aristotle or the author of the Book of Job and hundreds of thinkers who must have long preceded any of them.—E. S. Martin, in Harper's Magazine.

SALLY'S LOSS, LONDON'S GAIN

How Maid Servant Lost Husband and Wealth and City Became Possessed of Fine Hospital.

That bequests to individuals and to public benevolences are frequently the result of a mere whim or of caprice, has no better illustration, perhaps, than the case of Thomas Guy, who built and endowed the great Guy's hospital of London, at a cost of £238,292 nearly two hundred years ago. Guy had a maid servant of strictly frugal habits, who made his wishes her careful study. He resolved to make her his wife. The necessary preparations were made for the wedding; and among others many little repairs were ordered by Mr. Guy in and about his house. The latter included the laying of a new pavement opposite the street door. It so happened that Sally, the bride-elect, observed a piece of pavement beyond her master's house that required mending, and of her own accord she gave orders to the workmen to do this. This was done in the absence of Mr. Guy, who on seeing more work done than he had ordered was informed that the additional work had been done by the mistress's orders. Thereupon Guy told Sally she had forgotten her position, and added: "If you take upon yourself to order matters contrary to my instructions before we are married, what will you not do after? I renounce my matrimonial intentions toward you." So Sally lost a rich and grouchy husband and London gained a noble institution for her poor.

Woman's Story.

A lady wrote to 25 friends and told them she was giving a "white elephant" party, and that each guest was to come and bring the absolutest most useless thing she possessed. And the whole 25 women turned up with their husbands!

Another lady was giving what is called a book tea—each guest to wear, pinned on her dress, something to represent the name of some book. The name of each book had been guessed, with one exception.

The lady who still puzzled everyone wore a photograph of her husband on her bodice. No one could guess the name of the book she intended the picture to represent, and after they had all given it up" she told them—"Life's Handicap."

Grotesque Names for Children.

Certain philanthropic Londoners have proposed a Guild of Godparents to save innocent children from the burden of grotesque names. Hundreds of examples of this poor form of parental wit occur in the birth registers for the past few years. Noah's Ark Smith, Sardine Box, Jolly Death, Judas Iscariot Brown, One-Too-Many Johnson, Not-Wanted Smith, Bovril Simpson, Merry Christmas Figgett, Odious Heaton and Anno Domini Davis are the names of children probably living who will have to bear them through life.

Portuguese Jury Drew Lots.

A new method of administering justice was applied recently at Villa Franca de Xira in Portugal.

A prisoner was charged with counterfeiting, and as the jury were evenly divided and could not agree they determined to draw lots. Two pieces of paper were procured, one was inscribed "guilty" and the other "innocent." They were then folded up, shuffled, and one was then chosen by a juryman.

It happened to be the one inscribed "guilty," whereupon the prisoner was sentenced to the maximum penalty.

Legal Point of View.

First Lawyer—I was looking over my boy's geometry lesson last night. I was quite interested in that proposition, that the three angles of a triangle are equal to two right angles.

Second Lawyer—That isn't very complicated.

First Lawyer—No, but I was trying to think what a man could do if he had the other side of the case.

EARLIEST EASTER SINCE 1856

The Spring Feast Day Will Come on March 23, 1913.

When Mayor Gaynor said the other day that New York City had been caught napping he was not thinking of Easter; he was thinking of steamship piers. But being caught napping when one should be building long piers for long steamers is no more embarrassing than waking up to find your annual spring holiday knocking at the door with the thermometer below freezing, and snow on [illegible] and your "spring things" still in moth balls or at best in a still unfinished state at the tailor's, the milliner's or the dressmaker's. And that is the predicament New York may find itself plunged in when dawns the morning of March 23, 1913.

That is the date on which Easter Sunday falls this—beg pardon, next—year. With cries of "Do your Christmas shopping early" still ringing in the atmosphere not many people have thought of other holidays to conquer. But as a matter of cold perhaps literally cold, record let it here be set down that Easter will arrive promptly on March 23, and that it hasn't arrived so early since the good old days of 1856, when there was no Easter parade and folks had not taken to blossoming out in brand-new almost summery attire in honor of the occasion.

If you were to take the Fourth of July and present it to the 90,000,000 or so citizens of this land in mid-June, or if you were to grant them Christmas and all that goes with it early in December, the upheaval would be no greater than it will be when Easter makes its untimely appearance in the blustering, stormy, cold, cheerless and altogether unliked and disagreeable month of March—the month of the great blizzard of '88 and other regrettable things atmospheric. Whatever comfort there is in knowing that Easter came as early as this 57 years ago, or even a day earlier in 1818, or even two days earlier in the year 387 A. D. in that part of the world known as Gaul—may be extracted at will.—Springfield Republican.

Some Household Hints.

Cut out the parlor and make a living-room of it. You will all live the longer for it.

Graham entire wheat or white bread crumbs are all good to use for coating croquettes.

Things to keep sweet—The milk pail, the dish-cloth the kitchen sink, the syrup cup and your temper.

Wire the stove pipe so that it will not shake apart with the jar of the sotve or the travel across the floor.

Butter "shortens" less than the same quantity of lard, etc., because it contains considerable milk or curd and water.

If a half a teaspoonful of baking powder is added to the milk used in preparing mashed potatoes, they will be fluffy and light.

Citron may be sliced easily if laid in a small strainer and laid on the top of the teakettle for a few minutes; the steam softens it.

Make a little flour and water paste and wet the edge of the lower pie crust; then press down upper crust carefully and the juices will not escape.

When the men folks have been out a good while in the cold, have some good hot soup for supper. This will send the cold flying and make the heart glad.

Have a shelf in the cellar-way for the basin in which you get your potatoes, and keep it there. No hunting for it then; it is always right on your way down to the cellar.

To keep fruit jellies from molding put an even half inch of sugar over the top after the jelly is cool, and cover the glass with thick paper dipped in the white of an egg.

Revenue From Automobiles.

Secretary of State Crecelius has filed a report with Auditor Bosworth and turned into the State Treasury at Frankfort, $37,975 collected as taxes on motor vehicles during the last 6 months of the year just closed. There was $9,263.30 collected from this source during the first half of the year, making a total of $37,260.30 collected during the year. The automobile bill became effective June 14, 1910, and the collections from that date to December 31, 1911, amounted to $45,325.30, which shows that the automobile business is on the increase.

It is the general belief that ere long the parcels post will force the express rates down low enough where the people can reach them without taking all there is in the pocketbook. Many high up, who fought the parcels post, now realize that its coming post, now realize that its coming will prove a great benefit to the people in general. The government will give it every test and hope to show it a wonderful improvement.—Winchester Democrat

Every time the board of supervisors of tax convenes there is a period of bad weather Just why this is the case nobody knows.

A considerable batch of matter that was mailed at Walton Tuesday afternoon for the Recorder failed to reach the office.

Although the weather all last fall was first-class for gathering corn, considerable of the crop remains in the field.

This is a hard time on the rural mail carriers, especially those who have to travel the mud roads.

Several wagons from this neighborhood, receiving corn which had been shipped to the owners from Ohio.

A BURLINGTON BOY

Who Is Making Good at The National Capitol.

In renewing his subscription, the Recorder's young friend, Henry Adams, brother of Jailer Sam Adams who has a position in the Postoffice Department at Washington, D. C., writes as follows:

"It is always a pleasure to receive the home paper, and I have noted from its columns with exceeding interest the progress made throughout the county, particularly in the way of improved roads, increased interest in rural clubs and organizations for the benefit of those residing in rural communities, and the steady stride for advancement along educational lines, during the good year that is just closed. May the most splendid work continue.

"In addition to regular duties in the Division of Rural Mails, Postoffice Department, am now attending the Dental Department of Georgetown University, and hope some day to be located in the Real District of the Real State with the Real Congressman, who is as highly respected in Washington as in Burlington, and to be able to do as much toward the alleviation of pain, caused mainly by the disabling of molars in the mastication of the Kentucky delicacies, valued at about a dollar a pound by those who taste them once in three years, as Congressman Rouse has accomplished along legislative lines.

"I wish to the Recorder force and my friends there a prosperous year in 1913."

Mary Varner Quick

Died, December 19th, 1912, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Curtie Mannin, at Hebron, Ky., aged 77 years, after an illness of several months.

Mrs. Quick's parents, James and Mary Varner, came from Virginia during their early married life, and lived in Boone county the remainder of their lives. Mrs. Quick was born in this county, July 7th, 1835, and was one of the oldest and best known residents in this part of the community. She was married to Benj. Quick, September 1st, 1853, and to them were born four children, three of whom are living—Clarence Quick, of Independence, Ky, Mrs. John Clore and Mrs. J. H. Mannin of Hebron, the youngest daughter dying in infancy.

Mrs. Quick united with the Pt. Pleasant Christian church when 19 years of age, and her whole life was spent in doing good deeds. She was a most excellent mother, and her children, grand-children and great grandchildren have lost her, but she has gained a Heavenly home.

We laid her to rest in the Hebron cemetery, Saturday, December 21st, 1912, there beside her husband, who preceded her to the grave over 16 years. She leaves beside the three children eight grandchildren and 3 great-grand-children.

During her illness, which altho it kept her at home, did not confine her to her bed until about one week before her death, she was one of the most patient of sufferers, never complaining, and keeping cheerful to the very end.

Rev. Riley, who conducted the last services, spoke such comforting words—we can never forget them. We are told that "Tho we walk through the Valley of the shadow of death, we shall fear no evil," and we know that "Thou will comfort us." H.

His report to the court showed that the infirmary cost the county $2,296.78 last year the average number of inmates being 26.41, and the cost per inmate was $77.41.

The report of County Superintendent Riley shows that he paid for teachers' salaries last year $5,000; for equipments, coal and incidentals, $3,000.

J. M. Barlow was allowed a claim against the sheep fund for $60, while T. C. Bedinger was allowed a claim against said fund for $16.

Jury Fails to Agree.

Winchester, Jan. 6.—After a deliberation of eight and a half hours the jury in the case of D. F. Denton, first of 15 men indicted for a conspiracy to kill Ed. Callahan, former Sheriff and noted feud leader of Breathitt county, reported to Judge Benton at 3:48 this afternoon that it was impossible for them to reach a verdict, and finally was discharged. The jury stood seven for acquittal and five for conviction.

Senator E. S. Hogg and A. H. Patton, both lawyers for the defense, went on Denton's bond, which was fixed at $2,000.

Output Parcel Post Stamps.

Washington, Jan. 4.—By direction of Postmaster General Hitchcock, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing today increased its daily output of parcel post stamps from five million to ten million.

From practically every section of the country requisitions by mail and telegraph are being made for more distinctive parcel stamps. Postoffice officials are positive that no danger of a tie up of the service exists on account of the exhaustion of the supply of stamps, as a sufficient reserve is on hand here.

Reports received from Postmasters in various parts of the United States indicate a tremendous increase in business on account of parcel post, but no serious congestion is reported, and the department has not been requested to furnish any additional assistance. Fragmentary reports indicate that the success of the new service has exceeded all expectations.

A number of Scott county farmers who were on the tobacco market at Lexington yesterday report that the market was higher than at any preceeding sales, Burgess & Gano of Sadieville, sold a crop lot of 2200 pounds Monday at an average of $36 per hundred. The three days sale last week amounted to over 1,000,000 lbs., bringing an average of $15.63.

With another advance scored Monday it is likely that the reached, as it seems that high prices have come to stay throughout the present selling season.—Georgetown Times.

Cause of a Big Rise.

Harry Blyth—everybody on this side of the river knows Harry. Well, the story, some of which is true, goes this way. Harry was cavoiting about in a joe-boat over at Lawrenceburg, a few days ago, when he lost his balance and went overboard. Fortunately the water where the accident occurred was only about five feet deep, when to reach the danger-line for Harry it requires about five feet, 10 inches. Harry's plunge caused such a sudden rise in the river that 'burgers became badly frightened thinking that a tremedous rise from above was coming, sufficient to carry away the levee above the town. There was great rejoising when the cause of the sudden rise was ascertained.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Give the cows a name.

Mulch the strawberries.

Baled corn fodder is new.

Use a low wagon in the orchard.

Clean out the old nesting material and burn it.

Milk to the last drop, for the last milk is the best.

Sweet clover can be used as a substitute for red clover.

A single drop of milk contains five million globules of butter fat.

When corn husking time is at hand, the corn ought to be fairly well dried out.

Hogs will husk corn for nothing. The hired man wants four cents a bushel.

It is not what is eaten but what is digested that furnishes strength and muscle.

Vitality is a very important characteristic in the dairy cow or any other farm animal.

Hogging down corn looks like a lazy man's way, but it is a money maker. Try it.

A hen can't be a very respectable hen if she is full of lice—help her by cleaning up the roosts.

In the poultry quarters, be careful to keep filth from accumulating and keep fowls free from lice.

Give the ducks clean water every time you feed them because a duck always drinks while eating.

Don't let a frost scare you into gathering the cabbages. Leave them out until freezing weather comes.

The seed of broom corn has considerable feeding value. It may be removed, dried or put in the silo.

If your sweet corn seed is mixed with field corn, better feed it to the chickens and buy new next spring.

The coming of woven wire fences will help keep down the weeds along the roadsides in a rather roundabout way.

Good shelter will make feed go farther and this is a good time to see that barns and sheds are made tight for the winter.

The beef supply cannot be much increased inside of two years. This means high cattle prices for at least two years more.

Whether brood mare or gelding it is the healthy, well fed horse that exhibits the greatest endurance and nobility in harness.

After corn passes the proper stage at which it should be converted into silage or fodder, it deteriorates very rapidly in quality.

In the horse for active service the breast should not be over medium width and the forelegs should be reasonably close together.

Both cane and kafir are not hurt much for feed if they are caught by frost provided they are cut before much rain falls on them.

A square breasted, well muscled horse will stand more work and more hardship than two lank, loosely-jointed ones, and not require as much power as one of them.

When the calf is just learning to eat boil oatmeal or cornmeal into a thin mush, add a quart of it to a pail of skimmilk and the calves will suck it up with great relish.

Nothing should be more gradual than the development of the power of a draft horse or the speed of a trotting horse and in but few other ways are horses more permanently injured than in pushing their development too rapidly.

If you have several kinds of rough feed on hand it will be a good plan to mix them up in feeding. Stock like a change of feed as well as you do and if their breakfast can be of one kind and their supper of another, so much the better.

One reason why some men do not find sheep profitable is because they have those which would not do well for anybody. Turn off every head of that sort and get some first-class sheep, and you will soon find yourself making some good clean money from them.

Pick all fruit carefully.

Plow for corn in the fall.

Start a war on poultry pests.

Store seed corn in a dry place.

Clipping horses' legs is not a good practice.

Excessive sweating in a horse indicates weakness.

The first and greatest law of breeding is "like begets like."

Many imported horses are a "sell" to whoever buys them.

Moderate frosts improve rather than harm the cabbage.

Why not shed farm machinery, the same as the field products?

Store some dust for the chickens' dust bath during midwinter.

It is only recently that sweet clover has been used for feeding livestock.

Silage and alfalfa combined make the foundation of the best dairy ration.

The scrub cow appears in every herd, whether it be a pure bred or a grade herd.

See that the ladders are safe before using them. Unsafe rounds may mean broken legs.

The separator is a helpful factor in establishing the uniformity of the finished product.

When a heifer is first fresh it is especially important that all the milk be drawn from her.

How much does it cost to have that machinery standing out in the weather? Sbedding is cheap!

No stock grower can afford to have his animals burn grain for fuel to keep themselves warm.

Sweet potatoes should be dried and then stored in boxes of sand before the frost touches them.

Development of a flock and greatly increased profits cannot be secured without careful breeding.

Letting butter drain well before salting is one of the little things that makes for better quality.

The use of the pure-bred sires has brought about a much better quality of stock kept on the farms.

Keep the hogs quiet, clean and comfortable if you expect the best gain from the food supplied.

Selling butter or cream from the farm robs the soil of less fertility than does any other farm product.

The cost of feeding an animal increases with its weight, but not in direct proportion to its weight.

Hurry all cement work to a finish now, so it will have time to set well before freezing cracks and damages it.

The milk pail with a flaring top has been ruled out. Hooded pails with small openings are much more dirt-proof.

Are you keeping a lot of horses for which you have no special need? Let the other fellow have them at present prices.

See to it that the colt does not become constipated. A small dose of castor oil is a good thing to get the bowels started.

Too often the dairy, poultry and hog work are side lines on the farm. Make them the main line and they will lead you to profit.

Fill the producing cows up on clover hay or alfalfa hay if you can get it instead of fodder or other coarse stuff containing low feed values.

Hogs do not waste corn in the field except in muddy weather. They gain faster, more evenly and more economically in the corn field than in the dry lot.

Good bright corn fodder is worth more for dairy cows than pure timothy hay but both should be fed along with clover or alfalfa to get the best results.

At the Iowa station corn and soy beans hogged down produced 15.7 pounds of pork per bushel of corn. At 8½ cents per pound that is $1.33 per bushel for the corn.

When the pumpkins and squashes are gathered, do not put them in the cellar at once. They will keep much better if stored in some dark outbuilding until real freezing weather comes.

As the cold weather approaches the separator bowl should be filled with hot water before the milk is allowed to run through it. When it is thoroughly warm skimming will be more efficient.

Aerate new milk as soon as possible after it is drawn, but do not do this in a stable. As good a way to do this as any is to pour the milk slowly from one pail to another for a few minutes. This drives off bad odors and saves the fine butter flavor.

Man from Monkey

is not more marvelous than is the evolution of this magnificent Greencastle Cabinet.

¶ Milady formerly stood on a step ladder or a chair to fill her flour bin. Now, the bin gently descends to the table to be filled.

¶ Mother's Cabinet had swinging doors that would not open or close until she cleared the table. Now, Daughter's Cabinet has handsome sliding doors that disappear inside like a roll-top desk. Grandma had a Cabinet with a tin sugar bin nailed to the door; Granddaughter's has an ant proof, automatic valve, crystal glass one, swinging to the Cabinet side.

¶ Mother and Grandmother hid their ironing-boards behind the kitchen door. In our Cabinet an ironing-board instantly comes from underneath the table top, and when ironing is done, Presto—out of sight it goes.

Don't buy a Cabinet until you see this.

RICH EVENING CLOAKS WORN

Chasuble Design Considered Very Smart, Though Those With Trains Have a Following.

The chasuble coat, subjected to adaptations and constricting bands below the waist, is very smart. So also is the cope-shaped shoulder wrap of plain fur, which can be worn over the evening cloak and retained when the cloak is left. A delightful evening wrap follows rather the shape of the cardinal's robe and is carried out in chiffon velvet. The wide, plain shoulders are very effective.

Trained evening cloaks are coming in, another instance of the impracticable way in which most fashions are designed. A cloak should never touch the ground anywhere, and when it is designed for evening wear, and is therefore likely to have a long gown beneath it which has to be held up on leaving theaters and restaurants, it ought also to be so arranged that the fulness of the skirt can be brought round in the hand to the front, where the cloak opens.

Therefore, a coat which fastens all the way down the front and trails behind violates two of the most important rules which ought to regulate the make of that particular garment. But fashion has not much to do with rules.

WHITE HANDBAGS TO REMAIN

With Costumes of the Same Color They Are as Popular as They Are Ornamental.

White handbags with white costumes are still the correct thing, but they are not of the same materials as were those carried with the mid-summer lingerie frock, and they are vastly more ornamental. They also are more expensive, unless you have the time and the skill to make one for yourself of silk and beading. The handsomest bags, whether of flat envelope, round or square shape, mounted on silver or white composition frames, are of bengaline incrusted with a design done in crystal or pearl beads and finished with bead fringe and silk cordage handles. Some of the bags do not show any of their silk foundation, that being concealed by a background of clear crystal beads, against which is worked a design in pearl beads.

Really stunning and not expensive (if home made) are the handbags of heavy corded white silk elaborated with Berlin cut work. These are fringed heavily knotted, scallop edged on the flap and suspended from the wrist by a long and heavy cordage in silk.

SHOWN IN ODD ARRANGEMENT

Newest Hats Have Ostrich Feathers in Unusual Effects, Though the Style Is Certainly Chic.

Ostrich feathers are being disposed in many ways, more or less unusual, on certain of the newest hats. Sometimes they curve out quite suddenly from under the brim on one side, and in other instances they circle the crown, and then stretch out beyond the coiffure for quite a long distance at the back.

Yet another variety of chapeau is arranged with a soft bent crown in chiffon velvet, a broad brim of brocade, with raised designs in plush on a crepe de chine ground, and one long ostrich feather standing perfectly erect in front. These hats, with full velvet crowns and brims or brocade, look particularly smart when they are chosen in black and trimmed with ostrich feathers in some vivid shade of orange, emerald green or cerise.

DRESS FOR SMALL GIRL

A soft cashmere of fine cloth is needed for our little model, which has the skirt made with an apron tunic at back and front, braided or trimmed with embroidered galloon at the edges. The waist-band is of the same, and it is also used to form the square at neck; the sleeves are set into the armholes under wrapped seams; cuffs of the material are arranged to turn up.

Materials required: 2¼ yards 44 inches wide, 3½ yards galloon.

SHORT SKIRT FOR THE DANCE

Gowns Made Without Train Afford Greatest Enjoyment and Are Strictly in Fashion.

Short skirts for the dance are still in fashion, and are likely to remain so. By faithfully copying that short-skirted and charming gown of the picture, letting the underskirt be of white satin, and the corsage and tunic veiling of pink chiffon, with a bordering of mellow-toned lace, one will be perfectly satisfied. As regards accordion-pleated dance dresses—they are certainly being shown, and sold, very frequently this season, but as the survival of the style is by no means certain, it will be safer to select something less obviously "dated," which will therefore be of use for a much longer time.

BLACK WITH COLOR DESIGNS

Hosiery of the Moment Is, to Say the Least, Eccentric and in Some Cases Startling.

The mode in stockings has been very interesting for a long time, and the new introductions show no signs of waning eccentricity and beauty.

Black hosiery is reasserting its claims to the supremacy it enjoyed for many years, and lost only when the rage for colored stockings came into vogue. But the black footgear now introduced has a decorative design in color upon it.

Upon the instep of one pair brilliant green lizards rendered in beads disport themselves, and upon another, lightly limned in sequins, blue dragon flies are seen. Shot silk stockings are being received with favor for morning wear.

They agree well with the ratine suit which is striped in two shades of one color or in black and purple, or some other dye as a decorative.

The fashion for parting the draperies of the evening skirt, in order to show the left foot and ankle, is responsible for the introduction of lovely white and flesh-colored silk stockings, studded elaborately with flashing jewels or metallic threads.

WHITE CHEEKS ARE NO MORE

Tint of the Gypsy Has Replaced the So Long Familiar "Apple Blossom" Effects.

Parisiennes have adopted a new complexion. It is no longer fashionable to have lily white cheeks or to blanche the face like a Pierrot. To be "chic" one must have a brown tint like a gypsy.

A Parisian reception will wear presently the air of a collection of colonial beauties and sportswomen. And yet there is no sacrifice of refinement or elegance in the new fad. A change of flesh color has not entailed a change in the fit and fashion of the dress. The French woman will still be impeccably clothed notwithstanding that her pallor and indoors look have departed, leaving a faint touch of tan.

We must make our adieux to "roses and cream," to "apple blossom," to the "clear spring mornings" and "fair moonbeams." It is the imagery of the poets, but it is no longer true. Gone is the immaculate body of the sculptor as an object of adoration; in its place we shall address our odes to the dusky queens. There is a new war of the roses; the white have been defeated by the red.

Laces Popular.

Lace and figured chiffons and voiles are daintily wrought into charming evening frocks for girls who need thin dancing and dinner gowns. The bertha effect in lace or beaded nets is very popular, and, moreover, immensely become either a stout or slight person. It hides any unsightly lines and adds charm to good figures. —Harper's Bazar.

Easily Pulled.

When drawing threads for hemstitching or drawn work, wet a small brush, rub it over a cake of soap until a lather is produced, then scrub the threads that you wish to draw. You will be suprised no less than pleased to see how easily they may be pulled out, without breaking.—Needlecraft.

The Salesman's Sermon.

"Certainly I will make a few remarks," said the cigar salesman who, because of his solemn garb, had been mistaken for a man of of the cloth Ascending the platform he said:

"Men are like cigars. Often you cannot tell by the wrapper what the filler is. Sometimes a good old stogie is more popular than and imported celebrity. Some men are all right in the show case, on display, are great disappointments when you get them home. No matter how fine a man is, eventually he meets his match. A twofer often puts on as many airs as a fortycenter. Some men never get to the front at all except during the campaigns. Some men never get to the front at all except during the campaigns. Missouri Is a Great Fruit State.

From the advertising matter of a large orchard Co., in Oregon county, in South Missouri, is taken the following facts:

The largest peach and apple orchards in this country are located in Missouri.

There is an apple tree ninety years old, ten and one-half feet in circumference, in Missouri.

There is a peach tree fifty-four years old, seven and one-half feet in circumference, in Missouri

There is a grapevine 120 years old, two and one-half feet in circumference, in Missouri.

All of the above are in good condition and bearing fruit annually.

One apple tree in Missouri produced 110 bushels of apples in a single year.

One cherry tree in Missouri produced 610 boxes of cherries in a single year.

One peach tree in Missouri produced 35 bushels of peaches in a single year.

One grapevine in Missouri produced 1,000 pounds of grapes in a single year.

The peaches from an eight and one-half acre orchard in Missouri sold for over $6,000 in 1911.

One strawberry district in Missouri produced over 2,000 carloads of strawberries in a single season.

From the above it can be seen that Missouri is not so slow when it comes to fruit production.—Hannibal Journal.

The buyers for the big tobacco companies are quoted as saying six cents a pound average is as much as they can afford to pay for the 1912 crop.

Let us see what that means.

One man can grow four acres of tobacco.

The average yield is approximately 500 pounds an acre a season like the last one.

The farmer produces about 3,200 pounds on these four acres, half of which must be deducted for the use of the land, barn room, team, tools and incidentals.

The man who grows tobacco on his own land must figure the deduction the same as the renter, so the estimate is applicable to all.

At six cents a pound a one-man crop brings $192.

Half of that sum is $96.

So, you see, the man who cultivates four acres and sells it for six cents a pound gets less than $100 for his year's work.—Henderson Gleaner.

Yourself In Solitude.

Get away from the crowd for a while and think. Stand on onne side and let the world run by, while you get acquainted with yourself and see what kind of a fellow you are. Ask yourself hard questions about yourself. Ascertain from original sources, if you are really the manner of man you say you are, and if you are always honest; if you always tell the square, perfect truth in business details; if your life is as good and upright at 11 o'clock at night as it is at noon; if you are as good a temperance man on a fishing excursion as you are on a Sunday school picnic; if you are as good when you go to the city as you are at home; if, in short, you are really the sort of man your father hopes you are and your sweetheart believes you are, get on intimate terms with yourself, my boy, and believe me, every time you come out of one of those private interviews you will be a stronger, better, purer man. Don't forget this, and it will do you good.—Robert Burdette.

Tobacco bringing from forty to sixty sents is enough to fill every farmer with the determination to put his whole plantation to the weed. It should be remembered, however, that such prices are brought by a very small part of the crops. A basket of two hundred pounds may bring 40 cents, and the rest of the crop bring about 10c. You hear all about the 40 cents part, but not a word about the 10c baalnce. Not many years ago 10 cents was considered a magnificent price for tobacco. The crop that does not average that now is considered not worth fooling with.

Although there are still a few households in which an old colored woman cares for the little ones as lovingly and faithfully as if they were of her own flesh and blood, the black "mammy" of the South is nevertheless rapidly passing away. Only those who knew the old-time Southern home can understand the feeling that was aroused when the Daughters of the Confederacy, in their recent convention, proposed to put up a fitting monument to the faithful and affectionate creature who will soon be known only in dim tradition.

Curing Seed Corn.

As a result of the interest aroused in the state regarding the selection of seed corn during Seed Corn Week, many thousands of bushels of seed corn were picked. They ought to help materially in securing maturity and in raising the yield of corn in Minnesota next year.

In order to obtain satisfactory results when this seed is planted however, it will be necessary to cure the corn well this fall before the freezing weather comes. Otherwise the moisture stored up in the ear, no matter how dry it may appear to be, will not be removed in time and the germinating power of the seed will be injured. In fact, the curing of seed corn is as essential as its maturity and selection.

There are several practical ways of curing seed corn. Big seed corn dealers often have large kiins where they dry their corn with artificial heat. This practice is not economical for the average farmer, however, and simpler methods must be employed. Who is there who will forget the long strings of corn that used to hang in grandfather's garret, where so many happy days were spent in play? This old-fashioned method of curing corn is still a good one, if the windows are opened wide during the good days and air circulate in the room, thus drying the seed.

A corn tree made of an upright stick set on a standard and in which are driven tenpenny casing nails upon which the ears are impaled is another good method of curing seed corn. The corn tree may be placed in the garret, or any other out-of-way place in the house or shed. Seed corn may also be cured by placing it on racks, or by scattering it about thinly on a floor in a dry place where the mice or rats will not bother it. There are many different farm methods of storing corn all of which are good. The thing which must be impressed, however, is the fact that corn should be cured well. No matter what the method is employed good air circulation must be secured. It is an indispensable necessity, if high germinating power in the seed is aimed.—H. P. Speer, Minnesota College of Agriculture.

Bureau of Farm Loans.

Washington, D. C. Jan. 4.—Government loans on farms mortgages at low interest rates was proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Batherick of Ohio.

The plan outlined is to attain the same object as the "rural credits" system proposed by President Taft.

The bill would provide for the establishment of a bureau of farm loans in the Treasury Department, with a loan commissioner appointed by the President.

The Secretary of the Treasury would be authorized to raise funds for loaning to "bona-fide tillers of the soil" on farm mortgages, by the issue of Government bonds at not to exceed 4 per cent interest.

The loans would be made on farms on which at least one-half must be under cultivation.

Application for loans would be made to the Commissioner, who would certify to the value of the property, to be ascertained by the appraisers appointed by the Commissioner, to the Secretary of the Treasury, who would loan not to exceed 40 per cent of the value of the land on a mortgage made out to the Secretary of the Treasury, at not more than 4½ per cent interest.

The bill would exempt both mortgages and bonds issued under the act from taxation, and proposes an appropriation of $100,000 for the installation of the plan.

Michigan has passed a law as follows: "No person shall be employed as an engineer, train dispatcher, fireman, baggage master, conductor, brakeman, or other servant for any railroad; in any of its operating departments who uses intoxicating liquors as a beverage and any company in whose service such person has knowingly been employed shall be liable to a penalty of $500 for every offense, to be sued for in the name of the people of Michigan."—Ex.

C. C. Roberts and Kirb Tanner went to Constance, Monday, to see the river. Mr. Roberts could not be induced to cross the river, saying he would rather be afraid for a few minutes than to be dead forever.

The Cattle Feeding Question.

There is in this country a shortage of beef cattle, says a Chicago dealer.

Not only are we ceasing to export cattle, but our own food supply is being seriously curtailed. The past two years have witnessed an alarming scarcity of "feeders," and consequent high prices, and a steadily decreasing number of farmers fattening them for the market. In the fall of 1911 they argued that with corn at 60-70c per bushel, and "feeders" at 5-6 cents, it would be a risky proposition to take hold—and many of them stayed out to their great regret.

Those who did go in and feed to maturity made money and lots of it. Now there is more corn at a lower price, and the undoubted scarcity of both feeders and beef cattle and the growing demand by a steadily increasing population practically guarantee high prices on the finished product.

History has proven in this as in other kinds of business, that the man who "sticks to it"—and learns it thoroughly—is the one who makes it pay, and the man who gets scared out easily usually does so at a time when the other fellow is preparing to reap his harvest.

Another mistake some cattlemen make is in trying to beat the market. Like other speculators, they will hold out as long as the market is rising, perhaps beyond a slight slump, but invariably they ship when a decline is well under way—and help thereby to give the toboggan another shove!

Why not ship when cattle are ready for market. It is not expensive to hold them beyond maturity? Does not the cost of extra feed offset any possible margin of rise in price? And if every cattle feeder would do that would there not be a greater regularity of receipts at all markets, a consequent steadying of prices, and a more equitable distribution of the profits in this immense and necessary industry?

Stockmen should also gradually work into raising their own feeders and should not begrudge the pasture necessary for this remunerative branch of the business. The silo would prove a mighty help in their development. In fact, silage and alfalfa are destined to solve the problem of how to make the most money raising live stock on corn belt lands.

There will in all probability be passed in the near future a bill preventing the sale of calves under six weeks of age, which will be both a humane and immensely beneficial measure—a beef will feed twenty times as many people as a veal and to their better nourishment. How many thousands of young calves are slaughtered yearly that could be easily raised to fully matured fine beef cattle!

Farmers Union.

The farmers Unions of this county are advancing rapidly towards the retirement of the middle man in all things and in all lines, Monday the members from the eastern portion of the county, purchased the large Cadiz store building which will be used as a storage place for their purchases and from which all supplies will be distributed. There are as we have been informed by one in close touch with the movement over one hundred of the best and most successful farmers in that section, members of this branch of the county union, all of whom are to be associated in the business and will incorporate under the state laws and be known as the Farmers Stock Company, and at an early date will be ready to open for business. Doubting the wisdom of such a coopperation will not check this movement now, the future can not be foretold, only the result can now be watched, by those who either by wanton carelessness or oppressive prices have permitted themselves to be put in this position. Don't for an instant think this matter a joke, it has passed that stage, it is a born and reared reality, and you have now only to watch the fleeting hours of your existance pass.—Pendletonian.

Wintering Beef Breeding Cows.

Selections of rations on which which beef cattle may be successfully maintained during the winter at a comparatively low cost is one of the most important problems before live stock producers. In the past, the feeders of beef cattle have depended upon shipping cattle from western markets for finishing on eastern grown feeds, as two year old steers could be purchased for less than the cost of producing them locally. The large ranges of the west are being divided into smaller farms and their supply of cattle is diminishing while the demand is continually increasing. The result of this will be the production of feeding cattle on lands that are especially adapted to the business, capable of producing grass in abundance, well supplied with water and shade and of such topography or distance from markets that they cannot profitably be utilized for the continuous production of cereal crops.

There are large areas in almost every section of Pennsylvania, which, although too steep to plow are especially adapted to the growth of pasture grasses and in every way favorable to the production of beef. In many of the counties where timber has been cut off, the hillsides might as well be producing grass as brush and weeds. The problem after the pastures have been established is to grow a sufficient amount of roughage to carry cattle through winter at a minimum of expense. The demand for hay has increased so rapidly during the past few years that many farmers would sell it rather than feed it to cattle, were it not for the fact that they realize the necessity of keeping roughage on the farm in order to maintain the fertility of the soil.

Test Your Seed Corn.

Following the Recorder's suggestion last week that farmers should be testing their seed corn the County High School renews its offer of last year to test for those who will not test for themselves. Last year we tested nearly a thousand ears for the farmers of the county We are more anxious that farmers do their own testing but we shall be glad to test for a few of them at least. Select five grains from different parts of the ear and seal them in an envelope in the same way and send the envelope to E. L. Dix. He will attend to the rest and report to you.

Many farmers last year had a very poor stand of corn even after several replantings because of the poor seed. We can not afford to let this be repeated.

The Canal Zone.

The management of the Panama Canal has become an international question. It presents itself to one class of Statesmen in the form "Shall Uncle Sam control the ditch which he himself has dug?" to the other "Shall the Ship Trnat be protected by being given free toll through the Canal?" Every American citizen is interested in the question.

Hon. A. B. Rouse recently presented the Boone Co. High School a fine map of the Canal Zone. It is highly appreciated by the school and anyone interested in the details of the Zone is invited to visit the school and inspect the map. Congressman Rouse is always awake and ready to get anything good obtainable for his constituents.

The President elect said that Bryan's name had come up casually from time to time, but he was more than ordinarily specific in his declaration that it had nothing to do with the cabinet.

Mary S. Stahl.

Dry Ridge, Ky., Jan. 1, 1912.

In memory of Mary S. Stahl, who departed this life April 31st, 1912.

'Tis a time for memory and tears. Within the deep, still chambers of the past, a spectre dim whose tones are like the wizzard voice of time, heard from the tomb of ages, points its cold hand solemn finger to the beautiful and Holy visions that have passed away and left no shadow of their lovliness on the dead waste of life. The spectre lifts the coffin lid of hope and joy and love and bending mournfully above the pale, sweet forms that slumber there, scatter dead flowers o'er what has passed to nothingness.

The Year—Has gone and with it, many a glorious throng of happy dreams. Its mark is on each brow. Its shadow in each heart. In its swift course it waved its sceptre o'er the beautiful and they are not. It laid its pallid hand upon the strong and the haughty form is fallen and the flashing eye is dim. It trod the halls of revelry, where thronged the bright and joyous tand the tearful wail of stricken ones is heard where once the song and reackless shout resounded. It passed o'er the battle plain where sword and spear and shield flashed in the light of mid-day; and the strength of serried hosts is shivered and the grass, green from the soil of carnage, waves above the crushed and mouldering skeleton. It came and faded like a wreath of mist at eve; yet ere it melted in the viewless air, it heralded its millions to their home in the dim land of dreams.

R. C. Houston.

Against Any Combination.

New York, January 9.—Theodore Roosevelt replied today to a proposal advanced by Frank A. Munsey yesterday to bring the Progressive and the Republican parties together. He said:

"I am simply speaking as one of the men in the ranks of the Progressive party. Personally, I strongly feel that we should no more enter into a combination with the Republican machine than with the Democratic machine, I firmly believe that all good Progressives who may happen yet to adhere to either the Republican party or the Democratic party will in the end see that the chance for honest government and for the practical achievement of social and industrial justice lies in the Progressive party.

"We welcome all honest men who believe in our principles. If they come in with us they shall have exactly the share that any other people have of the party management. I hold that we are under the same obligations to former Democrats like Judge Lindsey and Don Dickinson, as to any former Republicans.

"To my mind the whole attitude of those at present responsible for the leadership and management of the Republican party shows that it would be folly to try to combine with them."

Roosevelt referred to a recent speech by President Taft, in which he said "the result of the Chicago convention was a triumph for the permanence of Republican institutions." Roosevelt then reviewed the elections in Arizona, Michigan, Indiana, Washington, California and some other states where the Progressives received heavy votes and added:

"The 'triumph' for the permanence of Republican institutions of which Mr. Taft was rebuked by the figures I have given above in the various districts in which it was perpetrated."

Elsewhere in his statement Roosevelt asserted that the Republicans had shown that under the present management of the party they cannot be trusted not to cheat, not to swindle."

In conclusion Roosevelt said:

"All honest men who believe in these principles, both as regards those set forth in the platform and those in accordance with which we manage the party, will be welcomes into our ranks. We will treat them on an entire equality with ourselves, and will work hand in hand and shoulder to shoulder with them for the betterment of the social, industrial and political conditions of this great nation.

Since the inauguration of the parcels post, a Georgia cracker, who has a star route mail contract, has concluded that his wages ought to be increased, and writes thus to his Congressman:

"I seat myself with pen in hand to write you a few lines to let you know that you have played the devil with me. When I took the contract to carry themail the express company was doing a pretty good business, and I got 10 cents for each express package and 10 cents and a drink for every jug. You fixed the law so I couldn't carry the jug, and now you have fixed up a thing called the possum post law, and the express company don't handle any more packages. When I made this trade to carry the mail I didn't know anything about the darned foolishness of sending farming implements thru the mail. I ain't a man to quit his job, but I have got to have some help."

Three weeks ago the Recorder sent a package to Detroit, Michigan, the express charges on which were 35 cents. Last week it sent to the same city, by parcels post, a package identical with that sent three weeks ago, and the charge was seven cents. Some difference.

A BRAVE WOMAN

Rescues Her Husband and Father-in-Law From a Watery Grave.

Michael Muntz, aged about 56, was drowned in the Ohio river last Sunday, while his son Mike had a very narrow escape from the same fate. The two men live on the Ohio river at the extreme northern part of this county, and last Sunday as they were returning from a trip across the river, and were rowing their boat between the willows and the shore it struck a willow limb that was hidden beneath the water. The boat was capsized and the two men were thrown into the river. In their struggles the young man caught his father, throwing one arm around him while he threw his other arm around the limb of a willow tree to which he clung until assistance arrived. Hearing the cries for help Mrs. Richard Muntz ran to the river and seeing the condition of the two men, jumped into a skiff and started to their rescue. She had to make her way through heavy drift which lined the shore, and it took her nearly half an hour to reach the men, by which time the old man had drowned in the arms of his son, and the son was near the door of death, but he grasped his father and the limb so tight that it was hard work to release him. Upon Mrs. Muntz's arrival she succeeded in getting young Mike loose from the tree and into the skiff, and they caught the body of the old man which had been released by the young man in his effort to get into the skiff, and placing it in the skiff, they finally made their way to the shore in an almost exhausted condition. Fortunately the water in which the accident happened was not so very swift, otherwise both men would have lost their lives. Shortly after Mrs. Muntz left the shore, two men who had heard the calls for help, arrived, but as there was no boat at their command they could only stand and watch the woman's heroic efforts, expecting every minute to see the entire party swallowed up by the raging stream. Mrs. Munta proved herself a heroine and is certainly entitled to a Carnegie medal. The man who lost his life has long been a citizen of the northern part of this county, and being highly esteemed his death is deplored by all.

Knock It If It's Your Nature.

Mr. A. W. Davis, of Prescott, Arizona, spent several days in Burlington, last week in the interest of the Fortune gold mine in Arizona, in which there are several local stockholders. The mine is being developed as rapidly as the money can be raised to do the work, and those on the ground claim that the vein of ore is growing larger as the shaft is put down. A great many in this and adjoining neighborhoods think the whole thing is a rank fake, and says some very uncomplimentary things about persons who have visited the mine for the purpose of investigating it, but so far, with the exception of one or two stockholders, no body has lost the faith in the proposition they entertained when they invested. If the mine proves the success it is hoped for the stockholders will have a big thing, and, on the other hand, if it is a failure as many seem to hope it will be, nobody about here will be compelled to take up their abode at the county house as none of them have become plungers, having invested as they considered their financial condition warrants, so do not get nervous thru fear of having to pay any tax to assist in keeping any of the Fortune Mine stockholders in the poor house in the event the mine does not make good.

On the other hand the public has been swiped so often by stock schemes it is not strange that people generally will regard with suspicion any proposition that is sprung upon them and presenting flattering prospects. No doubt but the people of Boone county have sunk as much as $100,000 in the last ten or fifteen years in western ventures, and it is quite natural that many of them should now be "Doubting Thomases" on any proposition presented to them in that quarter.

Boone County at the State Show.

Stephen Bros., of Idlewild neighborhood, are maintaining their reputation as producers of corn, and are hard persons to get over at a corn show. They not only know how to produce fine corn, but know how to make selections for exhibiting, and always get their share of the prizes for which they compete. At the State Dairy and Corn Show at Lexington last week they took the following premiums on their corn: Best ten ears Yellow Corn; best single ear White Corn; best single ear Yellow Corn. J. E. Rouse, of Paynes Depot, took second premium on single ear of White Corn. Mr. Rouse is the son of Geo. E. Rouse, of Florence, who taught his son how to raise corn. The competition at the show was very warm owing to the large quantity of very fine corn that was on exhibition. The Union Creamery Association, after a spirited contest was awarded the premium on creamery butter. Thus it is seen that Boone county was a conspicuous exhibitor at the State Show.

Later.—Since the above was put in type the official list of awards has been received and shoes that in addition to the above named premiums Stevens Bros. took the following premiums: Second on best ten ears yellow corn, and second on best single ear yellow corn.

If the effort to reduce the number of Collectors of Internal Revenue is put through, there will be quite a number of good Democrats who will be sorely disappointed. A collectorship is a very desirable plum and one for which there is always a lively fight when one is to be appointed.

James E. Smith received his five passenger auto last Friday, and will be ready to take long pleasure rides so soon as the roads are in a condition to travel. Johnnie Duncan ordered a five passenger Ford the same day that Mr. Smith received his machine. Both machines were sold by B. B. Hume.

Gov. McCreary has not announced his candidacy for the U. S. Senatorship, but he is giving out an interview showing how his election to that office would not interfere with his completing his term as Governor. Very true, Governor, but trying to capture the Senatorship might cause you, by neglect, to spoil the job you are on.

The new ferry road built under the supervision of Capt. J. Rief, is a very creditable piece of work, both for the city and the builder. When the footpath is completed it will be possible for passengers to get off the ferry with dry feet and land on the cement sidewalks up town in the same condition.—Lawrenceburg Register.

The carrier on rural route No. 2 out of Burlington says the worst road with which he has to contend is from Waterloo to Burlington. Considering the remainder of the roads constituting the mail route a person would not expect such a condition. From Waterioo to Burlington is one of the best grades in the county, and it should be one of the best dirt roads in the entire system.

Mrs. A. R. Tabor, of Crider, Mo., had been troubled with sick headache for about five years, when she began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. She has taken two bottles of them and they have cured her. Sick headache is caused by a disordered stomach for which these tablets are especially intended. Try them, get well and stay well. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

It is said that the peach industry of Colorado is practically a failure. The 1911 crop was the first one in seven years that was not caught by the frost. The crop was about one-third picked before the freeze arrived the past year. There are a large number of handsome orchards, as far as tree growth is concerned, that are now being grubbed up and burned, and the ground will probably be sown to alfalfa.

Get your split drags ready to use on the dirt roads, and do not be afraid that you will drag a few feet more road than your neighbor. That kind of spirit never brought a man nor a country to the front. The man who is a benefit to his neighborhood and county is the one who is always ready to do a little more than his share. Good roads are a benefit to every body, and especially the land owner.

Mrs. John M. Lassing went to Florida, last week, taking with her her son, Robert, who had sufficiently recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia to make the trip. Young Lassing had the pneumonia at Danville, where he was attending school and his parents were not apprised of the fact until his mother undertook to communicate with him by telephone at the beginning of the holidays, when his roommate informed his mother that he was not able to come to the phone. Mrs. Lassing hurried to his bedside and as soon as her son was able she took him to Florida.

The flood now prevailing in the Ohio river is one of the most disastrous for years. Thousands of acres of small grain in the bottoms has been destroyed, while in many instances large quantities of corn yet in the fields has either been swept away or so badly covered with dirt as to render it worthless. It is hard to imagine the amount of damage that has resulted, much less make an estimate in dollars and cents. More or less stock of all kinds has been lost, while food for it has been lost in large quantities in every neighborhood along the river. Hundreds of people have been driven from their homes and relief committees in the cities have had their hands full looking after the homeless and those in need of assistance.

No Damage Done.

Lester Gulley's team attached to his produce wagon, was frightened while standing in front of L. E. Kelly's store last Friday night and started out the Petersburg pike at a high rate of speed. Several persons started in pursuit of the team, expecting every minute to come upon a wrecked wagon and possibly a disabled team. You can imagine their surprise when, after near the town limits, they met the team, a horse and a mule coming back towards town in a very leisurely manner, perfectly uncornered and no damage to either the wagon or the load the wagon contained. The animals had got over their scare and concluded the best thing to do was to return from whence they came. Mr. Gulley was delighted to find everything in order, fully expecting when he started after the team to find his produce scattered along the road and his wagon a wreck.

CONSTITUTION OF GOOD FOWL

Points of Weak and Strong Bird Characterized by Prof. W. R. Graham of Ontario Station.

Prof. W. R. Graham of the Ontario station characterizes the points of a weak and a constitutionally strong fowl as follows:

What we want is a good feeder and an economical producer. Generally, a bird with a short, stout, well-curved beak, a broad head (not too long), and a bright, clear eye, has a good constitution. And I have noticed that when a bird has a long, narrow beak, a thin, long comb and head, and an eye somewhat sunken in the head, it is usually lacking in constitution. Such a bird is likely to have a narrow, long body and long legs, upon which it seldom stands straight.

There are some exceptions to this rule, yet generally speaking if a bird has a good head the chances are favorable for a good body; and, if it has a poor head, the chances are against it. I have frequently noticed in the rose-comb breeds that a good shaped one is seldom found with a long, narrow comb.

RANGE TO FATTEN TURKEYS

Birds Must Have Plenty of Exercise to Promote Good Appetite—Feed Plenty of Corn.

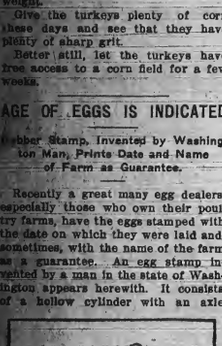
(By ANNA GALIGHER.)

Turkeys should have free range while being fattened for market.

We used to fatten the turkeys in small enclosures but discontinued this several years ago because they did not seem to thrive well.

After the first few days they would begin to lose their appetite, no matter how great a variety of food was given.

The whole trouble was lack of exercise. If a turkey cannot get plenty of exercise it cannot have a good appetite and of course will not gain in weight.



Give the turkeys plenty of corn these days and see that they have plenty of sharp grit.

Better still, let the turkeys have free access to a corn field for a few weeks.

AGE OF EGGS IS INDICATED

Rubber Stamp, Invented by Washington Man, Prints Date and Name of Farm as Guarantee.

Recently a great many egg dealers, especially those who own their poultry farms, have the eggs stamped with the date on which they were laid and, sometimes, with the name of the farm as a guarantee. An egg stamp invented by a man in the state of Washington appears herewith. It consists of a hollow cylinder with an axle through the center and one side flattened. Across the flattened side are slots and through these slots the type protrudes. The type is mounted on wheels which revolve on the axle and can be adusted to suit the date in an instant. When adjusted the owner is provided with a rubber stamp with which he can implant on each egg the date of its arrival into the world and the place where it was laid. The cylinder opens at one end for easy access as the type wheels.

CHICKS HATCHED IN OCTOBER

Will Feather Out Before Cold Weather Sets in and Cockerels Attain Salable Size.

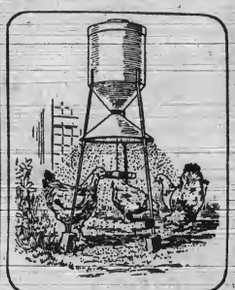
(By SYLVANUS VAN AKEN.)

These late hatched chicks may be made profitable if one has a separate pen for them. Good fertile eggs can usually be secured in September or early October at a reasonable cost.

The chicks will feather out before cold weather sets in and ... attain salable size at a time when they command good prices. Lice are not likely to be troublesome at this time of year.

The pullets will begin laying as soon as they are old enough, which is just as the natural breeding season arrives in spring. They are not mature enough to make good breeding stock, but will lay well all summer and fall when other fowls have largely stopped.

If you have accommodations for them set a few hens or start an incubator and later you will be able to report good results.



GRAIN FEEDER FOR POULTRY

Newly Invented Device Depends on Same Principle as is Used in Baiting Animal Trap.

A newly invented type of automatic poultry feeder depends upon the same principle that is used in baiting a trap, for the feeder has a bait that is pecked by the hungry fowls and, in response, the machine lets a shower of grain fall on the ground, which they devour, says the Popular Mechanics.

The machine consists of a galvanized-iron supply fount filled with grain and a revolving toothed wheel at the base of it. This wheel is mounted on very delicate bearings which admit of its movement at the slightest touch. Attached to the wheel is a shaft which supports the bait. The bait consists of a hollow tube of wire netting containing wheat. The fowls see the wheat through the netting and peck at it, causing the toothed wheel to revolve and throw out grain from the top supply fount which falls on the lower metal cone and is scattered over the ground almost as efficiently as by hand. This prevents the fowls from gorging themselves.

After the feeder has been in use for a time there is no great rush by the fowls to peck the bait as one would imagine. Some fowls, the "wise" ones, wait around in a circle where the grain will be thrown and the one which pecks the grain usually gets very little of it.

The Barred Rocks.

The Barred Plymouth Rocks are attractive when properly selected and rigidly bred, and much can be said of this breed as profitable farmyard birds. As layers they are well-known, and few breeds excel them when it comes to broilers and friers.

POULTRY NOTES

Filth and health are arch enemies.

Recklessness is a short road to failure.

During inclement weather fowls are better indoors than out.

It is the wise poultryman who studies the comfort of his fowls.

The merits of the scratching shed are shown during bad weather.

A pint of kerosene in a gallon of whitewash makes an excellent insecticide.

The closer fowls are confined the greater the need for variety in their food ration.

It is an easy matter to overfeed fowls, and poultrymen should bear this in mind.

As a rule, the larger the number of fowls kept the smaller the expense in proportion.

In poultry breeding, utility should be the first consideration; beauty should follow.

Washing the eggs opens the pores and hastens decay. It is best to keep the nests clean.

Chills, wet food and lack of sunshine are the main causes of bowel trouble in chicks.

The oily nature of ducks' feathers keeps them from being seriously bothered with lice.

In order to manufacture eggs it is necessary for a hen to be supplied with the proper material.

To make sure that fowls have enough grit it should be kept where they can help themselves at will.

A good poultryman is industrious, not easily discouraged, filled with pluck and grit, and full of ambition.

It is a good rule to give fowls all they will eat up clean. Some days the appetite will be greater than other days.

GOOD ROAD BUILDING RULES

Deputy Commissioner of Michigan Gives Several Excellent Hints for Constructing Highways.

(By FRANK F. ROGERS, Deputy Highway Commissioner of Michigan.)

Never drag a dry road.

When dragging let the team straddle the wheel track.

It is absolutely necessary to use tile drains where roads cross springy ...

A rise of six feet in each hundred feet of length is the required grade for state reward roads.

Loose sandy roads should be nearly level, with very shallow gutters to remove the water when the ground is frozen.

The cost for regrading old roads to fit them for the state reward restrictions has been between $200 and $400 per mile.

Where tile drains are not needed, the bottom of the open drains should usually be at least two feet below the crown of the road.

No roads can be made good until the hills have been graded down to reasonable inclines and the road beds suitably shaped for travel.

Frequent scraping of sand roads with the road-scraper, or other scraping tools, is not only a loss of time and money, but a positive injury. Turnpiking up the sand simply helps the wheels to cut into it that much deeper.

Directions for making the plank road float may be obtained by writing to the state highway department at Lansing, Mich. This float is recognized to be the most useful road tool in existence. It can be built for about $3.

The time to use the float drag is, (1) in the spring when the frost has left the ground and the road begins to dry, but while yet muddy. (2) Immediately after very prolonged rain any time throughout the season. (3) In the fall just before the ground freezes. (4) In winter if frost should happen to leave the ground.

Gravel roads are popular in Michigan:

(1) Because they are durable and satisfactory.

(2) Because they are easily built and easily repaired, requiring no expensive machinery.

(3) Because the first cost is low.

(4) Because they draw a relatively large state reward, frequently one-third or more of their cost.

(5) Because they are a labor proposition from start to finish and keep all the money spent in their construction at home.

If you have gravel, build a gravel road.

HANDY FOR BREAKING STALKS

Implement for Use During Winter Months is Simple and Any Blacksmith Can Make One.

For breaking stalks in winter, a tool is very simple and easily made. The plank is about 3x8 inches, and long enough to break five rows. The manner of hitching, says the Practical Farmer, is also easy, and any blacksmith will soon make it.

Bolt the rods to the plank about four feet from the ends, to prevent plank from jumping. On lower front edge of plank nail an old wagon tire, with worn side of tire next to plank, with sharp cutting edge down. Use when stalks are frozen.

Good Roads & Farm Notes

Buy your clover seed early.

Good roads cost money, but they are worth it.

It's a wise farmer that knows his own seed corn.

Shooting quail ought to be made a penitentiary offense.

Deep-plowed land has a great capacity for storage of moisture.

A heavy crop of weeds will check the growth of the clover a great deal.

A clover sod turned down makes an excellent foundation for a corn crop.

The ground for sweet clover seed should be prepared the same as for alfalfa or clover.

Hay stacked in the open loses 20 per cent of its value by spoiling on the sides and bottom.

It does not pay to devote high-priced land for long periods to pasturage and the production of hay.

Rotation allows or assists nature to repair her waste places and incidentally facilitate the war on weeds.

Among plants requiring large amounts of lime in the soil are alfalfa, clover, peas, beans and vetches.

Fall plowing of field areas will often be of service in controlling cut worms that are affecting field crops.

The silo means excellent feed stored in small space. Just what is needed when the grass in the pasture is dry.

Corn, sorghum, clover, alfalfa, soy beans, oats, rye, kaffir corn and milo maize are the crops most generally used for silo purposes.

Protein that is grown on the farm is often more palatable than that which is purchased in concentrated form, and is also cheaper.

A MESSAGE

To Feeble Old People.

As one grows old the waste of the system becomes more rapid than repair, the organs act more slowly and less effectually than in youth, the circulation is poor, the blood thin and digestion weak.

Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, is the ideal strengthener and body-builder for old folks, for it contains the very elements needed to rebuild wasting tissues and replace weakness with strength. Vinol also fortifies the system against colds and thus prevents pneumonia.

A grandneice of Alexander Hamilton, over eighty years of age, once remarked: "Vinol is a godsend to old people. Thanks to Vinol, I have a hearty appetite, sleep soundly, feel active and well. It is the finest tonic and strength-creator I have ever used."

If Vinol fails to build up the feeble old people, and create strength, we will return your money.

INGENIOUS BAG FOR HORSES

Feed Runs Through Tube From Storage Compartment to Feeding Place in Front End.

An ingenious feed bag for horses has been designed by an Oregon man. In the front is a strap that fastens over the horse's head and in the rear is a small strap that buckles through his collar. As held in horizontal position, it is noticeable that the rear portion of the bag is smaller than the mouth and that it narrows toward the center. Through this narrowed section runs a tube and through this tube the feed flows from the storage compartment, in the rear, to the feeding compartment in front. When the bag is not in use it can be effectually closed by folding the feeding section longitudinally and then transversely, thus completely shutting the opening between the two. When the bag is empty it collapses completely, owing to the triangular construction of the storage part.

SUCCULENT FOOD FOR STOCK

Little Added Expense in Providing Animals With Roots or Silage—Store Under Feed Alley.

Just as one enjoys eating an apple occasionally—especially during the winter, when less fruit and vegetables are used than during the summer—just so the live stock in the winter, when their rations consist largely of dry feed, need and appreciate some form of succulent food. There is very little added expense in supplying animals with a reasonable amount of succulent food, either in the form of roots or silage. For a herd of 12 or more cows, this succulent food is most cheaply supplied by the use of silage; but for the smaller herd, or for a man without a silo, roots afford an excellent substitute for silage.

By care in preparing the soil and growing the crop, from 15 to 25 tons of roots, like mangles, rutabagas or stock carrots, can be grown per acre. They can be stored under the feeding alley, or in a pit outside of the barn, at very little expense. Twenty tons of roots will supply 10 cows 20 pounds per day each for 200 days, and can be grown and harvested at a cost of less than $40. The nutrients contained in 20 tons of roots are worth $30 when bran is worth $20 per ton; so the feeding value of the roots is sufficient to pay for the cost of production, besides the additional advantage of their supplying the succulence needed by the animal.

KEEPS SHEEP FROM JUMPING

Much Success Attained by Use of Light Board Strapped Around Neck of Breachy Animal.

One of our Illinois subscribers has tried with good success the plan of hanging by a broad strap a light board around the neck of the breachy sheep, says the Iowa Homestead. The board should be of such size and so hung that it will strike the sheep's knees when it tries to jump. The shape of board and the manner of hanging it are shown in the illustration.

Lice on Pigs.

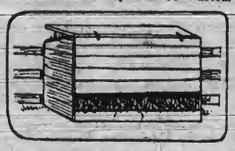
Do not imagine that the cold weather will discourage the lice on the pigs. Better kkill the pests now and then go at them again a month later.

GOOD SIRE MOST ECONOMICAL

Pure-Bred Bull Is Cheapest Investment Farmer Can Make in Building Up Standard of Herd.

(By RAY P. SPERR, Minnesota College of Agriculture.)

It has been demonstrated again and again that the cheapest investment that can be made by a farmer who is trying to build up the standard of a herd of cattle lies in the purchase of a good pure-bred bull. It is not necessary to buy several high-priced females as a basis for the average herd, nor is it economical. The most economical results can be obtained by buying a bull with masculinity enough behind his good breeding to stamp his likeness upon the calves secured.



A striking proof of this has been shown on the cattle show circuit at various state fairs this fall. One of many instances will suffice. Recently a prominent state fair judge had to choose between two cows with the same dam, but sired by different bulls, for the female championship of the breed. So strikingly similar in type was each of them to its own sire, though the dam was the same, that there was no trouble in distinguishing between the two. The one that had been produced by the more outstanding sire was so superior to the one that had been produced by the less superior bull that there was no trouble about the selection.

The principle illustrated is practical value to the farmer who is thinking of beginning a herd with limited capital, or who has a very common herd that he desires to grade up. An average group of calves will be far superior to their commonly bred mothers if a good pure-bred bull is used. Such a bull can be purchased very reasonably if proper care is taken by the purchaser.

ALFALFA FEEDER FOR SWINE

Excellent Methods of Supplying Hay to Porkers Is Shown in Illustration—Cover Is Needed.

A good way to keep the hogs supplied with alfalfa hay is to have a box as shown in the cut on a dry spot just inside the fence. Bolt or nail it to the fence to keep the hogs from rooting it about and upsetting it. The open space should not be too wide or considerable hay will be wasted.

An Alfalfa Feeder for Hogs.

The hogs will eat more and waste less if they can get but a sprig or two of hay at a time, says the Missouri Valley Farmer. The brighter the hay the better the porkers will like it and the more good it will do them. Be sure and have a cover on the box.

Silage for Horses.

Experiments at the Pennsylvania station showed that horses can gradually be accustomed to silage, and can eat it safely when it is sound and made from mature silage corn. Some animals do not readily accept cottonseed meal, though the number of such animals is relatively small. Silage-fed horses consumed less grain and were better finished and sleeker than those fed hay as the sole roughage. The use also of cottonseed meal resulted in higher gain and better finish than where oats was the principal source of protein.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Be careful not to let those fall pigs stop growing.

Which class of horses are you raising, the profit killer or the profit maker?

Sheep do not drink much water, but what little they drink must be absolutely clean.

Don't expect to make a profit on a flock of sheep unless you give them proper attention.

The ewes and lambs should be kept out of hearing of each other for a time when weaning.

Lack of thrift is induced by lack of care. A careless shepherd invariably makes a poor sheep.

Silage is well adapted for fattening lambs and for a part ration for wintering breeding sheep.

Sometimes a week's chill rains or cold weather will set the pigs back a month in their growth.

The day is not far distant when the scrub hog will be only a memory. Hasten its coming.

There is no animal that responds more quickly or more profitably to good treatment than the pig.

When hogs have free access to salt there is little danger of their eating enough to injure themselves.

Don't let the pigs get lousy. Spray them with kerosene emulsion, while eating, once every two weeks.

Sheep are a good medium for increasing the fertility of the farm of the man who has limited means.

It is almost impossible to crowd the young pigs too fast, provided you give the right kind of food and care.

Don't leave the sheep in a dry-short pasture. Give them a chance in a fresh pasture, or give a good grain ration.

If hogs are lousy set a small post, wrapped tight with an old rope, in the ground and soak the rope with coal oil. The hog will do the rest.

The Boy Corn Growers.

All Kentucky has reason to be pleased with the results achieved by the members of the boys' corn clubs during the year 1912.

Prize winners in forty-one counties have averaged 108 bushels of corn to the acre. In fifty-seven counties the boys have averaged over 100 bushels, and Commissioner Newman says more than 500 boys have averaged more than sixty bushels to the acre. An Owen county boy made the record crop, but he did so at a financial loss and thereby will not attain the State championship. The object of the competition is not merely to grow a great quantity of corn, but to grow it profitably.

The Owen county boy's record crop is 163 bushels, but it cost him $300 to produce it. A Warren county boy, on the contrary, raised 148 bushels on his acre of ground and did it at an expense of approximately 12½ cents a bushel. A Jefferson county boy grew 146 bushels; a Pulaski county boy, 140; a Hardin county boy, 132; a Laurel county boy and a Green county boy, 130 each; a Larue county boy, 125; an Owen county boy, 122; a Meade county boy, 120, and so on through the list, good records being made in every section of the State and nearly half of the 120 counties being represented.

This year the organization of the clubs should be extended to every county in the State. Business men in the county seat towns should encourage their formation and teachers in the rural schools should endeavor to enlist their boy pupils in the enterprise. There should be encouragement also for the girls' tomato clubs, which are a highly desirable adjunct to the corn-growing organizations. These movements are progressive and educative and of vast importance to the welfare of the State.—C.-J.

Owing to the advance in printing material the Recorder will hereafter charge fifty cents for publishing a copy of lodge resolutions of respect, the money to accompany the copy.

He clearly gave the four downward steps, rebellion, rejection, revelling and riotousness to the road of reaping. The parting of the ways, recklessness leading to rum and reflection leading to reformation. Hence to the upward steps of repentance resolution, renunciation and return and at the last the return to rejoising, reward and reception in Heaven. Rev. Riley and Mrs. Ben Berkshire rendered a very beautiful duet, "Thy Brother," at the beginning of the service.

Being a cripple in latter years she led a very quiet life, seldom going away from home. She bore her sufferings quietly and seemed willing and ready to go when the summons came. She was not a member of any church but a close student of the Bible. She leaves one sister to mourn the loss of a devoted sister.

The back water ascended Gunpowder creek as far as the late W. B. Ryle place. Considerable fodder was destroyed in the creek bottoms where corn was raised last year, as many did not have it hauled out, not thinking as large a rise was coming so soon in the year. It is an unlucky number any way.

Asphyxiated By Gas.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Boys of Kentucky who are here as guests of the Department of Agriculture because they were the champion corn growers of their respective counties the past season, today have lost much of their enthusiasm in the trip because of the untimely death of their State champion, Lester Bryant, 15, who was asphyxiated by gas in a rooming house yesterday.

Young Bryant's home was near Rockfield, Warren-co., Ky. He earned the honor of being State champion of the boy corn growers by harvesting 149 bushels of corn from one acre. His diploma from the Department of Agriculture will be sent to his parents.

It is believed today that young Bryant turned the gas off and then by a slip of the hand turned it back on, falling to sleep so quickly afterwards that he failed to notice the odor.

The State Auditor is preparing to get out the blank tax receipts for every county in the state as provided for by the law passed by the Legislature last winter. These tax receipts with stubs attached in book form will be sent to every county clerk and he will next year fill out each blank giving the name of the taxpayer and the amount of taxes due, and turn the book over to the sheriff for collection. The sheriff must sign the receipt when the taxes are paid and the book will show the exact amount collected. There will be no more than a million of these receipts and the Auditor expects to have them in the hands of the county clerks by February 1, and no other form of tax receipt will be valid after that date.

The members of the government life saving crew that Congressman A. B. Rouse had sent from Louisville to Covington, for duty during the flood last week, rendered excellent service according to Mayor Phillips, of Covington. This is another instance showing that Mr. Rouse is alive to the interest of his constituents at all times, and that is what is required to make a good Congressman.

Common school examination for January will be held on Friday and Saturday of this week. There has been another prize offered for the one receiving the 2nd highest general average of the two examinations in addition to the gold medal offered by Congressman A. B. Rouse.

The following persons called at the Recorder's office, last Monday: Rev. Geo. N. Buffington, of Erlanger; Chas. Gannett, of Kidville; W. P. Cropper, of North Bend; H. D. Brady, of Middle creek; Thos. Walton Dempsey, who went to Lawrenceburg the first of the year to make his home with his uncle, Harry Blyth and wife, returned to Burlington, last Friday night, having been put out of his home by the high water. Mr. Blyth's residence was in that part of the city that suffered most from the water, it being located in the lowest district, and when the alarm was given at the the time it was thought the levee was about to give way. Mr. Blyth and family took refuge in the court house. Mr. Dempsey says when the alarm was sounded the excitement that ensued was intense, the people expecting every minute to see a destructive torrent come rushing thru the town, destroying life and property alike.

Rural Route Patrons.

The Recorder fears that some of the people served by rural route No. 2 out of Burlington are becoming too exacting for their own good. Following the change of carriers on that route and the further fact that the new carrier is a stranger to both the country and the people and that the weather has been of the worst since he went on duty, some of the box owners are knocking because the carrier has not been able to render as good service as he will do when he becomes acquainted with the route and the weather becomes respectable. Those who have boxes on the route must remember that one of the conditions under which the route was established was that the roads would be kept in reasonable condition for travel. They must remember further that the government does not require the carrier to cross streams when it would endanger his life or subject the mail to injury. The government is reasonable in its demands. Another thing that some seem to have forgotten is that they are required to keep their names on their boxes, and keep the road to their boxes in good condition at all times. Again that a carrier is not required to collect the postage by scraping up loose coins placed in a letter box for the payment of postage—that he could not be punished if he refused to take up letters under these circumstances. If those served by route No. 2 will work as hard to do their duty towards the carrier as he does to serve them properly there will be no grounds for knocking. Put your names on your boxes and furnish the postmaster at Burlington with a list of all those who receive mail in your box and do the several things the Government expects of you and you will see an improvement in the service in every respect. With the mud and the creeks both past fording the carrier should not be expected to make every delivery on time, and he has made several the past two months that the department would have excused him for failing to make Route No. 2 is not in very good condition to be visited by an inspector, which is likely to happen if the requirements of the department are not observed more closely by those who have boxes to be served by the carrier. It must not be understood by the above that a majority of the box owners on the route are not taking an interest in the route and complying with the requirements of the department.

Dudley Strader and Lillian Parker, colored, of the Bullittsville neighborhood, were united in marriage one day last week by Judge Cason at the court house. The usual osculatory feature of the marriage ceremony was omitted on this occasion.

The creeks have been given a thorough washing out, and when along in February the weather gets real cold and ice is made it will be of fine quality to put up. Have your ice houses ready for the harvest for it will be along in a few weeks.

Esq. E. J. Aylor said when in Burlington, one day last week, he had his split drag ready for use as soon as the weather will admit. He is a firm believer in the split drag, and thinks every land owner along a public road should have one and use it freely along this time of the year.

Miss Sallie Craig, 76, pioneer resident of Boone county Kentucky, died yesterday at the Old Ladies' Home, Covington, of senility. She was the daughter of the late Frank V. Craig, well known farmer of Craig's Landing. The remains will be shipped to that place today by Undertakers Allison & Yates.

Not knowing the fact at the time, the Recorder failed to state last week that Mrs. Muntz's work rescuing her father-in-law and brother-in-law was down after dark. The skiff, one oar and the old man's hat was found the day following the accident some distance down the river, the ore and hat being beneath the skiff.

Kentucky's champion boy corn grower was asphixiated in Washington, last Monday, where he had gone on invitation of the Agricultural Department. He blew out the gas at the boarding house at which he was stopping and was found dead in his room. His remains were shipped to Bowling Green, near which city he resided.

Frank C. Greene, at one time the Commonwealth's Attorney in this judicial district, is a candidate for representative in the next Legislature in the Carroll-Gallatin district. He pledges himself not to introduce a bill during the session, and says that sixty per cent of the present laws ought to be repealed. His is not altogether a bad platform.

Remember the pie social the B. H. S. athletes will have at Library Hall, if they have appetites in keeping with their athletic accomplishments it will required a considerable number of pies to supply the demand that night. No doubt it will be a pie-eating stunt which it will be worth going a considerable distance to witness.

They do say that Russell Smith put in his time during the rainy weather practicing operating his auto in the garage. He had the hind wheels jacked up and practiced the use of the throttle and the peddles, not a bad idea by any means. The Recorder ventures the prediction that the Smith auto will be the nicest kept machine in this neighborhood.

The flood that swept the Ohio valley suspended business almost entirely last week, and it will take some time to recover from the effects of the high water, which spread destruction in every locality that it invaded. Those occupying homes in the hill country do not realize the hardships resulting from such floods as that now subsiding in the Ohio river. Outside of the property loss the inconvenience to those who have to move out of their homes is an immense item, to say nothing about the suspense one suffers.

Raising Mules.

Mule raising must rightly be considered a necessary accompaniment of regular farm life and work, for the mule has distinct advantages over horses which it is not well to overlook, and which makes them highly adapted to the farm. To be sure there are some difficulties attending the breeding of them, such as the natural repugnance of mares towards the sire. Against the objections you have the mule's great immunity to disease, its long working service and its average longer life. Short time ago in Tennessee, a mule there was reported as being fifty-two years old and at that age was still able to do light work. How many instances have you ever heard of horses reaching such and age? They are very rare.

Mule teams are always in demand, and a glance at the market will shows will show that they are selling at good figures. The breeding fee does not usually come as high as for colts, but in all cases, if possible, the parent stock should be the hardiest possible to procure. After the foal is delivered the mare ought not to be worked for about two weeks, although some authorities favor not less than ten days. The young mule is very taxinf to a mare's vitality, and in about three weeks he can be taken away at nights from its mother and placed in a lot alone.

At two months he may be given a small quantity of oats for each meal, increasing this ration with the addition of bran and alfalfa. The first attempt at weaning should be final and this can be done at the age of five or six months as the conditions warrant. Be sure he is not allowed to suck in when once taken away from his mother, and either tie him up or turn him loose to himself. If he is in a secure lot, with no chance of getting hurt on barbed wire, etc., turning him loose in a lot is preferable and he can then be provided with a feed trough from which to eat about one ear of corn at a meal along with a quantity of hay. Let him develop for about four years before putting him to work.—B. H. W. in Indiana Farmer.

Ten Things.

Ten things for which no one has ever yet been sorry. They are:

1. For doing good to all.
2. For being patient toward everybody.
3. For hearing before judging.
4. For thinking before speaking.
5. For holding an angry tongue.
6. For being kind to the distressed.
7. For asking pardon for all wrongs.
8. For speaking evil of none.
9. For stopping the ears to talebearers.
10. For disbelieving most of the ill reports.—Ex.

Carry Your Towel With You.

The common towel, which has been in use from time immemorial on trains and at railroad depots, has been condemned as unsanitary and must go.

All officers, agents and conductors of railroads throughout the country, have been advised by the Secretary of the United States Treasury, in a circular letter sent out from Washington that under the provisions of the Interstate Quarantine regulations, which have recently been amended, that all common carriers shall not have in cars, or other public conveyances, or in depots and waiting rooms, towels for use by more than one person.

The effect of this regulation is to do away entirely with the common towel at depots and on passenger trains, and the public which has been used to this convenience will have to govern itself accordingly. In other words the common towel, like the public drinking cup, has been classed as a germ disseminator, and will henceforth not be found in the local depots, or on trains, and passengers who have been accustomed to use these luxuries will have to provide themselves with individual towels, or do without them if the regulations are enforced.

CARRYING PINS IN POCKET

Convenient Little Cushion That May Be Made From Remnant of Discarded Kid Glove.

The little pincushion from which our sketch is drawn was made many, many years ago from material taken from an old kid glove, and it is still in use. It is circular in shape and measures two inches across.

In making it [illegible] are cut out just a trifle larger at the edges with a piece of narrow sarcenet ribbon and the space inside well stuffed with cotton wool. In the center, the two sides are tightly sewn together with silk, which is run right through the cushion and then drawn tightly over the edges at intervals, dividing it up into eight sections in the manner illustrated.

The pins are, of course, inserted into the ribbon at the edge, and the small sketch on the right clearly shows this and illustrates a side view of the cushion, which should be barely a quarter of an inch in thickness when finished.

To complete the cushion, a tiny button is sewn on in the center at either side. In a pair of old elbow gloves, enough material will be found to make several of these little cushions, and as an item of bazar preparations, they should not be forgotten.

EASY TO CHANGE THE SCENT

Clever Girl Has Devised Sachet That Will Outlast Those in Common Use at Present.

The great trouble of the handsome silk sachets is that when the scent fails they must either be discarded or remade. A clever young girl who is fond of orris root among her belongings has overcome this difficulty in a simple manner.

She makes her sachet cases of strips of ribbon, weaving two or more colors together, just as kindergarten children weave paper. The ribbon is cut in equal lengths, and as many pieces are necessary as the size of the case requires. The best way to guage this is to decide on the size, then divide its length by the width of the ribbon to show the number of pieces and cut each piece a little longer than the width of the case.

Sometimes the ribbons are woven into a square, again they are made oblong. The squares are effective when folded over into a triangle when finished.

The sachet powder is sprinkled thickly on the sheets of cotton batting a little smaller than the woven case and slipped inside. Instead of sewing it in, the ends of the cover are tied with narrow ribbon bows. These are put on according to the shape of the sachet, sometimes at the corners or if it is quite large they must go on the sides as well.

The raw ends of ribbon left after weaving are turned under and fastened with a small stitch. Charming color combinations can be made. Serviceable as well as decorative cases can be woven in tones of brown and ecru or in two shades of old blue. More delicate tones are of rose, pink and silver, lavender and pale corn-color, baby blue and white.

Theater Muff.

Two large garlands of small pink satin roses trim the front of a theater muff recently brought from Paris. The pillow of this muff is a quarter by half yard oblong covered with rose satin, veiled with rose dot-embroidered net and finished at both ends with two narrow frillings of finely plaited rose net. The two garlands start from against a mass of pink roses and black velvet foliage near the center of the muff's lower edge, and extend toward its upper corners, thus almost covering the front of the accessory. This model would be lovely duplicated in blue with forget-me-nots, in yellow with buttercups, in green with young strawberry leaves and in mauve with violets. In white, trimmed with black velvet foliage, it would be wonderfully chic.

Round Tablecloths.

Tablecloths with circular designs, suitable for round tables, are used more than ever; but those who have had experience have learned that it is better to purchase a tablecloth with square corners and the circular design inside rather than one finished round. The round tablecloths are very difficult to launder and almost never hang well after laundering. Even the manufacturers have learned that lesson, so that some of them do not even make the round cloths.—Harper's Bazar.

Shoes and Short Skirts.

The modern short skirt should make a woman very keen about her shoes, she should learn the modes and observe them, she should be willing to be extravagant even in footwear, and should she hesitate let her scrutinize the shoes of others, and their transgressions will be an effective aid to speedy elimination of any carelessness in that line in herself.

PRETTY FOR CARDCASE

DECORATION THAT IS ARTISTIC AND DURABLE.

In Addition, Almost Every Woman Will Be Able to Make It for Herself—Sage-Green and Gold Are the Colors.

When milady goes calling she must be supplied with an attractive card-case. If carried in a purse, among other articles, calling cards quickly become soiled, so a special case must be provided for them.

Many women prefer a cardcase of leather to one of silver or gold. The latter invariably soils the white gloves, while one made of leather, especially of a light tint, prevents this catastrophe.

Artistic cardcases are rather expensive, but any woman who is at all clever can successfully make them herself.

The leather can be purchased at any arts and crafts shop where supplies are sold.

Take the design given here and place a sheet of carbon paper between it and the leather. Carefully trace each outline with a sharply pointed pencil. The design will be perfectly duplicated on the leather ready for coloring.

The design shows a conventional arrangement of two flowers. Sage-green suede could be effectively used for this cardcase, with the design done in gold. If preferred, the petals can be cut out with a sharp knife and insets of petal-shaped enamel used. These are sold at the arts and crafts shop. For lining the case use a bright green silk or a vivid flower design. Sometimes the flowers are cut out with a sharp knife and the silk lining provides the color. In this case a plain silk must be used. Suede is pliable and can be stitched on the machine.

You can utilize this motif effectively when decorating covers for books, blotters or tables. It will also prove an excellent design for stenciling.

DESIGNS IN NECK RIBBONS

Singularly Pretty Are Many of the Styles That Are in Favor for This Season.

The latest development of the sautoir is the grosgrain or moire ribbon with plain or picot edge and a large single ornament on the left side, says Vogue. One of the prettiest of these is a circular motif of exquisite delicacy. Another is a square of finest filet lace mesh wrought in platinum and diamonds, placed diagonally on the ribbon and held at the two opposite corners by two diamonds. These are again attached to a jeweled section that covers the ends of the ribbon. If a simpler chain for the lorgnon is desired there is the solitary pearl without any metal and strung as a slide or a silk cord. Both men and women are adopting this incongruous but handsome device.

Perhaps one of the most pleasing novelties of the moment is a velvet neckband with slides of seed pearls. These come with two or three slides or with a simple festoon. They are both radical departures from the old-fashioned themes, such as the rosette and the bowknot.

Dark Versus Light Furs.

It seems odd that so few should realize that dark furs are much more becoming than light, that is, to the average woman. Sable, mink, black fox, make her complexion look at its very best, whereas ermine, white fox, miniver and squirrel have exactly the contrary effct.

The newest way of wearing the stole is to put the middle of it on in front, pass the ends over the shoulders, crossing them at the back and bringing them forward under the arms. Even fur caps with their rounded or pointed backs are worn in this fasion, certainly very warm and comfortable, though slightly unorthodox.

Muffs and Stoles.

There appears to be no limit to the size of muffs and stoles this season, but the wise woman will see that the lining of her granny muff is ruched up so as to leave but a small aperture for the hands; otherwise she will derive but little advantage from the fur as far as warmth is concerned. The long, wide stoles are without doubt both useful and becoming articles, and can be worn in many ways which insure the maximum amount of graceful appearance.

PRIMARY ELECTION LAW

Passed By The Last General Assembly.

The new primary election law passed by the last legislature made many changes in the old manner of nominating candidates for office. Candidates for county and city offices should study the law carefully in order to acquaint themselves with its provisions, because certain things must be done before a candidate's name can legally go on the ballot at the August primary election.

Hereafter all devices will be eliminated. Only the names of the candidates will appear on the ballot, and if there are voters who are unable to read they will have a hard time finding their choice on the ballot. With the use of devices voters who could not read found little trouble in locating their favorites, but this has been changed by the new election law and instead of a ballot resembling a curcular poster, it will contain nothing but printed matter with the names of candidates in the proper order.

One thing candidates should not overlook is preparing the nominating petitions and having the required number of legal voters signatures. A failure in this will keep their names off the ballot. Candidates for county and city offices must file nominating petitions bearing the signatures of not less than three per cent and of more than 10 per cent of the legal voters of the total party at the last election for presidents.

It will be just as fatal to a candidate to secure more than 10 per cent than less than three per cent. This limit of signatures was probably incorporated in the law to prevent candidates from getting out early and securing a majority of signatures, which would prevent other candidates from getting up a nominating petition.

Candidates must bear in mind that nominating papers and petitions must be filed with the county clerk thirty days before the election and nominating petitions for signatures must not be circulated earlier than 60 days before the date of filing, which is ninety days before the election. The election will be held on Saturday, August 2nd, 1913. According to the provisions of the law petitions must not be circulated for signatures before next May and June. If they are candidates will be barred from entering the primary.

New County Committee.

The precinct Democratic Committeemen elected last Saturday met at the court house in Burlington, last Monday, and organized the County Democratic Committee by electing B. B. Hume, Chairman, and T. F. Curley, of Walton, Secretary. The following committeemen were present:

B. B. Hume—Burlington.
James A. Huey—Union.
Ben Berkshire—Petersburg.
James Smith—Belleview.
Chas. Garnett—Constance.
T. F. Curley—Walton.
O. K. Whitson—Verona by proxy.
Geo. Ossman—Beaver by proxy.
Ben Stephens—Florence, absent.
W. W. Grimsley—Big Bone, absent.

A resolution indorsing T. F. Curley for postmaster at Walton was voted down, although several of the committee singnified their willingness to sign his petition as individuals.

The meeting was harmonious throughout, and as the new election law has taken from the committee most of the duties it use to perform, it will have but little to do in the future.

Mr. Harris and two assistants are busy at the county clerk's office abstracting the title to the land which the government proposes to acquire at McVille, this county for the purpose of constructing a lock and dam on the same plan as that at Home City, Ohio. Mr. Smith is the same gentleman who did that work in this county for the government when it was locating the Home City dam. It is understood that the power house will be located at McVille, but it will be about three years before work on the dam will begin, as two others are to be constructed before work is begun at McVille.

To Make Money on the Farm.

One way to make money on the farm is to save it by so distributing the labor throughout the year that the minimum of hiring may be done and the farm owner may always be busy. The winter season is often the leisure time of the farmer. Here are some ways in which he can profitably employ his time.

The winter months afford opportunity for overhauling and repairing all farm machinery. During the cultivating, sowing and harvesting seasons whenever it is noticed that any part of a machine is needing repair, a note should be made of the defect; then in winter the farmer should have a comfortable room where all such parts can be made good. A thorough cleaning of the bearings and gearings of any machine reduces friction, saves wear and often discloses worn out parts. If all farm machinery is carefully looked after in this way during the slack season, much annoyance and money will be saved the following summer.

[illegible] farmers will look after the selection, and germination tests of seeds, which are to be planned next summer, during the winter months. He who sends early to his seedsman for samples of seeds selects those free from weed seeds and of high germinating power, and buys early, will often be rewarded by greatly increasing yields. Help and information concerning selection and germination tests of seeds will be gladly furnished by the Kentucky Experiment Station, upon application.

Every farmer should have stock to care for during the winter months. Live stock can be so managed that the largest amount of work connected with it will come in winter. The feeding and care of the dairy herd will be the heaviest in winter. Early lambs will make a busy time during the latter part of winter. The proper housing of stock during the cold and stormy month will add to the work of feeding as well as to the quantity of manure, which should be hauled upon the land practically as fast as it is made. All of these things help to make a profitable and busy winter season. The winter evenings furnish a good time for laying out the future plans for the farm, and for the architectural study of any farm buildings that are to be constructed or remodeled. Locating new buildings, laying out new fences to be built, working out rotations of crops, planning tile drains, studying laboring-saving devices for the housewife as well as for yourself, are interesting and valuable problems for the long evenings of winter.

The farmer, of all business men, is the man who is most careless about keeping account of his business. No merchant who does not keep records would expect to succeed, neither should the farmer. Now is the time to take an inventor of the farm stock and to open up accounts for the New Year. If the farmer cannot do this, he should hand the problem to the sixteen year old son or daughter. At the close of another year it should be known exactly what crops and what lot of stock have furnished profits.

STILL NEAR THE BOTTOM.

In a comparative study of the State school system made by the Russell Sage Foundation, Kentucky is assigned forty-second place in general efficiency among the forty-eight States in the Union.

In currency expenditure per child of school age Kentucky ranks fortieth; in average value of school property, thirty-eighth; in average per centage of attendance, fortieth; in average annual salary of teachers, thirty-third. The average percentage of attendance in Kentucky is 63.6. The average annual salary of teachers is $337. Kentucky provides fifty-seven days of schooling per year for every child in the State.

These are some of the facts gleaned from a New York dispatch telling of the study made by the Russell Sage Foundation. It is well that we should occasionally "see ourselves as others see us." It is by comparison that we may best take note of our progress and the showing that is made by Kentucky in this exhibit of American school systems is not such as to give us pleasure or pride.

It seems hardly believable that Kentucky one of the oldest States of the Union, should be behind so many other Commonwealths in educational advancement, but that such is the case was fully established even before the existence of the Russell Sage Foundation. This latest report, therefore, comes in the nature of cumulative evidence. It merely emphasizes the necessity of accelerating the educational campaign.

The people of Kentucky need some forcible reminders, once in a while, of the low school status. This Russell Sage Foundation report comes within that category and may in that sense be helpful, but it is not to be classed as desirable advertising for the Commonwealth.—C. J.

Winter Feeding of Brood Sows.

If the sow is rather thin in the fall she should gain in weight throughout the winter. A gain of fifty pounds will cover the loss of weight at pigging time and leave a stock of energy which will insure, with right feeding, a maximum fat, however. is a bad sign, especially if it has been put on with corn alone and at the expense of exercise. Too much fat makes the sow inactive, the pigs tend to come weak and poorly developed, the sow is apt to be nervous and irritable in temper and succeptible to the pig eating habit. Further more, it results in a deficient milk supply and an uneven growth among the pigs.

The experience is universal that too much corn and too little exercise are the twin evils responsible for 90 per cent of the bad luck during the farrowing season. By actual breeding tests, also, it has been demonstrated that to produce a strong and vigorous, even litter of pigs, and to properly mother and nourish them, the sow must be fed a ration which will satisfy her own needs for maintenance and growth if she will supply the raw material out of which strong pigs can be made and, in addition, permit her to lay on some fat. A free range of pasture or field will ordinarily be sufficiently inviting to guarantee an abundance of activity and exercise which, if supplemented by supplying a roomy, partially open shed which is regularly cleaned and bedded, will be all that is necessary to insure good results from good feeding.

During December the mature brood sow will do well on a little corn alone if she has access to a pasture. During January she will make satisfactory progress on a little corn and all the clover or alfalfa she cares to eat. The December ration will be fairly appropriate during February, also, especially if the hay is of fine quality and much is eaten. Although a little more expensive, a better ration during the last month of the pregnant period would be about 3 parts corn to one of shorts with clover or alfalfa hay. For gilts the above rations should have a supplements of shorts, tankage, or oil meal. About 10 parts of corn to one of tankage, or two parts of corn to one of shorts during the early part of the winter and equal parts during the last half, will give fine results. And fine results means a lot of pigs capable of making the gains which will put them on an early market.—Prof. W. W. Smith, Purdue University, Agricultural Extension.

WANTS TO BE U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

ATTORNEY O. M. ROGERS, of Erlanger.

Was born in Boone County in 1872, and was married to Katharine Smith, of Burlington, in 1900. They have three children, two daughters and a son. Mr. Rogers was educated in the public schools of Boone County and the Transylvania University at Lexington. He graduated from the Cincinnati Law School in 1897, and has been in the active practice of law in both Federal and State Courts for fifteen years. He has been a close student of the law, and has conducted with rare success the trial of many important cases, both civil and criminal. He is regarded as one of the best trial lawyers in this section of the State, and in the trial of cases he is always courteous to the court and the opposing counsel, but never asks any quarter and never grants any. He has built up a lucrative practice and has for his clients some of the best and most substantial citizens of this section of the State. He is a director in two banks. He has never been a candidate for nor held a public office, though often importuned to be a candidate for responsible places. Mr. Rogers is a Democrat both by birth and by conviction and has contributed liberally of his time and means to the success of the party. He is now an applicant for the position of United States District Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky, a position which he is eminently qualified to fill. If appointed he will make a faithful and efficient officer and will be a terror to the law violator. Mr. Rogers is popular with the people and his appointment would be hailed with delight by the Democrats of his native county.

The latter part of last week D. L. Bell received from Congressman A. B. Rouse a large flag which Mr. Rouse requested him to present it to the Trimble County High School to be raised over its building, the flag is now at the Democrat office. It's dimensions are 7½ by 12 feet.

This flag was taken from the Nation's Capitol Building at Washington, D. C., where it has floated over the deliberations of our highest officers and law makers. It has the marks of service and is of great value for that reason. Mr. Rouse could not have presented his people here weeks ago, has moved back to with a New Year's remembrance that would be more appreciated. He is alert, ever thoughtful of friends and constituents. No Congressman gets nearer to the people than Rouse.—Trimble Co. Democrat.

The horse driven by Miss Sadie Lee Snyder, of Florence neighborhood, who is attending Burlington High School, became frightened last Monday morning near the first bridge out on the Florence pike, and became unmanageable and began running. Miss Sadie Lee not being strong enough to control the animal the buggy was turned over and the young lady thrown out, and strange to relate she was not hurt in the least. The top was torn off the buggy and one of the spindles was somewhat bent. The horse came on up into town, where it was stopped without much trouble. Lucien Clore was attending to his milk at the side of the road, and when the young lady struck the ground she was within a few feet of him, and he picked her up instantly, and was surprised to find that she was not hurt badly.

Edward Webb Smith, aged 56 years, died at his home in St. Louis, Missouri, on the night of the 17th inst. He was a son of the late Dr. J. F. Smith, for many years a citizen of Burlington. He was a brother of A. W. Smith, of Walton, and H. W. Smith and Mrs. O. M. Rogers, of Erlanger. His wife was Miss Lena Foster, daughter of the late Jerry Foster, many years ago a citizen of Burlington. He is survived by his wife and two sons, Leonard, aged 24 years, and Geo. aged 22. The family has made their home in St. Louis for about twelve years. Mr. Smith was a printer and ranked high in that trade, and held many responsible positions in the leading printing offices in St. Louis. He took his first lessons in the art in the office of the Boone Co. Recorder, beginning his work with the first edition of the paper. He was a jovial, companionable fellow and was a favorite with all, as to know him was to like him.

So far as heard from the candidates are agreed on one thing —that the canvass for the primary election ought not to begin before the first of April, to which the voters will also agree.

Mrs. Jemima Tanner Popham, aged 92, last August, died at her home in Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, last Wednesday night. Mrs. Popham was a daughter of the late James Tanner, who many years ago was known by every person far and near as one of the finest cooks for barbecues in the State of Kentucky. She was born in this county, where she spent her long life, Albert Popham, who died many years ago, being her husband. She is survived by three children, two sons, John and James Popham, and one daughter, Mrs. George Youell. She was not a member of any church, but had strong religious convictions. The remains were interred in the family cemetery on the farm owned by Mrs. Frances Clutterbuck in the Pt. Pleasant neighborhood. Thus another pioneer citizen has been removed from among us, one whose life is worthy the emulation of all.

This month has provided many days of good weather for stripping tobacco and many of the growers have made good use of it, consequently a considerable portion of last year's crop will be delivered to the local buyers or put on the market at an early date. There has not been much said about this year's crop but the prices tobacco has been bringing is calculated to encourage the pitching of a very large acreage, and a consequent reduction in the corn crop. One thing that is calculated to keep down the acreage is the lack of help, in which there has been a very large falling off in the last few years in this county. It use to be that a farmer could get all the help he desired in his crop and the arear planted was limited only by the house room of which he had control. It was in those da ys that the soil of this county was sacrificed and many farms reduced to a non-productive condition which has never been overcome. Tobacco has been a big source of revenue to this county but it has been a heavy tax on the land.

The Fiscal court was in session last Wednesday and had but little to do other than make the annual settlemennts with the sheriff.

The following sheep claims were allowed and ordered certified to the Auditor of Public Accounts for paymennt: C. C. Bedinger, $5.00; B. A. Floyd, $45.

Levies for county purposes were made as follows:

For general expense fund, 10 cents on each $100 worth of taxable property and $1.50 poll tax.

For generai road fund, 15 on each $100 worth of taxable property.

For school purposes, 20 cents on each $100 worth of taxable property and $1.00 poll tax.

AFTER A TERRIFFIC FIGHT

The Death-Dealing Intruder Is Captured After Destroying Much Livestock.

Danville, Jan. 15.—During the past two months more than seventy-five farm dogs and fully as many calves, sheep and shoats, in the Dix River country east of town, have been killed and partially devoured by a ferocious beast which, by its nightly prowls and bloody depredations, has spread terror among the sturdy citizenry of that locality. Numerous attempts have been made to slay the death-dealing intruder, but until last night all efforts had proven futile. Sheriff B. G. Fox, accompanied by Joe Harlan and the celebrated hunter, Henry Coffee, left town last night with a pack of the most vicious dogs that could be gotten together. The men carried rifles. The dogs encountered the animal on the banks of Dix River. A terrific fight ensued, during which the dogs and their vicious antagonist landed in the water, where the fight was still continued. Several of the dogs weakened from the desperate struggle, were drowned. Harlan's noted bulldog, "Slim," finally caught the strange animal and held on with a deathlike grip until a charge from a Winchester pierced the body of the mysterious antagonist. "Slim" then succeeded in carrying the animal ashore and it was brought to town. Hundreds of people have viewed the monster, but are not able to name it. It weighs about fifty-eight pounds and is a light gray in color and has the features of a wolf, but is of a heavier build.

The suit of the Commonwealth of Kentucky against Buffum Johnson and others, involving the old Kincaid 36,000-acre survey on the waters of Richland and Goose creeks in Knox county was tried before Judge Sampson in the Knox Circuit Court this week by a jury, and a verdict rendered in favor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, forfeiting all the title which the defendants, Buffum Johnson and their associates claimed in that boundary, consisting of 3,000 acres of land and 16,000 acres of mineral rights. It is proposed by the attorneys for the defendants to carry the case to the Court of Appeals and this, no doubt, will be done. It will certainly be a God-send to the citizenship of that part of Knox county to have this title forfeited to the State so that the citizens who owned the land originally and who reside upon it may have a chance of perfecting their title.—Barbourville Advocate.

The effort to get the two factions of the Republican party together does not seem to be making much headway. There is so much hostility on the part of each faction that many of them would join the Democrats before they would make any concession that might be necessary to bring about a reconciliation. There does not appear to be much chance for any getting together stunts any ways soon among the Republicans.

Miss Cassie M. Foulke.

Miss Cassie M. Foulke was born near Taylorsport, Boone county, Ky., June 24, 1828; she was the eldest child of Thomas Foulke and his wife, Ann Matilda Smith, and the only one of their children who lived to maturity.

On the ancestral farm Cassie lived very nearly all her long life through. When she was eighteen years of age it became incumbent upon her to assist her mother in the maintenance of the family—her father having died when she was quite young. This duty fell onto willing shoulders for as her mother idealized her so also did she idealize her mother, making this service a labor of love.

In youth, when life is wont to be aflame with joy, it is said one could but wonder at the beautiful serenity with which she put from her many and many a prospective pleasure as if, indeed, such joy was not meant for her, there being other things to do.

Faithfully she performed this loving service not only through youth but down and through old age, not knowing that this strenuous life was but her one chance of winning the prize of learning love. When her last loved one had passed to the beyond, and she stood alone free to go anywhere in the world that she chose, she soon realized that she was never quite so satisfied as when back near the old home and among the people whom she had known so long and loved.

She had many friends who loved and honored her for her upright, straight-forward, honest walk through life; for her kindly sympathetic nature; her genial, social qualities, and for the fact that she was a good woman which embraces everything, and is the highest compliment that can be paid.

On the morning of Jan. 2, 1913, she passed through what is termed death, to new light and new life; to where all her sorrows shall be soothed, her ideals realized, herself perfected and where she shall be satisfied; for she shall begin a new cycle, a new harmony yet to be run and continued.

Beneath the sinew and muscle and nerve repose a form of finer texture, more powerful and intrinsic, which, in due time, persists. The old body that had served her nearly 85 years was weak and feeble, and so fell away leaving the bright and deathless spirit in the unsheltered day, nothing lost, but having gathered into that form the shaping potencies of its whole career. Once needing the body, it can now stand alone a new and untrammeled being in the wide and deep gladness.

And the old body that the soul had built out of minerals and gases for its temple during its sojourn here, that house of mystery, that house not made with hands, was laid kindly and reverently in the grave in the little cemetery at Francesville, with supreme faith that the great Universal God, who is over all, in all and through all, never has, and never can make a mistake.

H. P. S.

An exchange remarks that the defenders of Wall street are claiming that the money trust investigation has not shown "a particle of evidence that anybody is compelled to go into the street and do the lamb act there." This is misleading. It has been shown that, whether or not we appear in the street personally, we are all there as lambs. It takes the money of the whole nation to make Wall street gambling go. Surely, all the actual holders of stocks in which the gambling is done "do the lamb act." The wool is shorn off them at long range quite as closely as if they were in the rambler's den, held by the legs and ears while the shears were put to them. In fact, the thing made most apparent in the investigation is that the whole country is lamb-like in the way it is shorn. Wall street makes lambs of us all. It drains money from our banks, big and little at shearing time and it selects its own shearing time. Make no mistake. We are the mutton, all right.—Ex.

Young man, if you are in school work hard on your studies. If you are out of school, work hard and get back in.

Teacher, is your school out? Take a course of study in some college.

Trustees should keep their eyes upon a good teacher and employ him for next year.

What are you reading these long nights, Mr. Parent? Take up a light course and stick to it. Be a bigger man next year.

We notice that the teachers are leaving the profession of teaching of teaching for that of farming. Why? Because it is more independent and lucrative.

In your State institutions are departments of domestic science where girls are taught to sew and to cook. Why? The government has realized the importance of the teaching people how to live.

Agriculture will be taught primarily in the common schools in less than two years. Teachers, are you getting ready for the work?—Owen County Democrat.

There is a great demand for butter, milk and cream but the supply is very limited. It is almost impossible to get an extra pint or quart of cream for an emergency. Many who used to keep cows and sell the dairy products found the cost of feed too high and sold off all cows except those needed for their own supplies. This has created a continual shortage in those products so necessary in the make-up of good cooking. We would think it would pay the farmers to make an effort to supply this demand.—Blue Grass Clipper.

"FAGGED-OUT" WOMEN
Will Find a Helpful Suggestion In This Letter.
Overworked, run-down, "fagged out" women who feel as though they could hardly drag about, should profit by Miss Richter's experience. She says: "Last winter I was completely run down and felt fagged out all the time, was nervous and had indigestion.
"One of my friends advised me to take Vinol, and it has done me great good. The tired, worn-out feeling is all gone, and I am strong, vigorous and well. The stomach trouble soon disappeared and now I eat heartily and have perfect digestion. I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol, for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol." Marie Richter, Detroit, Mich.
Thousands of women and men who were formerly weak and sickly owe their present rugged health to the wonderful strength-creating effects of Vinol. We guarantee Vinol to build you up and make you strong. If it does not, we give back your money.

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Keep the sows warm.

The busy hen lays best.

Keep the boar by himself.

Maintain regularity in all things.

Green bone is very rich in phosphate of lime.

Chickens will not stand crowding, they are too warm blooded.

Nothing is more desirable in horseflesh than tractability and gentleness.

When the days are long, some people have just that much more time to kill.

If the market value of feed is unsatisfactory, sell it to the cows and shoats.

Sheep, if given half a chance, and if of good healthy stock are sure to pay their way.

Keep off the surplus fat by feeding muscle-producing foods and giving plenty of exercise.

Remember that the wood ashes are the best kind of fertilizer for the orchard, lawn or garden.

Skim milk from the right kind of separator has left in it only a half of 1 per cent. of butter fat.

Beg, borrow or buy all the wood ashes you can to use in the garden; work it well into the soil.

Celery delights in a low, rich, heavy, moist soil and is usually grown upon the same land year after year.

Save every bit of the hen manure. Keep it dry and put it on some crop next spring. Worth its weight in gold.

Keep a close watch over the suckling colts. A blemish or an injury now may ruin the value of the future horse.

Cows will not give better milk than the feed you place before them. They can't. Give only the best and the purest food.

Experienced onion growers do not advise or follow the practice of planting onions on raw or new land as a first crop.

The man who dubbed the hog a "mortgage lifter" was posted; he knew something of the possibilities of the animal.

A small flock of vigorous sheep on the farm, if given good care, cannot help but yield good returns for the money invested.

The land that was plowed in the fall for next year's garden will work up better than that that must be plowed in the spring.

A mixture of corn and oats—two parts oats to one of corn—is a good working ration. Cracked corn is preferable to finely ground.

Breeding ewes and store sheep will winter well on good, bright wheat straw and stubble grasses and half pound of corn given to each daily.

Draft horses continue to be the leading market animals, best on the farm, best in the market and one of the prosperous live stock propositions for 1913.

A feeder may have his bin full of grain, but unless he has sufficient roughage to balance up the ration he will be shy on his profit at the end of the season.

Frequent cultivation of the garden reduces the damage done by cut worms. Cultivation exposes the worms to the sun, which is often fatal to them.

Keep over a few of the best ewes of your own breeding each year, even though they are not so good as you might buy. It will make your flock more uniform all the time.

A successful way that turkeys can be grown is to hatch them under hens (chicken hens preferred) and brood them with turkey hens that are two or more years of age.

The cellar needs a little thought these days. Ventilate well at night and shut the doors and windows during the daytime. You can keep the cool night air in and the warmer air out.

The value of skimmilk as a food for young and growing pigs has long been recognized and several experiment stations have made comparative tests with other feeds obtaining quite similar results.

Hens need green food.

Ventilate the hen house.

Fruit is splendid medicine.

Dogs and chickens don't mix.

Half-bred cows give half-pails of milk.

A draft horse should have a large chest and square shoulders.

Keep the stable clean and well ventilated, and free from draught.

Put not your faith in the gentle bull more than in the vicious one.

Wash your hands with clean water before commencing to milk each cow.

The most important factor in soil improvement is growing leguminous crops.

The easiest way to eradicate weeds on the farm is to prevent their going to seed.

A shed of crotches and poles, covered with straw, is cheap, warm and businesslike.

Don't feed the brood sow heavy rations of corn when within a month of farrowing.

Keep dust and stuff out of your milk. You can't strain it out. Remember that.

The ability to produce profit is a standard by which all farm stock must be measured.

Silage made of corn and soy beans is more digestible than that made from corn silage alone.

You can weaken the constitution of your horse by making them carry a burden of useless flesh.

Whole oats placed on a dry, raised platform are a most profitable feeds for young and growing pigs.

To be of much good for feeding, corn ought to have pretty good ears on it. These are what count.

Oat straw is a pretty good substitute and makes very good roughage when fed with plenty of grain.

The Ayreshire and Guernsey type of dairy cattle are increasing in favor in the middle western states.

Individual excellence is the only safe guide to be depended upon in selecting cows to build up a good herd.

Some day we are going to find that as good a way as any to use the surplus sour milk is to give it to the hens.

One good dairy cow of the right conformation is more of an adjunct than several beefy animals with poor udders.

Has the kitchen garden a raspberry patch? They are hardy, excellent bearers, and certainly one of the most delicious fruits.

The cow that comes fresh in the fall is really fresh twice during the year, the second time when grass comes in spring.

If corn is to be the main grain ration for the cows, some bran or alfalfa hay will balance it nicely. But it is not necessary to feed both.

The mangel grows well, both north and south, and on good soil will pay as well as any other feeding crop in its proper place in the ration.

The wise dairy farmer has provided himself with a bunch of shoats and will make 9 or 10 cent pork out of cheap skim milk this winter.

At all times keep plenty of oyster shells, coarse gravel, fresh water, and milk before the chickens. In cold weather give them warm water and milk.

It is wrong to expect the cow to yield a large profit simply because she is well bred. She must have feed and care or the breeding will amount to nothing.

Snap beans, lima beans and navy beans are tap-rooted plants and require deep, mellow soil. Break the soil deeply and pulverize it well before you plant beans.

Experimenters say it takes about ten bushels of corn to make 100 pounds of pork, but when the corn is fed with skimmilk, seven bushels will make the same weight.

The successful dairy farmer must provide winter feed of a succulent nature. The silo is the best answer and next to this is roots. These are becoming more popular every year.

Don't imagine that the profits of the dairy business depend entirely upon the creamery, and not upon the farm or farmer. The dairy must be right before the creamery can bring the money.

If you haven't a respectable sized orchard on the place, don't stand in your own light any longer but set one out. The preserves, jams, marmalades, etc., that you enjoy so much through the fall and winter should remind you of the necessity of having a first-class and good-sized orchard.

The Eastern Star Chapter had a very enjoyable session Monday night when Mrs. G. W. Murphy, of Walton, was initiated into the mysteries of the order, following which a nice collation was served. Hon. G. Ellsworth Carroll, who so faithfully represented Boone county in the last Ky. Legislature, has been importuned to become a candidate for reelection by quite a number of friends, and he has the matter under consideration, and indicates that he will in all probability become a candidate for the Democratic nomination. Mr. Carroll has a strong following and is interested in all of the progressive features for the benefit of the people and particularly the farmers. He will announce his determination in a short time.

Mrs. Sarah E. Holder, of Covington, is spending the winter at Los Angeles, California, with her sister Mrs. Emma A. Lermond and daughter, Miss Effie, formerly of Walton, arriving at Los Angeles Dec. 22d, enjoying her California Christmas turkey as much as the Kentucky variety, and had the unusual privilege of picking roses and carnations in the dead of winter. Mrs. Holder finds quite a change from the Kentucky winters although Jack Frost has been visiting that sunny clime lately, nipping flowers and orange groves in a manner distinctly unusual. She and her relatives are well and she is enjoying her visit.

More Dairies Needed.

In the decade preceding the present the average yield of wheat in this state was 14½ bushels per acre. It might and should have been 25 to 30 bushels. Why is our average so low? Our soil is depleted of its principal elements of fertility; we have been robbing it year by year, taking away all it would yield and giving back little or nothing. Under this method we need expect nothing better than decreasing yields. It would be wiser to sow the ground with clover and turn it under, or better, feed it to stock and put the manure into the soil for corn, oats or potatoes.

Dairy farms are most always productive and profitable farms, for there is a good crop of manure which makes two good crops of grains, hay and vegetables. On many farms about this city, fine, large silos are to be seen of late years, and houses and barns indicate prosperity, for the silo means a big dairy herd, and that means a big supply of manure, and this means good yields of everything.

So long as milk retails at eight cents a quart and butter at 30 cents a pound there is room for many more dairies. Let their number increase and our soil improve in fertility, in proportion.—Indiana Farmer.

For Sale—Five pure bred Plymouth Rock roosters at $1 each. Apply to Mrs. B. L. Cleek, Union, Ky.

Why Pay

Two or three or four and sometimes five per cent. commission for selling your farm or other property? Our price one-half of one per cent. Write for particulars.

She made a heroic effort to live for her dear ones sake, but all to no avail. She leaves a host of friends to mourn but we must submit to One who doeth all things well. LODGED IN JAIL

For Shooting Up the Town of Richwood Monday Morning

Sheriff Hume went to Richwood last Monday morning and brought Bert Powell over to jail. Powell had on a big jag and had been discharging firearms in a wreckless manner about the village of Richwood, and some of the villagers fearing bodily harm called the Sheriff and had Powell run in. Powell left Dixon in jail only a few minutes before he got up an excitement by letting some of the bed clothing catch fire. Although drunk as a Lord Powell was full of wit and got off quite an amount of humor. The citizens of Richwood charge that Powell was doing a first-class job of shooting up the town, and that several signs on business houses show the effect of his work along that line.

C. L. Hensley, who moved to Lexington, recently, writes the Recorder: "Please change my address from Lexington to Kings Mountain. I did not like the Bluegrass, and I can not do without the Recorder. It is like a letter from my old home. Hurrah for Beckham!"

Every farmer who lives on a dirt road should have a split log drag and see in what nice condition he can keep the road along his premises at this season of the year, not stopping to think he may do a little more than his neighbor will for the benefit of the road.

Richard Stephens, of Rabbit Hash desires the Recorder to thank all of those friends of his who rendered him such valuable assistance in moving from his residence when invaded by the water in the Ohio ricer a few days ago.

ERIAL IS NOT ALL

ES OF THE BLOUSE AN ALL-IMPORTANT CONSIDERATION.

Dainty Needlework and Fine Fabrics Inartistically Put Together Will Not Satisfy the Woman of Fastidious Taste.

The woman who loves to do dainty needlework can turn out very attractive blouses at much less expense than similar models would cost in the shops; but it should be remembered that dainty needlework and fine fabrics are not all that is required to make up a wearable blouse. Several costly materials may be combined with exquisite nicety of stitchery, yet the effect of the completed blouse may be hopelessly bad, and quite impossible to the woman who aims to dress inexpensively, with perfect taste and some degree of smartness. As in all forms of costumes nowadays, lines are the important consideration in the separate waist, and if the lines are not right, the most costly of materials will not make it smart. In fact, the more of such materials loaded upon the model the more will the effect approach that taste which is familiarly known as dowdy.

There are three distinct varieties of blouses to select from—the costume blouse of silk, velvet, lace, chiffon or a combination of fabrics; the shirt of tub silk for wear with tailored suits, and the tub blouse of ordinary washable lingerie material. Blouses of the last named character are easy to fashion, and may be made dainty with a very little real lace, with fine pin tucks set in by hand or with touches of hand embroidery—only touches, for a great amount of hand embroidery is not considered smart just now, and scallops or dots used in a conventional manner are better liked than sprawling floral patterns. Very sheer cotton voile, handkerchief linen, or a fine grade of dotted Swiss will make attractive blouses of this sort.

A silk shirt may be of white or striped tub silk, of washable satin or of crepe de chine. The white crepe de chine shirts, with plaited frills and turndown collars and edged with fine cording, are the favorites, and such shirts usually have turned back cuffs, provided with link buttons, which match the buttons used on the front of the garment.

There are also many attractive blouses being shown of white silk brocade or white charmeuse. These blouses are usually made quite simple of line, and in some cases have the turned down Robespierre collar and mannish four-in-hand tie and turned back cuffs.

An attractive blouse of charmeuse of the tailored type is shown in the illustration. The collar is of the Robespierre type, with four-in-hand tie. There is a deep yoke, which extends low over the shoulders. The sleeves are long and are fulled into a deep, close-fitting cuff of the material.

MARY DEAN.

Chenille-Dotted Veilings.

Many varieties of veilings were in evidence at the New York Horse show, says the Dry Goods Economist, but chenille-dotted novelties were perhaps in the lead. Dainty spring designs, outlined in miniature chenille dots or decorated in some odd fashion, were especially prominent. The part which chenille-dotted veilings played at this fashionable gathering will no doubt be influential in boosting the already fair demand for chenille dots in local retail stores. The country at large has bought conservatively of these novelties, and in the majority of instances has done well with them.

Gathered Muff.

The huge granny muff made of gathered and corded silk, velvet, brocade or chiffon is very fashionable this season. It is besides quite simple to make, looks much more chic than a muff of poor imitation fur. Blue and red shot taffeta is used for a pretty model. Two thickness of wadding form the lining on to which the silk is gathered and divided into sections with piping cords. Wide frills of the silk finish off the muff on either side.

Warm Coats.

The indications are that velvet plush and velour are going to be popular this winter. This will be welcome news for the women who desire a nice, warm coat and do not care to wear the really heavy fur garments which have been used for the last few years.

KENTUCKY NEWS.

Who is the person who borrowed of us the best garden hoe we had in a cluster of four?—Mt. Olivet Tribune-Democrat.

Dr. L. T. Eckar, of Sunrise, sold 5,040 pounds of tobacco which was raised on three acres of ground, an average of 1,680 pounds per acre. This is certainly an unusual showing, as most crops are weighing very light.—Cynthiana Log Cabin.

What is thought to be the heaviest family on an average yet recorded, is that of Jas. W. and Elizabeth Manley, of Bath county. They have eight children, the youngest of whom is ten years old and the oldest twenty-eight. The entire family weights 1,700 pounds, an average of 170 pounds.—Mount Sterling Gazette.

Arrangements are being made to have prisoners serving jail sentences worked on the county roads. This has been the rule in many counties for a long while, and has been found very profitable and effective. Our county officials are to be congratuated on their forward movement.—Greenville Record.

Owingsville, Jan. 26.—Thirteen year-old Birchie Patton, daughter of Alex Patton, of Rowan Co. has made a champion record for herself by the cultivation of a small tomato crop. She grew and canned 150 gallons of tomatoes from one-tenth of an acre of land and also raised fifty-six bushels of corn on one acre.

Money seems to be plentiful in Spencer county. The farmers especially are in most excellent financial condition. We are informed by the Taylorsville bankers that they have more money on deposit than ever before in their history. Our big tobacco crop and the good prices realized for same brought us the needful.—Spencer Courier.

Farmes from the various districts of the county, who were in the city, Wednesday, reported that the roads were in a deplorable condition. The roads which were graded and graveled last summer are it is said, almost as bad as ever, and traveling is done with great difficulty. Getting good roads and keeping them in that condition in Graves county is certainly a complex question.—Mayfield Messinger.

We were a little surprised a few days ago to find lying in the road beside the hedge at the corner of one of our prominent business farmer's homes, and the more so to find that it had lain there several months unmojested, but beginning to look much the worse for the exposure. The money was in the shape of a corn planter that will have to be replaced by a new one before many years unless cared for better than that.—Salem Democrat.

As yet Gov. McCreary has not made any formal announcement of his candidacy for United States Senator, although it is said he has been urged to do so by some prominent politicians. If Governor McCreary decides to do so, he will certainly violate his pledged word to the voters here at Hartford and elsewhere. He said here that all he asked—all he ever would ask—was that he be elected Governor thus rounding out a brilliant career. The voters granted his request; now will he keep his pledge?—Hartford Herald.

Some of our friends have been inclined to think hard of us because they think we should advocate more strongly the issuance of the $200,000 in county bonds for road purposes. It is enough for us to say that we are for the bond issue, and we think it would be a mistake to put it off; but for us to write as if we were absolutely certain that every dollar would finally be placed into the roads and that there could be no possibility of graft, is more than this pencil pusher is going to do.—Hart County News

Maysville, Jan. 25.—Judge Garret S. Walj, president of the State Board of Control of Charitable Institutions, says he wishes to invite the friends and relatives of those under treatment in the State Hospitals to visit same and see for themselves the manner in which the Board of Control is discharging its duties. Judge Walj reports that he has visited the leading asylums in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois and says that Kentucky institutions compare well with those of the States mentioned, but that in them the per capita allowance and special appropriations for repairs and new buildings are double what they are here.

Mr. R. L. Elkin has been bringing to the office during the last week great quantities of pecans, which he gave to the entire office force. Surprised by his generosity, we asked him where he was securing the nuts, and to our great surprise he informed us that they grew at his home. He claims to have at his house a pecan tree which is 75 years old, and which, it has been handed down to him by tradition, was planted by his great-grand-mother, raised from a sprout produced by planting a pecan in a small box. The tree is now 75 feet high and measures two and one-half feet in diameter, and even at this late season of the year has several bushels of nuts on it, after at least three bushels have already been gathered.—Lancaster Record.

Mrs. Jones:—Mrs. Smith, do you know, it just seems impossible for me to make good bread and buscuit any more.

Mrs. Smith:—What brand of flour are you using?

Mrs. Jones:—I think I have tried them all.

Mrs. Smith:—Did you ever use "Perin's Pride Flour?"

Mrs. Jones:—No, I have never used that brand.

Mrs. Smith:—Well, I was just where you are now, and last fall, at the Fair, a man handed me a package of needles advertising "Perin's Pride Flour," bnd told me what a good flour it was and I have used it ever since with the greatest success. It just makes lovely bread, buscuit, and pie crust, furthermore there are twenty Profit Sharing Coupons in every barrel you buy, that are worth one cent each in trade at the store. If you want to make the finest bread and buscuit, you had better use Petroleum in Kentucky.

Barbourville, Jan. 26.—Petroleum operations in the Kentucky districts show more than the usual activity for the season of the year. New wells are drilling and starting in most of the fields and in other arrangements have been perfected for doing experimental work just as soon as the weather permits. In some of the districts, especially in Eastern Kentucky, bad roads have been a retarding feature in the planting of new rigs, but as rapidly as conditions permit, new locations are being made. With a price now quoted on crude oil 41 cents per barrel higher than the quotations made at this time last year there is prospect for a greater expansion of the field than ever before.

HOME AND FARM.

How many of you farmers are feeding your hens and looking after their nests? Eggs are a good price.

Break garden and put manure upon it as soon as possible. Turn straw manure under fence against chickens and stock.

Corn will shrink in the crib 12 to 16 per cent from husking time to the first of June. This has been proven by experiment stations.

Sow a field of oats using 100 pounds of nitrate of soda along with 300 pounds of a good brand of grain and grass grower and you will raise oats.

Look out for a piece of land for early Irish potatoes. Better raise and save buying. It is a poor farmer who does not raise enough potatoes to eat.

The farmer who throws down his feed to the stock and runs, will not succeed, he must take delight in seeing them eat, and curry and rub. Spend some time in the orchard and inspect the fences and out buildings.

Don't forget to prune the orchard and cover the large wounds with coal tar or with cement mixed with sand. Land around the trees should be stirred well and often and ashes should be put around the roots.

Shorts, oats, tankage, milk, alfalfa and clover make a good ration for shoats. If you have a field that has begun to wash sow it in oats and hog it down. After this sow in rye and hog down and it will be ready for a crop of corn and clover.

The air above the soil is filled with nitrogen. Sow clover and alfalfa which will bring it to the earth. Read up on soil building as you need it and it costs you nothing. Write your experiment station at Lexington for desired information.

Parcel Post System.

Washington, Jan. 26.—To provide adequate space for handling parcel post business it will be necessary to revise the plans of many public buildings in which postoffices are located and negotiations to this end already have been instituted by Postmaster General Hitchcock. Today the Postmaster General invited the supervising architect of the Treasury and his assistants to co-operate in the matter with the Building Committee of the Postoffice Department and the special Parcel Post Committee.

At present 174 public buildings are under contract and 233 additional have been appropriated for by Congress. They approximate in cost $50,000,000. The plans for these buildings have been prepared without regard for the needs of the parcel post system and it is now essential that changes be made in their construction in order that the increased volume of mail may be handled advantageously.

In 759 postoffices located in Government buildings it will be necessary to make alterations to meet the requirements of the parcel post. In some instances the purchase of additional ground on which to construct annexes will have to be made.

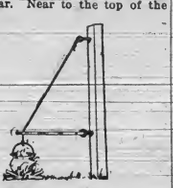
SAVE ALL THE DEAD LEAVES

When Rotted They Become Rich Soil for Garden—Pile With Other Material for Compost.

Don't waste the dead leaves; don't burn them. They are excellent material for composts and leaf moulds. Every leaf fire you've smelled, was destroying something that every gardener should save.

A compost is a mixture of bulky fertilizing material, useful to the gardener for enriching the soil. It is made of coarse manures, sods, weeds, dead leaves, and all rubbish available. These materials are piled together in a big, flat heap and allowed to rot. This requires about two years. Chemical fertilizers may be added to make the compost richer, if desired. The mass must be forked and soaked [illegible] and occasionally with water or liquid manure during dry weather. The final product is a homogeneous mass that can be applied to the soil in large or small amounts and without danger to it.



The plant food in composts is easily assimilated by the plants. Garden plants, usually, must make their growth in a short time, and any material from which they can assimilate food easily is what they need.

Leaf mould is used in potting tropical plants, as ferns. It does not contain much plant food, but it is very good to open up the soil and make it porous. The best way to make leaf moulds, according to M. F. Ahearn, assistant professor of floriculture at the Kansas Agricultural College, is to dig a hole or trench in the ground and pile the leaves in it. The mass must be watered frequently and turned over. Two years are required for complete rotting. The mould is mixed with the soil before it is applied. Usually, one part mould to three or four parts of soil is the proper proportion.

USEFUL FOR HEATING WATER

Convenient Device at Hog Killing Time May Be Easily Constructed —Plan Is Illustrated.

A useful device for heating water around hog-killing time may be easily constructed. To a heavy post attach an iron bar. Near to the top of the post attach a loop and to this a rod. Make a hook on the end of the rod so that the kettle may be removed, fire built and the kettle secured into the place desired.

A Handy Crane.

Preparing for the Cold Snaps.

Late fall is a good time to clean up and overhaul hotbeds and cold frames and prepare soil for bedding. Soil or compost to be used for this purpose should be covered to have it in good condition when needed in February and March. Overhauling and repairing hotbed sash and making crossbars for hotbeds and cold frames are good jobs for stormy days.

Sheltering the Farm Machinery.

Be sure and provide shelter for all wagons, vehicles and farm machinery. Much loss results from leaving plows and other implements out of doors, and in neglecting to keep them in good working order.

Bees and Farm Notes

Learn how to disinfect and then do it.

Seed sweet corn needs attention as well as field corn.

Store onions in a dry, airy place—not in the cellar.

A light, sharp hatchet is the best tool for cutting cabbage.

Better grease the work harness after the heavy fall work is done.

Lime should be applied after plowing, as it is bound to work down.

Top dress lawns with a good fertilizer in preference to coarse manure.

Watch the roof leak. A patch now may save further destruction and save some feed.

Profitable handling of potatoes and apples means careful harvesting and proper storage.

Manure exposed to the weather for three months will lose one-third of its fertilizing value.

Now, after all has been said, don't leave the seed corn hanging out on the windmill frame through the winter.

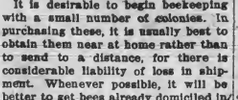
When plenty of good corn stover or straw is used for bedding, all the liquid manure can be readily absorbed.

Give the lawn a dressing of well-rotted stable manure before the ground freezes up and let it stay on all winter.

By simple figuring the difference between the return to your fertilized and unfertilized crop you can see the value of fertilizing.

A decrease in the sales of commercial fertilizers over the country indicates that better use is being made of barnyard manure.

Parsley plants still in the garden may be potted and taken into the house where they will furnish a garnish for the table all winter.



FARM AND BEES

EQUIPMENT FOR A BEGINNER

Most Important Consideration in Purchasing Colonies of Bees is Their Healthfulness.

(By E. F. PHILLIPS, Ph. D.)

It is desirable to begin beekeeping with a small number of colonies. In purchasing these, it is usually best to obtain them near at home rather than to send to a distance, for there is considerable liability of loss in shipment. Whenever possible, it will be better to get bees already domiciled in the particular hive chosen by the bee keeper as the best, but if this is not practicable then bees in any hive or in box hives may be purchased and transferred. It is a matter of small importance what race of bees is purchased, for queens of any race may be obtained and introduced in place of the original queen, and in a short time the workers will all be of the same race as the introduced queen. This is due to the fact that during the season worker bees die rapidly, and after requeening they are replaced by the offspring of the new queen.

A more important consideration in purchasing colonies of bees is to see to it that they are free from disease. In many states and counties there are inspectors of apiaries who can be consulted on this point, but if this is not possible even a novice can tell whether or not there is anything wrong with the brood, and it is always safest to refuse hives containing dead brood.

The best time of the year to begin bee keeping is in the spring, for during the first few months of ownership the bee keeper can study the subject and learn what to do so that he is not so likely to make a mistake which will end in loss of bees.

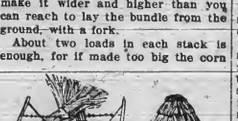
DUST MULCH FOR CORN CROP

Question Raised by Experiments at Various State Stations as to Value of Cultivation.

After tabulating the results from 124 different experiments, carried on in 28 different states for a period of five years, the department of agriculture brings up the question as to whether the cultivation of corn is of any value except to keep down weeds. The results seem to show that there is little in favor of keeping up the dust mulch after the weeds are destroyed.

The tests were made by experiment stations and practical farmers under the supervision of government experts, the experimental plots being located in corn growing communities from the Atlantic to the Pacific. In each case two plots were prepared and planted to corn in exactly the same way. On one plot all weeds were cut with a hoe or something similar, but without further cultivation. The other plot received ordinary cultivation that kept all weeds down. The general average for all showed that the uncultivated plots produced 99.108 per cent, as much grain, and 59.1 per cent, as much fodder as the cultivated plots.

The government experiments believe that the roots of the corn absorb all the moisture instead of its being drawn to the surface and evaporated, as generally supposed. Land that lies fallow needs the soil mulch because in that case there are no roots to take up the moisture.



MAKING FODDER CORN STACK

Should Be Started as With Grain Stack and Not Higher Than Can Be Conveniently Reached.

(By J. S. STREET.)

To put up a fodder-corn-stack, you start as with a grain-stack and do not make it wider and higher than you can reach to lay the bundle from the ground, with a fork.

About two loads in each stack is enough, for if made too big the corn may heat, as the stalks never get so dry that there will be no moisture in them.

Many people leave the shocks of fodder corn in the field all winter and haul in a load now and then. This is not an easy task. The stacks are a much more feasible plan of taking care of the fodder.

Keep the Barn Clean.

A litter carrier will add much to keep the barn clean because the boys and men will work more readily than if they have to depend upon the old method.

SALT NECESSARY FOR STOCK.

Stockmen Should See That Animals are Supplied.

It is natural for all animals to possess a craving for salt, and during the winter season when confined to a dry ration they consume a larger quantity of this element than throughout the summer season when pasturing on forage that is succulent and palatable. As a matter of fact, salt is a powerful agent in assisting the digestion of food taken into the stomach in a dry condition. Some authorities proclaim that salt is necessary to keep the blood in the required state of fluidity for active circulation and also to aid in transforming different foods into available forms to supply nourishment for the various parts of the animal body. Whatever science has been able to discover in this regard it remains no less a fact that salt is greedily consumed by our farm animals at all seasons of the year and consequently serves an indispensable purpose in the sustenance of health and body activity.

When animals are provided with salt in plentiful supply they are not as likely to become diseased as would otherwise be the case. Active circulation of the blood is absolutely essential to carrying off waste matter that accummulates in the system and to maintain vigor and strength. The blood never becomes thick and sluggish when the animals have access to plenty of salt at all times.

Salt also performs another vital purpose. When stock consume plenty of salt they drink large quantities of water which greatly assists digestion by softening the food and increasing the quantity of secretion in the digestive system. When food of any kind is acted upon by water it is made more soluble and, therefore, more readily absorbed by the blood. It is also a fact that water assists in carrying off waste products thru the kidneys.

In consideration of the numerous benefits derived from the feeding of plenty of salt to live to live stock, no farmer or stockman should overlook the importance of keeping a constant supply before his animals. Salt is a very inexpensive product and a barrel will last a small flock or herd nearly a year. In view of the fact that animals constantly demand small quantities of salt, it is inadvisable to follow the practice of many farmers of salting their flocks and herds once each week. While confined to dry feed animals consume more salt than when on pasture; consequently they should have a regular supply constantly before them.

I think the most prudent manner of furnishing live stock with salt is to have a salt box in the barn where the animals can get to it when they so desire. This method reduces labor and also eliminates danger of not supplying the salt at all times. Not infrequently when animals have not had salt regularly they eat more of it than they actually need and cause a derangement of the functions of the digestive system. They instinctively know about the quantity of salt they need, and it is much better for them to eat a little from time to time than to take a large quantity at intervals of a week or so.—W. H. U. in Indiana Farmer.

Federal Inspection of Dairy Products Necessary.

Dr. A. D. Melvin, Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, recently made the statement that there is need of inspecting dairy products, especially cream and butter, and supervising their shipment. Even without inspection many creameries, he said maintained a good standard of sanitation and produce a high grade, wholesome butter, but this cannot be said of the creameries in general. Cream is frequently shipped great distances to creameries to be made into butter and is often received in such a filthy and putrid state as to be thoroughly unfit to enter into the composition of a food product. Investigation has shown that 61 per cent out of 1,554 lots of cream received at creameries and buying per cent was of this grade—that is dirty, decomposed or very sour; that 94.5 per cent of 715 creameries investigated were unsanitary to a greater or less degree; and that 72.6 per cent of these creameries did not pasturize the milk so as to destroy any disease germs that might be present. As disease producing germs are known to survive for long periods in butter made of unpasturized cream, and as butter is eaten in the raw state this product, when made under such conditions as prevail in the majority of the creameries can not be said to be wholesome and from danger to human health. Dr. Melvin believes that a proper law well enforced, would remove nearly all the bad conditions now existing. A federal law, would in his opinion, of course apply only to products made for interstate or export shipments or to establishments engaged in interstate or foreign commerce.

SHOT TO DEATH

Harry Bailey, a Prominent Attorney Killed at Cynthiana

Had Attached Tobacco Belonging to The Slayer.

Cynthiana, Ky., Jan. 27.—Attorney Harry Bailey, 39 years old, one of the most prominent men in this section of Kentucky, was shot and instantly killed on a principal street here to-day.

The shooting was done by Newton Arnold, who, following threats to lynch him, was rushed in an automobile to Lexington for safe keeping.

Several months ago Arnold all but killed John Lizer on a street here. With a knife Arnold hacked him in a shocking manner, and was charged with attempted murder. Attorney Bailey defended Arnold so successfully that the latter was freed. For this service Attorney Bailey asked a fee of $100 and accepted Arnold's note for that amount. However, Arnold refused to pay the $100, and recently Atty. Bailey sued him, getting judgmeat for $100. Tobacco owned by Arnold was immediately attached and Arnold became bitter.

Meeting Attorney Bailey on a street here today, Arnold placed his arm about his neck in such a way that the attorney was powerless, drew a revolver, thrust it against his victim's back and fired twice. Attorney Bailey dropped in his tracks.

Arnold attempted to escape but was captured before he had gone five yards.

Attorney Bailey was the Republican nominee for Congress from the ninth district at the last election. He formerly was Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Kentucky and Grand High Priest of the Royal Arch Masons of the state.

Today Attorney Bailey received notice of his reappointment as Deputy Collector of Revenue for this district. Funeral services will be held here Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

In Full Sway.

Postmaster General Hitchcock has received many flattering reports of the success of the new parcels post system which was put in operation on the first of the year. A number of people in order to show the value of the service sent Mr. Hitchcock packages of all sorts—a box of fruit from Florida; a dozen eggs from Long Island, several boxes of nice flowers and candy. The eggs which were delivered at Mr. Hitchcock's residence were received in time for breakfast. They were mailed late Wednesday, and when received were in perfect condition.

This, however, was quite the reverse of the experience of Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, who had received a shipment of eggs from a friend in Massillon. The Senator explained that when the eggs arrived it was not necessary for him to open the package to be informed as to its contents. "I did not count the eggs," he said, "but turned them over to a servant. When the eggs arrived they were scrambled.

There is a general impression among officials at Washington that the parcels post will have considerable influence toward lowering the cost of living. It is their belief that summer visitors to the country will make arrangements whereby they will be able to receive fresh supplies of butter, eggs and fruit during the winter thru the agency of the parcels post.

Mrs. A. R. Tabor, of Crider, Mo., had been troubled with sick headache for about five years, when she began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. She has taken two bottles of them and they have cured her. Sick headache is caused by a disordered stomach for which these tablets are especially intended. Try them, get well and stay well. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

FOR TRAINING AND JOCKEYING.

The candidates that are announced for county offices and those who will announce later on are pretty well agreed on one proposition and that is that about the first of April is about the proper time to begin an active canvass. There are several good reasons for putting the campaign off until that date, among them the fact that the roads will be better than they are now to say nothing of the weather that would make campaigning more laborious than it otherwise would be, consequently making it less burdensome to both beast and man. The people who will do the voting at the primary election are in no hurry about having the fun begin. The candidate who would drag around thru the mud all day such weather as we have been having this month would feel a delicacy in stopping with a person to remain over night on account of being plastered over with the superior quality of "valler" clay that abounds in the public roads of this county, while the lady of the house would look at him with somewhat of a cross vision when it came to assigning him to a nice and tidily kept sleeping apartment, and who would blame her. From no stand point can a candidate justify taking to the bushes this early in the year when the primary election is not to be held until the first Saturday in next August, giving him an abundance of good weather in which to call on the voters. The candidate who commences an active campaign now will find himself growing stale before the first Saturday in August arrives.

WHY SOME CLOVER FAILS.

Failure with clover in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois is very common, especially so during unfavorable seasons.

One of the chief causes for the numerous failures of the clover crop lies in the fact that most of the seed is sown broadcast and is not well covered. To make sure of a stand of clover the seed must be in the ground instead of merely on the surface.

One of the most certain methods of seeding clover either on fall sown grain or alone is to drill it in with a single disk drill with a modern seeding device which conveys the seed down through the grain tubes and into the ground. A disk drill may be used on fall sown grain without doing the grain crop any damage.

A cutaway disk harrow set straight may be used also on fields of fall sown grain to roughen the surface before sowing clover. After this is done the seed may be sown broadcast and left for the rains to cover, or a drag harrow or weeder may be run over lightly.

In many sections the drag harrow is used on fall sown grains to work the clover seed into the ground. In Ohio, Indiana and Illinois most soils are so heavy and are so compact in the spring season that this implement will not tear up the surface sufficiently. Some implements like the cutaway disk harrow or the disk drill is required.

The time of seeding varies with the method employed. If the clover seed is sown broadcast and nothing done to cover it, the seeding should be done early, for a normal year, preferably during February. If a disk drill or cutaway disk harrow be used in sowing seed or in covering it, the seeding should be postponed until the surface of the soil is dry and a team can travel over the field of fall sown grain without doing it damage.

Seeding clover with oats is an uncertain method. When this is necessary a lighter seeding of oats will assist the clover greatly. Cutting the oats early for hay is also beneficial. The clover seed should be sown when the oats are drilled or just ahead of the drill, or with a seeding device on the drill, the clover seed may be allowed to pass down thru the grain tubes and go into the ground with the oats. The oats in breaking through the ground will assist the clover in coming up.—J. A. Drake, Assistant Agriculturalist, United States Department of Agriculture.

Savings Account for Prisoners.

Frankfort, Jan. 23.—The first distribution of earnings to the prisoners in the Eddyville penitentiary and the Frankfort Reform atory, under resolution of the Prison Commission adopted last August, was ordered today, and the commission sent to the State Auditor's office a memorandum of the earnings of the prisoners in each institution. From August 1 to January 1 the aggregate earnings are: Eddyville, $7,567.60; at Frankfort, $15,597.80; total $23,165.60 This represents 18 per cent of the revenues from the convicts services in the contract shops. The law limits the commission to allowing the men 20 per cent. An individual account will be opened with each man and one-fourth of his earnings will go into a savings account, to be paid him when he is released, the remainder to be made use of as he pleases.

KENTUCKY BUTTER

Can Be Made Famous Through The Parcel Post.

"I believe Kentucky butter can be made as famous and distinctive as Kentucky whisky." said Commissioner of Agriculture J. W. Newman, in Frankfort, in explaining a project he has in hand of showing the farmers how to take advantage of the parcel post and save the middle man's profit. He intends to send a lecturer with the county institute force to urge the farmers to create a market in New York, Chicago and other cities for Kentucky butter and send it direct to the consumer by parcel post.

This can be done by "proper advertising," he said. "The country between Mt. Sterling and Louisville is the best dairy land in the United States on account of the pasture and the climate. The climate permits of pasturing for an unusually long period. I am convinced that a reputation can be established for 'Kentucky butter' that will increase immensely the revenue of the farmers and the wealth of the State. This will start the farmer to using the parcel post and open a way for him to make money in other lines."

PRESIDENT TAFT

Has Set the Pace for Nation's Executives in Matter of Traveling.

Trips Will Have Taken Him Distance Equal to Five Times Around the Earth.

Washington.—When President Taft stepped down from his private car on his recent return from New Haven, the total mileage of his travels during his four years in the White House reached 113,659—enough to have taken him four and one-half times around the world, or an average of about 75 miles for every day he has been President. The total is exclusive of the hundreds of miles the President has traveled by motor in every part of the country; his trips through cities and his tours about Washington and in the vicinity of Beverly.

Including the automobile trips and three short journeys to be taken between March 4, Mr. Taft will have traveled during his term about 125,000 miles, or five times the distance around the earth at the equator.

Mr. Taft has made about 25,000 miles of the total on his two "swings around the circle." He has visited every State in the union, with the exception of Oklahoma and North Dakota and has stood as near the four corners of the country as it is possible for a man to get.

Two trips to the Panama canal zone have swelled the President's mileage considerably; but it was on trips to New York, Boston and Beverly and to Cincinnati, that the miles that made the big total were rolled up at their fastest clip.

Every winter Mr. Taft has made visit after visit to New York and during summers when Congress persisted in staying in session, he frequently commuted between Washington and Beverly like a Jerseyite who works in New York.

Although the exact number of days spent away from the White House or from his summer home in Beverly are not obtainable, it is probable that the President has been on the road more than 200 days and nights. On his two long trips he was away more than 130 days, and on visits of inspection to Panama, the President slept aboard trains, battleships or in the tropics for the better part of a month.

Congress gave the President $25,000 a year for traveling expenses and Mr. Taft has used that appropriation every year he has been in office. This year's appropriation probably will not be an exception. His long trip last fall reduced the $25,000 fund and if Congress wishes President-elect Wilson to see the country early in his administration, it probably will be necessary to place an emergency fund at his disposal.

At the end of last year's long trip Secretary Hilles, estimated that the President on that journey had been seen by more than 5,000,000 persons, if those figures were applied to the remainder of his journeying. Mr. Taft must have appeared before almost 25,000,000 of the nation's population. He has delivered speeches in every nook of the country and on the same basis of figuring probably has delivered close to 1,000 addresses, long and short.

Blocaded by Tobacco Wagons.

The prices for tobacco on the loose leaf markets in the State the past week varied very little from last week. In some towns there was a blockade caused by the tobacco wagons from the country seeking to deliver crops. In many instances the wagons stood for days before they could be unloaded, so great was the rush. A very large per cent of last year's crop has been delivered to the buyers, and the early date of the delivery has not been to the disadvantage of the growers, who have got the best weights to which their crops were entitled. It is a good policy to get your tobacco into the hands of the purchaser at the earliest date possible.

Tributes of Respect.

Kenton County Court,
Independence, Ky.,
Monday, Jan. 20, 1913.
Hon. Walter W. Cleary,
County Judge,

Whereas, On Sunday morning, Dec. 15, 1912, the spirit of William McClure Hudson winged its flight to that Great Beyond. For several months he had been in declining health, throughout he was perfectly conscious and made a noble fight to recover, despite the efforts of the most skilled physicians and devoted nurses he passed away, leaving to mourn his demise numberless who loved him for his kindly amiable traits. His devotion to his family, aged father and mother and sister was superb. For three years he had been deputy sheriff of Kenton county, and his record as such is that he was one of the best that the county has ever had. Therefore be it resolved.

That in the death our beloved friend, "Wink as he was generally called," the family has lost a devoted husband, a loving and indulgent father, son and brother, the community a worthy neighbor and friends and the county one of its efficient officers.

Resolved. That the county officials attend the funeral in a body and that the services be held in the Court House at Independence and that Sheriff Jno. T. Boske, Deputy Sheriff's C. M. Roberts, and Fred Roberts, Commonwealth Attorney, R. G. Williams, ex-County Attorney R. C. Simmons and Deputy Co. Clerk Elmer B. Stanelfer act as pallbearers.

Resolved. That a copy of this resolution be sent to the bereaved widow and a copy spread upon the order book of the county Records at Independence.

He took to the fields to make his way back to the Petersburg pike. This is somewhat of a joke on both the engineer and the public road.

The historic Primitive Baptist church of Stony Point, Bourbon county, was sold publicly last week at master commissioner's sale for $416. It was one of the oldest churches in Kentucky, having been built in 1820. It was originally constructed of logs and afterwards weatherboarded. The church got its name from the nature of the ground on which it was built. It was a point of land and very stony—hence the name, Stony Point. At one time the church had a large membership and was one of the most influential in Central Kentucky. —Georgetown Times.

As Mrs. Albert Conner and son, Harold, were coming from the city, last Saturday afternoon the horse they were driving became frightened at Stanley Crouch's automobile as they were coming up the hill on the pike near Hubert Beemon's, and turned in the road, throwing Mrs. Conner and her son out of the buggy, but, fortunately neither of them was hurt to amount to anything. The single tree broke and the horse got loose from the buggy and ran some distance before it was caught. The buggy was damaged some. The accident was not the result of any carelessness on the part of Mr. Crouch.

Found Valuables.

Leslie Stephenson, of Limaburg, found a hand-bag containing a pocket book and several other articles belonging to Mrs. Richmond of Bellevieww, out on the Florence pike, about 11 o'clock, on Wednesday night of last week. As a reward he was given four dollars of the contents of the pocket book.

Same Old Mason.

On invitation Mason Minor staid over night with Downey Elliot one evening last week and remarked when he saw the folding bed, "I never siept in one of those fancy things, but I will try anything once." When Elliott got in the bed promptly closed up with them and "Mace" promptly broke a panel off before assistance arrived. They were both slightly bruised but not very seriously hurt.—Lawrenceburg Register.

Building Up A Trade.

M. M. Black, who until a few years ago was a citizen of Big Bone neighborhood of which he is also a native, has settled down to a prosperous gait in Erlanger. He has quite a number of extra good cows from which he is furnishing a large block of Erlanger people with first class milk for which they pay him a good price readily, and the demand for his milk has increased so much in the last few months that he will have to increase his number of cows in order to meet the demand.

He Always Was Lucky.

D. B. Wallace has sold his Arkansas farm bought several years ago from Willie Kemper and the late John Robinson. The land was originally owned by Kemper, who traded it to Robinson for the latter's interest in a patent wagon brake he had invented, Robinson later selling the land to Mr. Wallace. The price for which Mr. Wallace sold the land last week was $16,000. It demonstrates the profit which sometimes comes from a good investment, which, looking poor at the time, requires only a few years' patient waiting to make it valuable. The land is largely timber land and probably cost Mr. Wallace only a few hundred dollars.—Warsaw Independent.

Bert and John 'Bof Went Down.

One day last week the creek just south of town was on a high when Bert Sullivan proposed to set his neighbor, John Strouse, over, and for that purpose rode his horse up to the bank at the side of the stream, and told his neighbor to mount. Strouse made a lounge at the horse and failed to light on its back, but threw his arms around Mr. Sullivan and both the men went down into the creek, Sullivan on top of Strouse. The latter's mouth soon filled with water and he began throwing a stream equal to a first-class fire engine. When the men got to shore Strouse said to Sullivan, "I guess I'll go to the water gate and cross," and Sullivan answered, "I guess you'd better."

Burley Tobacco Society Sued.

John Howard, revenue agent for the State at large, filed a suit in the Boone County Court, last Friday, against the Burley Tobacco Society, seeking to have listed for taxation tobacco valued as follows for the following years:

September 1, 1907, $339,000.
September 1, 1908, $339,000.
September 1, 1909, $332,000.
September 1, 1910, $332,000.
September 1, 1911, $332,000.

The total amount on which the sevenue agent is seeking to recover taxes is $1,660,000, to which he asks that 20 per cent penalty be added. Summons was ordered to issue to Fayette county, the society's place of business being in Lexington. A considerable portion of the tobacco embraced in the above amounts it is claimed was properly listed for taxation in this county.

Wanted to Run.

Last Friday afternoon as Earl Smith was hitching his horses upon his arrival from his trip over rural route No. 3, they became frightened and started to leave him. In the attempt to make a turn in the street the buggy pole slipped out of the neck-yoke which excited the horses still more. By this time Mr. Smith had got hold of the bridle bit on the near horse and the performance began to indicate a bad mixup. At this point in the proceedings the pole which had been flying from side to side stuck into the ground and was snapped off about two feet from the double tree, the stub threatening to pierce the horses which had thoroughly decided to do the runaway stunt, which was prevented only by Mr. Smith taking a terrible chance and holding on to the rear horse which was the worst frightened of the two. The horses were pulled into the sidewalk near the Peoples Bank where they were soon surrounded by a crowd of men, and no further efforts were made by them to run, and they did not seem to be frightened much.

COHEN'S BUILDING

An effort is being made in Pennsylvania to induce farmers to build storage plants wherein to keep potatoes and other vegetables till the proper time for putting them on the market. At present the dealers own or control the storage plants and can buy up the surplus of vegetables and fruits from the farmers, often at very low prices, because they are about to spoil on their hands for lack of storage, and after keeping them for a few months dispose of them at several times the price paid. The farmer gets less than the cost of production, while the dealer sells at an extortionate rate. Private storage houses will be a benefit to both consumers and producers.

County Clerk Rogers and his deputy, Miss Lizzie Rogers were busy last week correcting the assessors' book to conform to the changes made in it by the board of supervisors of tax. They said one thing that lightened their work was the very correct work of Mrs. Edgar Graves who made up the book for assessor Willis. Mrs. Graves writes a nice, plain hand while she keeps her columns of figures in proper order, making them easy to follow when making additions.

Our U. S. Agricultural Department, thru its agent Frank N. Meyer, has discovered a new and hardy wheat in Southeastern Russia, that promises to be very valuable in our northwestern states. It is a black durum wheat that has proved its hardiness by surviving snowless winters when other winter wheats either were killed or severely injured.

Circuit Clerk and Master Commissioner Chas. Maurer, moved to Burlington, last week, and has settled down to the duties of his office. Sickness in his family delayed his moving to Burlington. For several days along the first of this month it was thought one of his little children would not recover from an attack of pneumonia.

John C. White, the Recorder's energetic and much appreciated correspondent at Hathaway, was a business visitor to Burlington on Tuesday of this week. He has wintered well and has turned his attention to trapping as a sideline during the bad weather, but has not met with much success as yet.

The Burlington dealer in furs made a trip down into the Waterloo neighborhood Tuesday and bought a lot of fine furs. His big purchase was of Bud Rector.

RM AND ROAD IMPROVEMENT

DAKOTA TYPE OF ROAD DRAG

Different From Others and Is Improvement Because Dirt Cannot Accumulate Underneath.

Mr. J. E. Millett of Hudson, S. D., sends us a sketch of a road drag which he uses which is a little different from any others we have seen described, and we think it an improvement, says the Dakota Farmer. We think it is an improvement because there is nothing between the two planks to gather the dirt under the drag. He takes two pieces of bridge-plank each 8 feet long and three pieces of 2x8 4 feet long to make the drag. The bridge-plank are stood on edge 3 feet 6 inches apart and the three pieces of 2x8 4 feet long are spiked on the top with very heavy spikes. This allows the cross pieces to extend 6 inches back of the back plank of the scraper. Iron braces are then extended from the bottom of these upper planks to near the bottom of the scraper planks. These braces should be good and heavy and may be made out of an old wagon tire or any old material of that kind. A piece of wagon tire or something of that character is then bolted onto the bottom of the scraper to do the cutting. A chain with large links is attached as shown in the cut to which the horses are hitched with clevis and ring. By the use of the chain the angle at which the grader will run can be easily changed by moving the clevis one way or the other and attaching it through a link of the chain. We think probably this is an improvement on the present types of drags as it leaves everything clear underneath, but would suggest that possibly the cross-pieces should extend more than 6 inches back of the rear drag.

RAPIDITY IN HUSKING CORN

Michigan Man Invents Device That Does Work Almost as Quickly as Ears Are Picked Up.

It would be amusing if a man could attend an old-fashioned country husking-bee with one of these corn husking devices and keep it hidden. He would so far outstrip all the other huskers that they would wonder how many hands he had. A Michigan man invented this device, which consists of a pair of pivotally connected curved jaws, a handle carried by each jaw, and strips on each handle by means of which they may be fastened to the hand. The interior of the jaws is serrated, so that when they are pressed over the husk of an ear of corn they take hold of it and strip it in a twinkling, rolling the entire husk back at once. One motion is all that is required, and with a little practice a man can husk corn with this device as fast as he can pick the ears

KEEPING UP WITH BESS

By ANNIE SEIGERBACHER.

After the stout woman had flopped into the nearest armchair, scattering about twenty-four Christmas bundles on the floor as she did so, she heaved even a deeper sigh than one would naturally have expected under the circumstances.

"What's the matter?" asked her friend. "You look as though you'd lost pounds and pounds from worry."

"I think I have," replied the stout woman, rather feebly. "You see, it's Bessie. Bessie's my favorite niece, as you know, and she's burdened with over-indulgent parents who give her everything she wants before she knows that she wants it. Now, how is it possible to please such a girl with any kind of gift? She has jewelry by the pound and she gets enough candy every Christmas to feed an orphan asylum. So whenever December comes around I begin to wring my hands and say, 'What under the shining sun can I get for Bessie?' That's the way I got my first gray hairs! I get a fresh installment of them every Christmas."

She was calming down now. Her friend had politely assumed an air of deep attention.

"After hours and hours of brain racking effort," went on the stout woman, "I found out that Bessie wanted a Princeton pennant. There was one Princeton pennant left in the sporting goods section the day I went to buy Bessie's present and I wrestled for it with two husky youths, a middle aged woman and half a dozen giggly girls. I got it, too, although in the process I lost three perfectly good jet buttons and sprained my wrist.

"That night Bessie's beau brought her an atrocious big Princeton pennant about three times the size of the one I had worked so hard for. Sweet of him, wasn't it?"

"Go on," begged her friend. "Your thrilling recital makes a war story look as flat as a plug hat that's been sat on. What happened next?"

"Bessie came over to my house one day," said the stout woman, "and raved about an embroidered shirt waist of mine that some poor soul had spent six months making. Well, that gave me an idea and I immediately started to make Bessie one like it in six days. I embroidered until I saw French knots dancing all over the wall and I counted stitches in my sleep. Even my football playing son, who reels off signals in his dreams, became alarmed at the symptons that I displayed. My family rose in wrath when I brought the thing to the table at dinner and embroidered between courses. And then when the waist was nearly completed Bessie casually announced that she thought embroidered shirt waists were getting common and she wouldn't wear one for anything."

"Dear, dear!" murmured her friend, sympathetically.

"I felt like telling Bessie that if she changed her mind again she wouldn't get any present from me," said the stout woman. "But next morning I started out on the warpath, all spiffed up in my oldest clothes, so that I could grab bargains with the best of them. I ran into a sale of jewelry—women six deep fighting over little 99 cent reduced from $1 coin purses, and all trying to get waited on at once. It took me half an hour to get next to the counter. Really, it was cruel the way I climbed over people, but it was for a worthy cause. Anyway, I got there, found the coin purses all gone, took another half hour getting untangled and had to pay $3 for the same thing in another store.

"After I'd been patting myself on the back for about a day for having solved the problem I met Bessie on the street. She hailed me, and then broke into lamentations. 'What do you think, Aunt Helen?' she said. 'Uncle Billy brought me another coin purse last night, and I had three already!'

"When I came to I was in a drug store and Bessie was rubbing my head and cooing, 'You shouldn't worry so over Christmas. You know you do too much, auntie.'

"'Yes, I know, Bessie,' I said. 'What do you want for Christmas?'

"'Why, I don't know,' she replied. 'Nothing much that I can think of. I want a diamond ring, but daddy won't give me one. Must you go so soon?'

"I think now that I'll go a florist's and order a couple of dozen roses for Bessie—the stems to be at least three feet long. I sent her some when she had appendicitis and she raved over them then, but now—goodness knows! She may have developed a case of rose fever by this time.

"Honestly, the thought of all the Christmases that are yet to come is enough to kill any one. Yes, I do feel as though I'd been through a keyhole.

"Well, Merry Christmas! Here goes for Bessie's!"

Don't Shoot.

"Here's an item," observed Rivers, who was looking over the exchanges, "to the effect that the king of Sweden raises prize dogs on his farm."

"I suppose he uses them," suggested Brook, "to drive his Stockholm."

After which the rattle of the typewriter broke out afresh with great violence.

Victim of Noise.

"Why did the elopement fall through?"

"We had a signal arranged. She told me to come to her window and make a noise like a robin. I did so."

"Yes?"

"Then her father popped out and made a noise like a shotgun."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

A round silo is best.

Corn likes mellow soil.

Exercise produces warmth.

There is no better place to fit a colt for market than on the farm.

Leaves mixed with straw make an excellent cover for strawberries.

Promptly gather up and burn all brush and rubbish in the orchard.

The coming of the silo is developing some new high records for high-priced beef.

Increase the cow feed a little morning and night as the weather grows colder.

It is as an egg producer that the Indian Runner duck has gained the most fame.

Poultry balance their own rations if they are given a wide variety of feeds to select from.

Eggs that cost 25 cents per dozen will bring $7 to $8 when hatched and sold as broilers.

All young stock on hand now that you do not intend to keep through the coming winter should be marketed.

Bran is a very good feed for cows. It is light, palatable and rich in mineral matter, especially phosphorus.

A set of scales will guess a good deal better than you can as to the weight of the milk each cow gives.

It is usually mere guesswork to tell the age of a hen by her appearance after she has passed the pullet stage.

A hen over two years old is fit only for the pot and to mother chickens. She is past her profitable laying days.

It is well to remember that there are ten buyers for horses worth $200 and upwards to one that is worth $100 or less.

Goose eggs require from twenty-eight to thirty-one days to hatch, according to variety and method of hatching.

It is a well known fact that the cow that makes the largest profit is given the best care and most comfortable shelter.

When the farmer makes a selling of his crops with as much a business as does the buyer he will find farming profitable.

Of almost, if not quite, as much importance as their food is plenty of exercise. Exercise and sunshine are great sheep tonics.

If you live where stones are plenty (and they are found in most sections) never wade through winter mud in going between house and barn.

It pleases the cow to be milked quickly, and gets her in the habit of giving down promptly. It is often the slow milkers that make the strippers.

If you plan to take the horns off your cows, better do it early in the spring. It is a trying ordeal at best. Be as humane about it as you can.

Vitality is a very important characteristic in the dairy cows or any other farm animal. If weak along this line the best returns cannot be expected.

Next to using a Babcock machine a pretty good test of milk may be made by putting samples in tumblers and noting the thickness of the cream several hours later.

Sugar beet growing means more than the mere profits from growing the beets. It induces a higher type of agriculture and the crops raised in rotation are better.

Whatever ration one may be able to provide for the flock of hens one condition should be kept in mind—namely, they should be compelled to scratch for most of the grain they receive. This means exercise and exercise means health.

Few of us realize how important bees are to our farm, garden and orchard crops. If the bees were terminated this year there would be a failure of the clover seed crop; the same would be true of many vegetables and fruits. Many flowers must be cross fertilized, and it often requires some insect to do this. The apiary may thus serve a double purpose; furnish the family with sweets and increase the seed, vegetable and fruit production.

Sell off the old sheep.

Whitewash at any time.

Clover is an egg producer.

Give the pullets ample nests.

A horse with long legs and flat sides is not an easy keeper.

The ram should be in perfect condition, but not fat at mating.

Chickens that go home to roost ought to stay home to scratch.

Hard labor in the orchard is almost sure to mean hard cash in the bank.

The cleaner the stalls are kept, the less the amount of bedding required.

If your horse has broken feet, have him shod with a good tar and oakum pack.

Rub the window panes with old newspapers—it will let in the sunshine.

Any time in the year is the right time to begin planning for an asparagus plot.

If the garden is fall plowed it means you can plant at least a week earlier next spring.

If the churn is likely to remain idle for some time, keep it filled with lime water.

Selling the young heifers, that are from the best cows is moving backward in dairying.

Intelligence in hurrying feeds for the dairy cow is one way of increasing profits on the farm.

One big advantage of the hog raising industry is that the hogs give quick and profitable returns.

In breaking a colt, remember that it is an easy matter to overload and ruin him by causing him to balk.

Sprained tendons and joints are often the effect of long-grown hoofs continually tamping on solid floors.

Perhaps a banking of the cow shed on the north side would make it more comfortable for the cows this winter.

To get the best results the dairy should be well ventilated, fly proof and at some distance from the sheds.

One mistake in hen culture is not to feed the hen well when she is "dry." A molting hen is doing hard work.

After hens are through laying they should be sold to the butcher unless they are needed for breeders next season.

The actual cost to keep added to the service fee of the sire, represents the amount at which horses you raise stand you.

It does not require any great ability at figures to show that there is a great waste in selling hogs when they are but half fed.

Salt, hardwood ashes and charcoal are ideal to keep in hog pasture, and if there is any other one thing needed it is pure water.

Never whip a balky horse. Sell him if you can't manage him and let the other fellow match his temper against that of the horse.

Those who are feeding hundle corn to their cattle must make arrangements to have hogs follow them or the waste will be too great.

Fruit for breakfast, fruit for dinner, fruit for supper, and some between times. It is the key to good health. Let the children eat liberally.

Green bone is a complete food. It contains the nitrogen for the albumen, the phosphate for the bones of the chicks and carbonaceous matter for the yolks.

The secret of a good strawberry crop is to set out a new patch each alternate spring. A large family ought to be more than supplied by 130 points.

When planning for grain crop and live stock improvements, don't forget about the fruit and vegetables for the farm means more contentment and better health.

The dairyman who will sell off each season two or three of his poorest cows will soon improve his herd if he replaces them by heifers raised from his best cows.

Either clover or alfalfa hay, corn and cotton seed meal are the cheapest and most efficient feeds that you can use together with the corn silage for fattening steers.

In practically every town there is a good market for dairy products and fresh eggs, as well as some of the other farm products, at the leading hotel, restaurant or bakery. Cultivate their trade and you will be surprised to see how profitable it can be made.

It takes a little more than 2 per cent. of an animal's weight to keep it up to normal condition without making any gains and if exposure to cold and rain and storms are to be counted against it the feeder can easily see where his profit goes glimmering.

Squire Blackburn is one of the up-to-date citizens and a very popular citizen among a large acquaintance because of his genial nature and pleasant disposition. One of the most clever and accommodating railroad men that has been connected with the Walton service is Capt. John O'Neal, late and early, good and bad weather, has a kindly word and helping hand for all who have business relations with the L. & N. Depot and service at Walton. While his superior officer S. W. Early was away in the Blue Grass country enjoying the pleasure of a visit, Capt. O'Neal held the office down in apple pie order.

The flouring mill of W. O. Rouse & Co. has changed hands somewhat, Carl Neumeister and Edward Neumeister, and William Dennis, the miller in charge, having bought the interests of J. G. Smith, John L. Vest and William Sullivan, and will enlarge the business on a better basis than heretofore. W. O. Rouse continues his interest, and the business will be conducted as heretofore under the firm name of W. O. Rouse & Co. The mill makes excellent flour and is an enterprise worthy of the liberal support of our people particularly the farming community.

Married—James A. Baird, of Walton, and Miss Celia Benson Mcginnis at Lexington, Thursday. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Benson of this place, and is one of the prettiest and most popular young ladies of Walton. The groom is the son of Dr. J. W. Baird, of Sadieville, and is the agent and telegraph operator of the Q. & C. Railroad at that point. He was formerly employed in the railroad service at Walton, and is a young gentleman of the highest integrity and excellent morals. The happy young couple will make their home at Sadieville, where after their honeymoon will be "at home" to their many friends after Feb. 1st. The best of good wishes of their many friends is tendered Mr. and Mrs. Baird for a long and happy future.

One of the saddest deaths that has taken place in this locality was that of Miss Celia McGinnis at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. James McGinnis at Bracht Station, Jan. 21st, from brights disease and a heart affection. The young lady was in her 18th year, and was the idol of her parents and beloved by all for her kindly disposition and her cheerful and affectionate manner. Her father Jas. McGinnis is the section foreman on the Q. & C. Railroad, and to him she had endeared herself by so many kindly acts that he is heart broken over her death. She was a beautiful young girl and her gentle young life was consecrated to the happiness of all which makes her death the more sorrowful. The funeral took place Saturday the services being conducted by Rev. Father Gorey, of Covington, the deceased being a devoted member of the Catholic church. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery at Highland. The bereaved parents desire to express their heartfelt appreciation of the many acts of kindness shown the deceased by the many friends.

Judge J. G. Tomlin while in Louisville last week was made acquainted with the conditions of the failure of the Commercial Bank & Trust Co. of that city, and in this connection remarks: This failure empathizes and proves the utter folly of our people going into business away from home. Of the half million dollars of the capital stock of this bank nearly all of it was subscribed by people living in the rural districts of Kentucky. Boone and Grant counties have lost not less than one million dollars in the last ten years in reckless, and often swindling investments, away from home; a sum which if spent in improvements at home where needed, would aid much to our comfort and pleasure. I often wonder if country people will ever get tired of supporting schemers from the city. As is well known I have for years opposed any investment away from home unless the investor desires to purchase real estate and only then after careful investigation, free from the agents and land companes. The money that has been foolishly thrown away on the uncertain investments obtained from our people by schemers, invested wisely in our own communities, would make our country localities the most attractive and richest of any section and our people would be the beneficiaries in many ways to their satisfaction and betterment.

Hall of McClure Chapter No. 48, Royal Arch Masons, Walton, Ky., Janv. 24th, 1913.

Whereas, we are again called to mourn the death of one of our beloved Companions, Wm. McClure Hudson, who passed to his heavenly reward after a well spent life of usefulness,

Companion Hudson was universally loved for his unquestioned integrity and genial disposition, and realizing these good qualities we feel that it is but right and propper that we add our testimony to his merits and worth by the following resolutions: Therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Companion Hudson, McClure Chapter No. 48, has lost one of its most valuable members, his knowledge and skill as one of the workmen on the speculative temple left its impress for good among the craft, and as the trasurer of McClure Chapter for several years, he discharged his duty with fidelity and zeal.

In the prime of life he has laid down the working tools to take up his abode in the counsil above where "Holiness to the Lord" will be inscribed in his crown as diadems of his rejoicing.

Resolved, That we tender our heart-felt thanks to the bereaved family. That as a tribute to his memory the usual badge of mourning be worn, and that these resolutions be recorded on the Chapter minutes and a copy be given the widow, mother and sister of our deceased Companion.

Respectfully submitted.
Committee—J. L. Vest, C. C. Metcalfe, B. K. Menefee.

Mr. Editor what has become of the Old Confederates pension that the State promised to pay. Several down this way would like to know are they going to get it or not.—(Coming.—Ed.)

Ernest Ryle, our rural mail carrier, did his very best to supply his patrons with mail during the flood. With the water in dozens of places over the road from five to 20 feet deep a sensible person knows it was an impossibility, but still we could hear a few grumbling. Well, no matter, the angels could not please everyone.

Since Uncle Sam wiped us off of the map and the Ohio river has washed away most everything except a few old bachelors, who have no market value, we thought it best to change the name to the original and perhaps a more dignified name would bring better luck. This spot of mud is opposite Rising Sun, Indiana.

Whenever the Democrats in this State want to get beat they put McCreary aside and they always get whipped to a frazzle and then they want the State redeemed and the only man that can do it is McCreary and he always delivers the goods. And now they want McCreary to stand back so he can have a chance to bring in more of Republican rule like he has been doing in the past. We are for McCreary first, last and all the time.

The large tobacco barn on the farm that L. A. Dillon, of Cincinnati, bought from Dr. Hopkins, burnt to the ground last Thursday about 8:30 p. m. Asa Deph, who lives on the place did his feeding about sun down and everything seemed to be alright and he did not know of the fire until the neighbors woke him. The loss falls the heaviest on Mr. Deiph, who lost his team, cow, wagon, plows, buggy and all of his feed. The barn was insured for $600 in the county company. We understand that Mr. Dillion will build again this spring.

The unseasonably warm weather that has prevailed this winter has caused the buds to swell and begin bursting. The jonquils, daffodils, crocus and other early spring flowers are already coming up, while leaves are putting forth on the roses and other hardy plants. Many fruit trees are also showing signs of life. This is unfortunate for it is well nigh certain that these early buds will be ruined by a cold spell, which rarely fails of appearance in February.—Blue-Grass Clipper.

Since the parcel post has come the road question is getting to be a serious question with the R. R. carrier and it is plain that there will have to be an immediate improvement of some of the post roads in this county. The carrier on Route 2 out of Burlington and Route 1 out of Grant each has to go horseback to make their routes, and the question is how is a man going to carry about 60 or 75 pounds of regular mail and some days that much parcel post packages? The cost of building good roads is more than offset by the advantages that accrue to those living on the rural routes and they should not oppose any method of bettering their condition. The time is coming when it will be possible to serve only sections where good roads are established, owing to the extra weight of parcel post.

Summer Schools.

The schools in this county have been having a hard time to keep going this winter on account of the unusual amount of illness among the pupils. It would be much better for all concerned were the schools taught during the months of July and August and a vacation taken during the months of January and February when the weather is bad and at which seasons diseases incident to children usually prevail. Keeping children in the school house six hours during the months of June July and August would not be as hard on them as the severe weather to which they are exposed during January and February if they attend school. In June, July and August the days are long and the pupils would have an abundance of time in which to take out of door exercise and put in a day's work at school also. Many of the country schools in progress at this time of the year is an old fogy notion that must be done away with before the best results of the public schools can be obtained in the country where the children have long distances to travel to reach the school houses, to say nothing of the terrible condition of the roads. By eliminating the months of January and February from the school year and substituting the two summer months the matter of fuel for the country schools would be so reduced as to be little more than nominal, which would be a great saving of the school fund, while the ill health of pupils would seldom interfere with a school to the extent of compelling a dismissal.

DAIRY

AGE FOR BREEDING HEIFERS

Opinions on Constantly Recurring Question Differ Considerably—Develop Long Milkers.

The age at which to breed the heifers is a constantly recurring question. Opinions differ considerably on this poiont, and unfortunately experience as related by breeders is not uniform by any means, writes E. E. Kaufman in The Town and Country Journal.

The writer has always tried to make his opinions conform to the experience and observation, but in the case of breeding heifers his views have always been backed up by both experience and observation.

When the heifer is bred to drop the first calf at the age of two years, and in nearly all instances this can be done, the habit of giving milk is early stimulated, besides the young cow is more tractable, and thus more readily brought under the environment of her new condition. With the first calf dropped at the age of two years it is better to delay the breeding of the second calf for six or eight months, but keep milking her for a year at least, in order to develop the trait of long and persistent milking. After the second calf she can be bred regularly every year.

If properly fed and handled there is really no danger of stunting the growth or undermining the constitution by early breeding. For the dairy cow should begin giving milk as early in life as possible, and the habit of persistent milking be thoroughly instilled in the animal. A heifer bred to calve at 2½ or 3 years of age will be more difficult to handle, and consequently not give down her milk so readily, thus bringing about a tendency to shorten the milking period when all efforts should be in the line of a long period of lactation. Breed the heifers young, 14 to 15 months, except, possibly, in special cases.

SUCCESS DEPENDS ON FEED

Cows Must Be Given Both Protein and Carbonaceous Rations in Order to Do Well.

Success in milk and butter dairying depends largely on the feed of the cow in properly balanced rations. Cows must have both protein and carbonaceous foods to do well, and these can readily be selected in due proportion.

The protein foods are alfalfa, clover, cowpea hay, bran, cornmeal, cottonseed meal and soy beans.

The carbonaceous foods are corn and cornmeal, corn silage, timothy hay, corn fodder, carrots, sugar beets and other beets. A good balanced ration may be made of alfalfa or clover hay, silage, corn or cornmeal.

These can be fed in balanced quantity, and the dairyman will very soon see the quantity required after feeding a short time. Thirty-five to forty pounds of corn per day, according to the size of the cow, are enough.

STRAINER FOR A MILK PAIL.

Cheesecloth Placed Over Opening Prevents Dirt of Any Kind From Getting Into Milk.

Even though a milker may be careful, small particles of dirt, hairs, etc., will fall into the milk pail. It is true that the milk is strained afterward, but a large percentage of the dirt dissolves and passes through the strainer along with the milk, writes W. A. Jaquythe of Richmond, Cal., in the Popular Mechanics. The best plan to prevent this dirt from falling into the milk is to put a piece of cheesecloth over the pail opening, securing it there by slipping an open wire ring, A, over the rim. The milk will readily pass through the cloth without spattering.

NECKBANDS OF RIBBON

DECORATED WITH MOCK JEWELS, THEY ARE MOST EFFECTIVE.

With Cheap but Carefully Selected Stones a Perfect Imitation of the More Costly Ornaments May Well Be Achieved.

Neckbands of velvet ribbon on which are sewed rhinestones, crystal or jet beads are easily made and very effective.

The popular width for neck velvets this season is an inch or a trifle more and where the rhinestones are sewed on to simulate slides the inner side of the velvet ribbon is stiffened slightly with a piece of satin covered collar bone. In making such a neckband measure off an inch and a half on each side of the front and at this point sew a closely set row of tiny brilliants, which cost as little as ten cents a dozen. So placed and well stiffened underneath these simulate the jeweled slides of the more expensive neckbands.

This leaves a center space of three inches for special decoration. A good way is to festoon, from one upright to the other, three or four strings of small beads, letting the lower string droop below the line of the velvet band. Another easy decoration is to use a single string of beads for the the festoon and in the middle attach a small pendant. A single pear shaped mock pearl is good for this purpose and so are many of the inexpensive pendants of mock jewels.

Hand made pendants are easily fashioned by covering with black velvet two circles of cardboard of about the thickness of a visiting card. Sew them together with a seat over and over stitch, drawing the sewing silk tight enough to sink into the pile of the velvet. If pearl beads have been used for the neckband sew small pearls at intervals around this velvet circle, threading the beads so that they shall lie out from the circle like a little frame. Have a center formed of a jet or pearl cabochon with three or more radiating lines of small beads.

Such a finish for a velvet neckband may be varied almost indefinitely and the size may range up to the dimensions of the popular enamel lockets. Even with a neckband of black the pendant may be of any bright color with an encircling row of jet beads and a center ornament of jet and rhinestones.

Neckbands of folded black malines are a novelty and are easily made along the same lines as the band of velvet except that the rhinestones or pearls used to simulate slides should be sewed to a background of the narrowest of satin or velvet ribbon and the necessary boning placed on the inner side.

CARRYING SMALL PACKAGES

For the convenience of the woman shopper a bag of immense proportions has been designed, for carrying small parcels. It is of gold embroidered cloth, with shades of old blue, and can be carried with ease by a long silk cord slung over the shoulder. The bag has met with instant popularity by New York shoppers.

No Place for Hairpins.

In Farm and fireside, a telephone expert, writing an article on the construction and use of telephones in rural districts, says:

"Don't use the instrument for a shelf, and above all don't put hairpins or other metals on top of it. I have more than once driven along road in winter to pick a hairpin or a handful of them off an instrument which they were short circuiting out of business."

FLIPPANCY IN GIRLS

By BARBARA BOYD.

"It's all very well," the quiet girl was saying to the little group of intimate friends, "for mother and aunt and grandmother to insist on a girl's being ladylike and retiring and modest and all that. But if she does, she gets left."

"What's the trouble, Phoebe?" chorused the group.

"No particular trouble," Phoebe returned Phoebe. "But I was just thinking such advice is out of date. If a girl takes it nowadays, it'll make her a wallflower and eventually an old maid, or, I suppose I should say, bachelor girl."

"Something has gone wrong," said one of the girls sagely.

"Did you know Sue Dickinson is married again?" asked Phoebe.

"No!" ejaculated the others. "Who to?"

"Kenneth Leaverett."

"You don't mean it!"

"Yes, I do. And that's what set me to thinking upon old-time advice. In spite of everything her parents said, she ran away, you remember, and married Ned Willoughby. Then she quarreled with him and finally got a divorce. And now in less than a year she is married again. And here are all of us, quiet, ladylike, well-bred girls, hanging yet on the parental stem."

"Huh!" said one indignantly. "I wouldn't want to marry either Ned Willoughby or Kenneth Leaverett."

"That may be," replied Phoebe. "But even if you had, you wouldn't have had the chance. You're not forward enough. I don't want to get into personalities," she said hastily, as she saw a gleam in the other girl's eye. "I'm just drawing deductions. As you know, I was invited to a house party last week, out at Whitney's perfectly superb home. And who do you think was the most popular girl there, quiet, well-bred little me or charming Alice Markham? Not a bit of it. It was a loud, giggling individual who talked constantly, laughed constantly, played jokes on the men, kept herself in every way possible in the center of the stage. The men simply flocked around her. They hovered over her like bees over a flower. And the rest of us sat off in well-bred and ladylike quiet and talked to each other."

"That sort of thing doesn't last," observed one.

"She had a good time while it did last, though. And that's more than the rest of us did."

"I wouldn't care for the attentions of men like that," said another.

"Oh, they were good enough, as men go," replied Phoebe. "You have to take them as they are. You can't make them to order."

"It seems to me, then," said a fourth, "that the men are to blame for all the forwardness and flippancy in girls, and the way they dress and all the other things they do that they shouldn't. It would be sort of comfortable to blame the men for it all, wouldn't it?"

"They won't care," quoth Phoebe. "They'll go right on showering all their attentions on the girl with the most false hair and the biggest hats and the tightest skirts and the readiest laugh, whether there is anything to laugh at or not."

"Let them," interrupted another. "There's something more to life than merely pleasing the men. If I prefer refinement and good breeding and good taste, or think they are right and their opposites wrong, I am not going to throw them over merely to win masculine favor. I think we ought to get down to the bedrock fact of what is right and worth while, not merely to whether our conduct will win fleeting popular favor. We want those things in our character that are going to give us lasting satisfaction. And, believe me, none of us here would find lasting satisfaction in the regard of men who like vulgarity in dress and manner. And, believe me, too, the nicest men don't. And even if they seem to for a little while, it is either out of idle curiosity, or to put in time, or a mere passing fancy. I'll stick to the advices of mothers and aunts and grandmothers. They have been observing human nature a much longer time than we have, and they know how it wears."

"Well," said Phoebe, "I suppose the girl with high standards of conduct is of more value to society than the girl without them. And I suppose it is worth while to be of some value somewhere."

"And I'd rather have my self-respect," said another, "than the attention of a dozen men for doing something that I thought beneath me."

Sergeant Didn't "Sabby."

Sergt. Mike Drew was at one time a quartermaster sergeant in the Philippines. He believed he had a working knowledge of the language of the islands, which the soldiers call "Bamboo Spanish."

One day a party of tourists were trying to get two Filipinos to understand that they wanted some trunks taken down to the station. The tourists did everything they knew to get this instruction into the heads of the brown brothers, but it was useless.

Sergeant Drew then offered his services.

"Say, you," he said, turning to the natives, "when the whistle blows on the railroad train, too hoo, you get your bull cart, moo moo, and take these trunks down to the station before the engine starts, ding ding. Sabby?"

"No no saves," the natives replied.

"What!" roared Sergeant Drew. "Don't you understand your own language?"

Do you know that more real danger lurks in a common cold than in any other of the minor ailments? The safe way is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a thoroughly reliable preparation, and rid yourself of the cold as quickly as possible. This remedy is for sale by J. W. Berkshire & Sons and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

The Federal Government has inaugerated a plan in the agricultural department of placing an expert well versed in farm experience in each county in the United States, provided each county will pay $800of the $2,000 to be drawn. This will cause some farmer's son to get a nice position in each county. It will also give the fermers in each county an opportunity to learn a great deal about up-to-date farming. Counties in many States are working under similar service.

Promoting Agricultural Interests

The recent address of President Taft in which he warned the people of the country that our productions of foodstuffs must increase and keep increasing, or else there would arrive a time when we would cease to export such commodities and be forced to import them to supply the wants of our people was a very timely warning.

His words should be borne in mind by the legislative bodies in every state, and neither effort, money nor time should be spared by those in charge of state affairs in adopting vigorous methods to supplement fully the praiseworthy efforts of the National Congress and the Federal Administration in promoting our agricultural interests.

It has been said by some critics that the prosperity of the past ten years has rendered many farmers not only financially independent, but so wealthy that they no longer have to look to the productions of their land as a primary or principal source of income, and that this militates against increased production from the farms of the United States.

The Enquirer believes that the enrichment of the agricultural classes of the country is all for the betterment of the trade of the country in every form: that it aids manufacturers, merchants, shopkeepers, the transportation interests and enables our farmers and planters to produce greater crops through their financial ability to keep their lands in better condition, to provide implements and machinery more amply and in every way to better equip and organize their producing forces.

The decade just passed was remarkable through the dissemination of valuable information to practical farmers as to scientific cultivation.

The results obtained through the intelligent, systematic work of agricultural departments of nation and the states, of the various agricultural associations and journals, of the interest taken by railway systems in promoting production, have been very great and very beneficial.

The good work should go on with the utmost vigor, and thru it the country can reach a stage of production—of annually increasing production—that will save us from the necessity of importations of such foodstuffs as the domain of the United States can yield.—Enquirer.

Fruits Versus Tobacco.

In delivering an address of welcome to the Kentucky Horticultural Society at Henderson a few days ago State Senator Sterling L. Marshall declared that Kentucky is cursed with too much tobacco growing, and that the salvation of the farmer is the growing of fruit, and the discontinuance of the raising of tobacco.

In his response to the welcoming address President Cunningham, of the Horticultural Society indorsed what Senator Marshall had said, and urged the fruit-growers to start a campaign of extension. There was no danger of the overproduction of fruit, Mr. Cunningham said, and he quoted some figures to show that the demand was increasing year by year, and that the supply was not keeping pace with it.

These remarks seem peculiarly worth thinking about by the tobacco growers of Western Kentucky at this time when tobacco prices are so unsatisfactory that the entire stemming district is in a ferment, with surface indications of much bad feeling between buyers and growers, poolers and nonpoolers—and even between some of the pooling organizations. Tobacco is not a food and the demand for it has limitations. There can be overproduction of tobacco, but there are dozens of agricultural and horticultural products which cannot be grown in sufficient quantities to glut the market and which can be utilized in divers ways in the event of any temporary surplus on the farm or elsewhere. It would pay the farmers all over Kentucky to grow a smaller quantity and a better quality of tobacco and to devote more of their attention to fruits and other staple commodities, in the demand for which there is never a cessation.—C. J.

Frankfort, Janduary 29.—Jesse Walker, an aged darkey, and reported half-brother of "Talley Dick" Combs, once accused of assassinating William Goebel, falls heir to 300 acres vauable land in Elliott county and several dollars worth of personal property thru a decision of the court of appeals, establishing his relationship as a brother of Richard Watson, who died intestate.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by J. W. Berkshire and Sons and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Oliver H. Kelley, known to farmers throughout the entire country as the "father" and founder of the Patrons of Husbandry, or the "Grange," died at his home in Washington, D. C., the early part of last week, after an illness lasting but 21 hours.

There is no better medicine made for colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions, aids expectoration; and restores the system to a healthy condition. For sale by E. E. Kelly and Son and E. E. Kelly.

FROM OVER THE STATE.

Mayfield.—At least forty farmers are alleged to have bought bottled coffee at a dollar a pint under the impression that it was whisky.

Franklin.—James Peart, a well-known farmer of the Knob section, was hurt painfully while felling a tree. It falling the tree split, one section striking Mr. Peart across the forehead.

Danville.—The mild weather has proven a money-saver to the farmers. Bluegrass pasturage is better than last fall during the drouth and much stock is being grazed and are fattening on very light feed. The barns are still bursting with provender and the farmers and stockmen are looking to the future as an era of prosperity.

Georgetown, Ky.—Jefferson Davis Grover added Monday 309 acres to the farm of 56 acres which he bought last Friday and which he will convert into a stock farm. The price was more than $75,000, he having paid over $250 an acre for the first tract, and $200 for the new land. The place is situated on the Lexington pike, two miles from town.

Versailles.—McKee Bros., of Forest Home Farm, near this city have bought from E. S. Mayes, of Springfield, the Duroc Jersey boar Defender, four years old, together with twenty-two sows and thirty pigs for a total of $7,000. The price for Defender alone was over $5,000, which is said to be the highest price that has ever been paid for a hog.

Paducah.—Thomas Jennings, a Carlisle county farmer, is experimenting with pecans, which farmers claim can be made a great success in Western Kentucky. He will plant eleven acres in pecan trees. He has sowed several gallons of pecans, to be transplanted when they grow up, and he has received a supply of the Texas variety. Pecans have been grown on a small scale in this section and have proven profitable.

The tobacco industry is the best asset Central Kentucky has. The growing of the crop brings larger returns per acre and puts more money into the hands of the people than the production of any other two crops grown upon the farm. The cultivation of tobacco employs more labor and at better prices than that or any other fecture of farm activity, and has given to Danville and other established loose leaf markets in Central Kentucky the biggest industry they possess and at a time when the laboring classes are in dire need of something to do.—Danville Messenger.

Versailles.—The largest single transaction in farm lands that has been made in Central Kentucky for some time was concluded here when Col. Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., of Frankfort, bought through Louis Marshall, of the Woodford Bank & Trust Co., representing the land owners, the farms of Wm. H. Edwards, Jr., 313 acres, on the west side of the Frankfort turnpike, 4 miles from Versailles; Mrs. Mattie Railey's heirs, 305 acres, on the McCracken's Mill pike, and Mr. James Y. Edwards, forty-seven acres, and Mrs. Mattie Mastin, 45 acres, both on the McCracken's Mill pike. The price paid for the 710 acres was approximately $100,000. The land is all in one body.

Madisonville.—The "dumpers," or nonpoolers, held a meeting in this city and declared to hold their tobacco for 8 cents. Over 300 farmers were inattendance. Resolutions were passed that the nonpoolers would hold their crop until the Stemming Tobacco Association and the organization known as the Farmers' Union sold, and then they would dispose of their crop. The nonpoolers want the matter settled before it is too late to prepare for the 1913 crop, as they declare they will not raise a plant if they cannot receive 8 cents for the 1912 crop. Not a load of tobacco has been delivered at Madisonville and the tobacco factories are closed. This means money is not in circulation and persons are in need of supplies they cannot get as is the case when tobacco fails to move.

After Life Insurance Companeis

Louisville.—Insurance Commissioner M. C. Clay has announced that an investigation will begin shortly of 36 life insurance companies, native and alien, doing business in Kentucky. The inquiry will be conducted in Louisville under the auspices of the State Insurance Department.

Commissioner Clay says he means to clean the state of certain evils and apparently corrupt practices, and establish the business on a higher plane, where policy holders will be safe at all times and under all circumstances.

Many companies, it is said, with inadequate reserve funds, have millions of insurance in force. These will suffer large reduction in capital, while others, not up to the requirements of the law and insurance standards, are in danger of losing their licenses in Kentucky.

Millions of dollars have been put into circulation in the tobacco sections of Kentucky since the season opened and the great improvement that has been made in the quality and color, which policy will undoubtedly be continued, will make this section one of the most valuable in the United States.

It does not take the ground long to settle at this time of the year.

Ought to Be Prevented.

There ought to be some way of preventing the repeated announcements of the discovery of a new and infallible remedy for this, that and the other of the dread scourges which still afflict humanity.

How often have we read within a year or two that some doctor here or abroad had certainly at last found a sure cure for cancer. Imagine the effect on the poor victims of that disease. Hope kindles amidst their dark despair and they wonder if it will reach them in time, or they sink lower yet because they have no means to seek out the remedy. Then, as time speeds and nothing comes of it, they feel they have been tortured needlessly. And yet so many genuine discoveries have been made in recent years, when another announcement comes—and there have been many—they cannot but hope again that this time it may be true. What agony for a man or woman with a strong hold on life to be told, as they feel it ebbing away from them, that the cure is just at hand, or just out of reach, and will be perfected in a little while; alas, for them too late!

These stories ought not to be permitted to go out until they have been thoroughly sifted and tested by competent authority, who will stamp them with their true value.

What racking alternations of hope and despair must have come to sufferers from tuberculosis since Koch's cure was first published! Many aqually useless have followed, till now we have another "made in Germany," which seems to have a little more basis than most of the others.

This new serum was brought out by Dr. Friedman, of Berlin, a man of so much repute and standing in the medical profession there that his claims to have discovered an effective cure for tuberculosis at once attracted wide attention. While himself treating patients, he refused to disclose the secret of his remedy, and the profession in Germany have not, on the whole, been disposed to concede that he has been successful; in fact, the Berlin Medical Society reported that his theory was not well founded, and the London Lancet and the American Medical Journal have expressed adverse views.

In spite of all this Mr. Finley, President of a New York bank, anxious to serve his generation, was so inspired by Dr. Friedmans views that he caused an independent investigation to be made in Berlin, and, as the result, offered the doctor a million dollars if he would bring his remedy over here and make good. Mr. Finley announces that Dr. Friedman has accepted his proposition and will start for this country within two weeks.

The cure will be subjected to the severest tests by the best experts, and the fact that Dr. Friedman has decided to come indicates that he at least has confidence in his success. If it is justified no one will grudge him his million dollars, for he will have bestowed the greatest boon on humanity which one can think of at this time. We, however, advise no one to be sanguine; there have been too many false scents; and yet it is possible. Other dreadful scourges have been conquered, and this is sure to be at some time. Let us hope and pray the hour has arrived.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The mercury fell about 25 degrees between sun set on last Friday and sun rise on Saturday, a great change in the temperature in so few hours. The weather man at Cincinnati gave due warning of the approaching cold wave.

For a sprain you will find Chamberlain's Liniment excellent. It allays the pain, removes the soreness, and soon restores the parts to a healthy condition. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

Wants The Delay Remedied.

The Recorder has called upon the Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service at Cincinnati to ascertain why it is that the papers in the pouch made up at Burlington for Richwood, Walton, Beaver, Big Bone, Landing, and Hamilton and offices along the Q. & C. Railroad are delayed entransit. The pouch leaves Burlington on Thursday morning of each week in time to reach Walton before noon of that day, but instead they arrive there on Friday.

When a Boy Stops School.

Half the children attending our public schools now, will drop out before they graduate. Many will stop as soon as they are 14 years of age, no matter what grade they are in. It may be they will stop in the middle of a term, for the reason, that, if they are not going to graduate, they might as well stop one time as another.

When a boy stops school his education is considered finished, and he is supposed at once to be able to take a man's place in the world. So far as the study of books is concerned, this may be the end of his course, but there are many things that immediately concern his life that never have been touched upon in school. We are too much inclined to use the term, educate, in a narrow sense referring to the few subjects learned in the schoolroom and entirely ignoring the broader meaning of the word, which will include all the outside influences the subjects not on the regular school curriculum.

Among these subjects that are ignored in many schools is the health of the pupils, the right methods of living and the effects of certain habis or abuses. True, in many states the law requires that a certain number of hours a week be devoted to hygiene and physiology. The letter of the law is carried out, but not the spirit usually. The teaching of hygiene in the public schools, as it too often is taught, is valueless, for the children learn very little of practical benefit. In some schools it is the custom for the teacher or some of the pupils to read aloud at this period from a primer of physiology and hygiene that is supposed to give the main points of the subject. In some cases the children learn to recite by note the names of some of the bones of the body, the number of bones and other items of more or less interest. But the practical lessons which may be applied to the daily life are too often neglected.—Mother's Magazine.

When to Market.

The time to market fat cattle is when further gains will not result in an increase in the value per hundred weight of the cattle fed. For this reason plain rough steers which will not produce attractive carcasses should be sold before they are thoroughly fattened. When fancy cattle of excellent quality and type are fed it is a general rule that the fatter they are made the most profitable they will be, as there is usually a good demand for fancy finished beef as there is for any other article of food. The season of the year should also control, to some extent, the quality of cattle that go into the feed lots. Where steers are to be marketed from the middle of July to the first of December, a better grade of cattle and a higher finish are demanded than at any other season of the year. In late summer and early fall the markets are usually well supplied with beef that has been produced on grass, with which half fat grain fed cattle cannot compete profitably. After the Christmas holidays all cattle come from dry lots and have been fattened on expensive food stuffs, hence the competition of grass fed cattle is eliminated and the plain rough cattle can be marketed to a better advantage than during the grazing season.

The two reasons for handling beef cattle are that they reduce farm crops into a more concentrated market product and that their feeding results in a permanent maintenance of soil fertility. All feeding operations should be conducted with these facts in mind. Selection of feeding cattle which will serve the purpose and at the same time result in an immediate profit will be the mark of the successful cattle feeder.

Alfalfa A Sucess.

Danville, Jan. 22.—W. P. Givens, near town has just completed sowing ten acres of land in alfalfa. He has been growing alfalfa with remarkable success for a number of years. On five acres of land the past season four crops were harvested, each crop being equal to the average crop of timothy or clover taken from a similar area of ground. The total harvest was sold at an average of $162 per acre.

Mr. Givens says the reason the average farmer fails in the production of alfalfa is because he fails to fertilize the land with lime, and likewise fails to destroy the weeds at the proper time. Alfalfa is very deep rooted and Mr. Givens runs a deep harrow over the land in the early spring after the weeds are up. In this way the weeds are all killed, while the alfalfa is not injured, as the roots extend much deeper than the soil which is moved by the harrow.

Blue grass land must be fertilized with lime before alfalfa can be grown upon it. Profiting by Mr. Givens' experiments, a number of farmers in this section are planning to raise alfalfa on a large scale.

Inspecting The Public Roads.

County Road Engineer Charles Goodridge has been devoting much of his time since his appointment in viewing the public roads in the county, and while he has gone over a very small per cent of the mileage he has seen enough to give him some idea of the immense amount of labor and time it will require to put them in anything like fair condition. Mr. Goodridge understands handling the dirt roads, and realizes that many persons will not be satisfied with the improvement in the roads which is bound to come slowly, while he expects to have trouble in securing assistants whose indeas of road working conform to his, which he has tried out and which secured for him the reputation of being about the best overseer of roads in the county under the old system of working. Mr. Goodridge will improve the condition of the roads, but it will be impossible for him to make every mile good at the same time, and his success depends largely upon the cooperation of those who are or ought to be interested in good roads. He will endeavor to make his service worth to the county the amount of the salary he is paid and then some if possible. He is young, ambitious and conscientious and asks the cooperation of the public in his work.

He is A Burlington Product.

C. C. Kirk, superintendent of the East Chicago & Indiana Harbor Water Company, leaves the latter part of the week for Indianapolis to take charge of the Indianapolis Water Company.

At a recent meeting of the Indianapolis Company Mr. Kirk was elected vice-president and general manager of the company and was also made on of the directors of the company.

In leaving here Mr. Kirk does not give up the supervision of the local company but will make frequent trips here to oversee the plant. In March W. W. Berry of Denison, Texas, will come to be the local superintendent here.

Mr. Kirk has been with the water company here for several years, coming here from Indianapolis. He has been prominent in politics and is at present Republican city chairman. He has made friends, not only in this city but over the entire county, who will regret to see him leave. Mr. Kirk regretted to leave here, and wished it known to his many friends in Lake county that they would ever find the latch string out when they called at his office in Indianapolis.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Ready to Plant Corn.

Bluff, Bandere Co., Texas.

Dear Sir:—At last I am located on a ranch of 1500 acres. We are attending to cattle and sheep and farming. We have about 212 acres to cultivate. There are two of us to run the ranch. We have about eight days plowing to do yet this spring. One team plows about four acres a day with a double disc plow, and four horses. We want to plant corn from the 15th to the last of February if the weather will permit, as we have had lots of rain in the last month.

The town of my P. O. address is a thriving little village. It can't boast of a court house, office buildings or sidewalks, but it is a nice little place with a population of two, so you know it is a nice place, so please send me the Recorder, Bluff Bandera county, Texas. I will be pleased to hear from my old Boone county friends. Tell the nimrods of the burg that I had wild turkey for my Sunday dinner and have had all the deer I wanted. Jack rabbits are plentiful. We ran 15 off of a gravel bar of about ¼ of an acre. As the hour is getting late I will have to close and retire, hoping to hear from you and my Boone county friends soon."

NOTES From MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Ventilate the dairy.

Clean up the orchard.

Feed the fowls a variety.

Sorghum hay makes good roughage.

Many poultry ills could be traced to a lack of grit.

A neglected cold makes it easy for roup to get a start.

The average farm flock has too many roosters in it at this season.

A pound of oats is not nearly as good for fattening hogs as a pound of corn.

Experiment has shown that oats are not a satisfactory feed for fattening hogs.

Make lime water by adding two or three pounds of lime to a barrel of water.

Careful dressing of fowls for the market has a good deal to do in getting top notch prices.

One of the qualities of the soy bean that commends it to the stock feeder is its protein richness.

Much of the feeding value of the clover depends upon how the crop is managed after it is cut.

Five feet apart is about the right distance for the currant and gooseberry bushes. Do not crowd.

Breeding stock can be purchased to better advantage in fall and early winter than to wait until spring.

If the hens are slacking up in laying try giving them a little green cut bone every day and watch results.

Where hens are forced to use part of their food as fuel to keep warm there is bound to be a falling off in eggs.

The greatest ten-year yield of corn, since it became of national importance in the United States, occurred between 1870-1880.

Corn is no doubt the best feed there is for hogs, but its full value can only be realized when it is used in conjunction with other feeds.

Quiet, gentle handling of the ewes during the winter makes it much easier work to care for the flock during the lambing period.

Don't let any fruit remain on the trees during the winter. Rotten apples are good places for insects to hibernate in during the winter.

The sum of money that is lost every year on the farms of this country by the dairy cows that are not bred especially for dairy work is stupendous.

People are realizing the great comfort and advantages of a few good fruit trees and ornamental shrubs more than ever. Start them growing.

All dairy utensils should be periodically placed in the sun, but wooden vessels should be removed before the heat is sufficient to crack or warp them.

Fruit is the best medicine that we know anything about. Money invested in apples and strawberries is much better invested than it is in "sulphur and molasses."

The next time the cow gives bloody milk give her a dose of epsom salts, bathe her udder with warm water and rub with camphorated lard. This will often cure the trouble.

The time to dehorn is in the spring or fall. Fall is considered best, because the cattle usually are shut up and any ill effects of the operation can easily be prevented.

Clover is as much an egg producer as it is a producer of milk. It is rich in nitrogen and mineral matter. Having a high nutritive ratio, it is equal to barley, and almost as high as wheat.

Don't turn young horses out where the fences are low or easily pushed over. They will be sure to get out. Either they will jump over or they will run the fence over and step out. Good fences make good, orderly horses.

The value of farm land can only be [illegible] by its earning capacity. If [illegible] any price it will pay good [illegible] investment in the [illegible] process. We can add to its [illegible] to its capacity to [illegible] them a little [illegible] farm in the [illegible]

Cull out the roosters.

Whitewash the stables.

Balance the hen's ration.

Young pigs like vegetables.

The warm and busy hen is the best winter layer.

Use few words with a horse, but have them understood.

It is as easy to teach a colt good manners as faulty ones.

Desirable eggs are said to weigh about 24 ounces to the dozen.

If hens develop the feather-pulling habit send them to market at once.

Dairying is a cash business. The good cow pays for her board every day.

Alfalfa will grow on nearly all good, well-drained soils, but best on a rich, sandy loam.

The first big need of the majority of the older corn belt soils is limestone and legumes.

It is better and more profitable to have a herd of five good cows than ten that are inferior.

The green food problem in winter isn't much of a problem if there is any alfalfa hay on the place.

Muddy and unclean stable yards are always sources of loss because of their insanitary condition.

There are but few horses that can not be made gentle and quiet by the proper kind of treatment.

The kind of feed which the cows eat often has an effect upon the flavor of milk and its products.

The farmer who makes an effort to fill the corn crib and smokehouse each year generally succeeds.

Swedish turnips grow well in the northern states and provide a large amount of feed for the winter.

The best stock pea for grazing in the field is the black. Everlasting, Red and Red Ripper are also good.

The farmer who is not raising legumes has his eyes closed to some of the biggest opportunities in farming.

Fruit growing and poultry raising go well together. Anyone following either will do well to consider the other.

The sand vetch is smaller and more recumbent than the common vetch, and has been tested but little in this country.

Hens, when they cease laying, fatten very easily and a fat hen is a thrifty candidate for all kinds of poultry diseases.

Penning chickens is the best way to get a fine flock, for it means that you are getting eggs from the best hens you have.

A hog fed on corn alone from the time it is weaned from the sow until butchered at 18 months old, seldom pays for his keep.

The cows like the silage in the winter just as well as they do the grass in the summer and it is good at any season of the year.

Stout, livable chicks are obtained only from sturdy parents, and pullets that have been forced for winter eggs are hardly in that class.

Don't blame anyone but yourself if your farm won't grow legumes. They will grow for the man who knows how to make them.

It is poor economy to feed spoiled food to the poultry. They may contract disease or become poisoned. Burn all decomposed food stuff at once.

The day has forever passed when the progressive dairyman allows his cows to be brought, running or excited, into the barn, by a dog or a boy with a whip.

Sheep in the summer are gross feeders, rapidly cleaning the land of brush and weeds, but in the barn and in the feed lot they are extremely dainty in their eating.

The best family horses, as a rule, are raised and trained on the farm. Their dispositions are then thoroughly understood, and it is known how far they can be trusted.

It pays to whitewash, ventilate and properly light the stables; to brush and curry cows; to use clean and well-covered utensils, to cool milk quickly and to have a cool place for the milk.

The fruit farmer can always find something to do, either in the orchard or around the buildings. This business like any other is ruined by too much loafing. Keep the loose ends well in hand for the best results.

It often is your fault that hens get to eating eggs; but after they do contract the habit, lay the ax at the root of the tree—in other words, stop the business, short off. Then change your bill of fare. Something lacking in the feed you have been giving. Balance the ration.

HOW TO RESIST

Chronic Coughs and Colds.

Strong, vigorous men and women hardly ever catch cold; it's only when the system is run down and vitality low that colds and coughs get a foothold.

Now isn't it reasonable that the right way to cure a cough is to build up your strength again?

Mrs. Olivia Parham, of East Durham, N. C., says: "I took Vinol for a chronic cough which had lasted two years, and the cough not only disappeared, but it built up my strength as well."

The reason Vinol is so efficacious in such cases is because it contains in a delicious concentrated form all the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, with tonic, blood-building iron added.

Chronic coughs and colds yield to Vinol because it builds up the weakened, run-down system.

You can get your money back any time if Vinol does not do all we say. R. W. Jones, Druggist, Walton, Ky.

BIRD SLAUGHTER IS COSTLY

Direct Connection Between Increase of Insect Pest and Killing Off of Little Songsters.

Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the New York Zoological park, estimates that if the bird population of this country was as large today as it was 60 years ago, it would mean a saving of $250,000,000 to American farmers. There is a direct connection, in his opinion, between the multiplication of insect pests, which are among the gravest problems of modern agriculture, and the slaughter of migratory birds.

The most common orchard visitant of the woodpecker tribe is the red headed woodpecker (Melanerpes erythrocephalus). Generally speaking he is the most sociable of all the bird folks, frequenting orchards, parks, shade trees, and the wooded districts near farms. This tree surgeon makes a nest near the summit of some dead topped tree where he and his wife rear their brood of ten to twelve healthy, hungry youngsters, each of them requiring, nay, demanding to be fed. Practically all this bird's food is obtained by boring. It is impossible to even guess at the number of noxious insects destroyed by them in a season. A pair of them nested in a dead cottonwood near my uncle's orchard in Yakima valley one year, and I watched them one day through a pair of glasses when the young were about half grown, says a writer in an exchange. The two birds made ninety-six trips in one hour to the tree, each time carrying a worm. It is pretty safe to calculate that ninety-six apples were saved in that hour, practically a box, worth ,say, one dollar. If the birds worked ten hours per day they were worth to my uncle ten dollars, or in three weeks the young were in the nest $210. Can you afford to kill a woodpecker?

HANDLING THE FLOWER POTS

Box With Castors Attached Will Be Found of Great Convenience When Cleaning Room.

(By I. M. SHEPLER.)

A box for plants resting on castors may easily be drawn away from the window on cool nights in winter, and pushed back the next morning.

These castors are also a convenience when sweeping about the window. Any woman who keeps house-plants in her rooms can, herself, make two or three window-boxes, legs and all, picked up from where carpenters are building.

These boxes, of course, are used mainly in windows that are kept for the saving of plants for spring, and yet they can contain an assortment of flowers, which, banked back of a window, give an effective picture of beauty to the passer-by as well as to the inmates of the room.

For a small window, and one from which you must get light for the room, be sparing of the plants. There is nothing pretty in a dark room, the cause of which is the window literally hung and placed full of all manner of foliage.

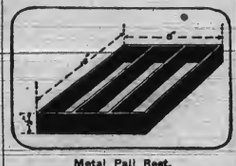
It is such a mistake to fill up a window so full of plants and vines in the winter that one can neither get light for reading nor sight of the prettier world outside. A few plants in a small window, artistically arranged, is a much happier scheme.

And is there anything more dismal than a window stuck full from top to bottom of little green cuttings in tin cans or any old pot? Where is the beauty?

FEEDING THE HEAVY MILKER

Large Producers More Than Balance Added Cost, According to Theory of Prof. F. W. Woll.

Some people are apt to claim that great milkers require feeding the cost of which more than balances the added value of their produce. Those who have this notion should consider the statement made by Prof. F. W. Woll in his address before the Western Guernsey Cattle Breeders' association, who brought up the following figures:



At the close of the Wisconsin cow competition, the Holstein cow, Caroline Paul Parthenia, was accorded the honor of being the largest producer of butter fat. The feed eaten during the year by this cow at market prices was valued at $129.50, while the feed eaten by the lowest producer was $48.32, but as Mr. Woll says:

"The production of butter fat and skim milk at fair values would bring for the poorest cow $68.24 and for the best cow $283.24. If we subtract the cost of the feed from the value of the products, we get what may be termed net returns, amounting to $9.92 for the low producer and $154.44 for the record cow. This, therefore, is the situation: The best cow produced over 300 per cent. more butter fat than the poorest cow; her feed cost 168 per cent. more, but she gave 675 per cent. larger returns."

MACHINE AND HAND MILKING

Flow of Milk Not Appreciably Decreased by Use of Modern Devices—Cheaper and Cleaner.

From experiments with milking machines conducted for nine years by the agricultural experiment farm of New South Wales, it was found that the flow of milk is not appreciably decreased when machine milking is substitutetd for hand milking, except in isolated cases, and that the period of lactation is not shortened or subsequent periods of lactation adversely affected in any way.—Cows that had been milked by machine continuously for five years apparently did not decrease in the annual yield of milk. The percentage of solids in the milk remained the same as with hand milking, and the cows were no more subject to udder troubles. Machine milking was much cheaper and cleaner when the machines were properly cared for and run by a capable operator.

Metal Pail Rest.

The illustration shows a metal frame on which milk pails can be placed while in the stable to keep them out of the dirt.

Quality Not Accidental.

Quality in a cow is not usually accidental, but is produced by care in selection, feeding and general management. Uniformly certain results being obtained by this plan, it looks as if it were more profitable, as well as preferable, to raise your cows.

If one is going to raise the heifer calves haphazard, he may just as well go to the market and buy "sight unseen." But the man who remembers and appreciates ancestry, feed, training and development, may reasonably anticipate a satisfactory progeny from a good, capable cow and a thoroughbred sire of the breed you want.

DAIRY NOTES

Poor cows are never clean.

Use vaseline for sore teats.

No dairy was ever too clean.

Pet the heifer calf and raise a gentle cow.

Slow ripening of cream produces a bitter flavor.

Many a common cow can be made good with more food.

Properly managed, dairying brings in a constant income.

With calves, too low a temperature of feed causes scours.

The cow that gives much milk must have plenty to drink.

The best way to keep cows clean is to use plenty of bedding.

A coat of whitewash will do much to brighten up the cow stable.

A poor milker is one of the surest means of diminishing a milk flow.

The churnability of cream depends largely on its being ripened evenly.

System in the dairy should supersede all other matters on the farm.

What a feeling of satisfaction and security a silo full of green feed inspires.

Nearly every herd can be made to double its production by selection and care.

Vitality is a very important characteristic in the dairy cow or any other farm animal.

The surest and about the only way to get hold of a good dairy cow these days is to raise her.

A cold fall rain doesn't help the milk-giving qualities of the cow exposed to such weather.

It is not expecting too much for a good family cow to produce 300 pounds of butter fat in a year.

The average cow must produce 150 pounds of butter fat a year to pay expenses. All above that is clear profit serial art, was arranging for the day's business, and was filling a gasoline tank connected with a small stove when the gasoline became ignited and in an instant the whole barber shop was in a blaze, and by the time assistance arrived and the flames were subdued everything in the barber shop was charred and burned so as to be unfit for use. Fortunately the fire was confined to his barber shop it was a close call for the frame hotel building. Mr. Miller, the proprietor, has the sympathy of all in his loss as he had no insurance, and had gone in debt for the place, and had been only recently married. However he will soon have everything good as new.

NOTES BY THE WAYSIDE.

T. C. Adams, who resides over on Gunpowder, has been considerably indisposed with grippe for about three weeks.

Lewis Rector, of the Gunpowder hilltops, has about recovered from the effects of an operation he had performed about three weeks ago for tonsilitis.

Grant and Mart Williamson were in Burlington one day last week, closing a deal with Bert Smith whereby they became the owners of his farm on Woolper.

The carrier on rural route No. 2 crossed Gunpowder at Akin's riffle last Saturday, the first time for nearly three weeks. During this time he had been crossing the creek at any old place he could between this ford and the Jos. Riddell farm in order to serve his patrons in the best possible manner.

N. L. Moore, the Hathaway merchant, had the misfortune to break the front axle of his hoter wagon while returning from the city with a load of goods for his store, last Friday night. He transferred his goods to another wagon, and left the wrecked vehicle in the road until the next mornin.

Onnie Rouse, Asa McMullen, Bert Sullivan and Andy Cook each did some very beneficial work last week on the mud roads leading out of Burlington, by the use of a drag. If all of the patrons of R. D. No. 2 would try this remedy on the mud holes near their places they would greatly aid the carrier in more efficiently performing his duties. If you do not feel like doing this for the carriers sake try it once for your own benefit. The drag is easily made and nothing except stone will be of as much benefit to the mud roads.

If the head of each family, who is a patron of rural route No. 2, would contribute two or three days hauling stone on the road next summer they can rest assured that the county will have them broken and spread, thereby eliminating those ugly mud holes with which the and the carrier has to contend every winter. There is no place that there is not a sufficient quantity of stone within one mile of the road, and there is a sufficient number of places that have been thus treated to convince the most skeptical that such a procedure would not be time nor energy wasted. Until this can be done do the next best thing—use the split drag after each rain. If you do not feel like doing this for the carriers sake, do it once for your own benefit and see if it does not net you a good substantial balance at the end of the year.

W. H. Clayton at Greensburg.

Greensburg.—On the second and the last day of the Farmers' Institute, W. H. Clayton, of Hebron, gave a helpful talk on fruit growing, saying that farmers must meet the changed conditions. That spraying is now a necessity. Mr. Clayton explained that the tree feeds through the leaf, and if the leaf is injured or diseased the tree is also, and that spraying is the only means to counteract the baleful work of the San Jose scale and the codling moth. Mr. Clayton also gave a short talk on corn planting, the selection of seed, the preparation of soil, etc. He emphasized the statement that a farmer gaines nothing by planting corn too early.

To Creamery Patrons.

All patrons sending milk to the Burlington Creamery are kindly requested to have their milk out early so as to enable the haulers to get to the creamery at a reasonable time. This will give our butter maker ample time to put the butter up as the trade demands it.

W. H. Rouse,
President.

W. J. Brell, of Erlanger, was in Burlington Tuesday afternoon seeing what encouragement he could fine for establishing an automobile truck freight and express line between Burlington and Cincinnati to begin in the next few weeks. It does seem that such a line ought to do a pretty good business, and would certainly be a great benefit to the people.

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Sam Brad Huey Dead.

S. B. Huey, a native of this county, and for several years a well known citizen of Burlington, died January 26th, at his home in Little Rock, Arkansas, aged 80 years. He is survived by his wife, who was Annie Riddell, one son, E. R. Huey, and one daughter, Mrs. E. A. Kingsley, with whom he was making his home.

Onnie Rouse, from over on Gunpowder, was in town yesterday. He has been using a drag on the road he travels mostly, for five or six years, and is a strong advocate of the drag, saying it will keep the road in pretty good condition.

Circuit Clerk Chas. Maurer is busy getting the run of the papers and books in his office.

Lambs and cold weather generally come about the same time.

Some of the hustling farmers started the plow last week.

Indications are good for considerable more snow.

Letter From Panama.

Following is an extract from a letter W. S. Underhill received from his son who is serving Uncle Sam in Panama:

"Well father, I have seen what I always wanted to—field service and saw it in the right way. I was in everything that took place and I was in some pretty tough places, and I am certainly glad that I got back to Panama. We will get medals of honor from Washington. I am glad that Arthur Rouse still remembers me and I am writing him today for he can get me made an officer as he had Omer Porter from Burlington made one. If you see him give him my regards and tell him many thanks for his kindness in remembering me for some day I may be able to return the favor. I hardly know it is Christmas. I was away from life three months and thirteen days. I guess I did my part and you can say that your son was with Old Glory at all times and in the hottest part of the fire. I did not know that I had so much nerve."

Grow Bigger Crops

Farmers must grow more food for the eaters that are depending upon them. Consumers are multiplying more rapidly than meat animals and grain. One prophet who has recently given his views on the subject, declares that "in the years to come there must be food and clothing from our soil for hundreds of millions of people instead of a hundred million, and within two or three centuries five hundred million people. It this vast host is not to be severly circumscribed in the development as are the people of India and China by insufficient food and poor cloth ing, this can only be accomplished by the dissemination of agricultural science to more than five million farmers of the country, a truly colossal task, and yet one that must be vigorously and successfully confronted." It behooves farmers, therefore, to get all the information scientists have for them on the subject of the increased crops to the end that they may grow the largest crops possible, being assured that all the food they yield.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

CHEAPER FUEL NEEDED

Gasoline costs $1 a gallon in Panama, but that extravagant price is only a temporary infliction the automobilists on the isthmus must bear. Gasoline costs too much everywhere, and the need of a new and cheaper fuel for the motors has long been felt. The International Association of Automobilists has offered a prize of $100,000 for such a fuel, which must be adapted to the use of the internal combustion engines. The prize certainly ought to attract good minds to the work.

Meanwhile, it seems that every commercial expedient has been resorted to by the organized automobile owners to lower the price of gasoline without much success. The wholesale price increased 30 per cent in the first half of the year. A new and less expensive, perhaps even a better, fuel will be found some day, but meanwhile the luxury of owning your own motor car is becoming more burdensome, in spite of the fact that good ones can be bought so cheaply.—New York Times.

Boyle county farmers have lost heavily in hogs from cholera and resorted to vaccination as a remedy. J. R. Knox, of that county, vaccinated fifty head of hogs and turned them into a pasture with a herd which was dying of cholera. All the herd that was not vaccinated died; every one which was vaccinated lived and never at any time showed any symptoms of the disease.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM by William Pitt

Stock like cowpeas.

Pack all fruit carefully.

Take good care of heifers.

Manure the garden in the fall.

Put the machinery under cover.

"The prop of the dairy"—a well filled silo.

Give the weaning colts all the oats they will eat.

The hen that fattens readily is usually not a good layer.

An ounce of salt to a pound of butter is about the right average.

Gather your vegetables before heavy frosts and store in suitable places.

Cuts, lacerations and bruises are treated in the cow the same as in man.

Sweet clover is one of the most valuable crops for improving run-down soils.

After the haying and harvesting are completed, change the sheep from the regular pasture.

The ewe flock should be run through the mill and culled just as the wheat is before sowing.

Dusty feeding places are very injurious, and lack of sunshine for early pigs is detrimental.

Somehow the poultry yard seems to be the very last place that reforms in stock breeding take place.

The ideal time for picking apples is a matter that must be settled to a large degree by the individual.

A liberal banking of sheds on the north side will prove a boon to the cows when the cold weather comes.

At this season of the year with the coming of the fall rains, a dry shelter should be provided for the sheep.

The value of livestock on the farm for turning low-priced products into good money has never been thoroughly understood.

Fall plowing usually produces a better corn crop than spring plowing, the ground being mellowed by the frost and rain.

It is said by observers that a hog roots in the ground for alkali which it finds in the soil and which aids him in digestion.

Let the hogs husk their own corn. Corn and soy beans, corn and rape, or corn and pumpkins, will produce pork for $3 per cwt. or less.

Fall is a better time to manure the garden or potato patch than spring. The richness has time to soak into the soil during the winter.

Don't leave any rotten fruit lying around in the orchard for the insect pests to harbor in this winter and batch their young out next spring.

One lesson that short hay crops have taught us is that a crop of hay can be raised along the roadside where weeds had their home before.

The dairyman who is trying, with dry feed, to compete with the man with a silo, might as well make up his mind to get a silo next summer.

Rub the cow's udder with a damp cloth before milking. We would discharge a milker whom we caught wetting the teats with milk drawn into the hand.

Fruit picking must be done carefully, as all bruised fruit quickly decays. Do not leave any decayed fruit on the trees or lying around on the ground.

Cattle uniformly of the same color and general conformation make a much better appearance in the pasture fields or in the farm yard than those of great variety of colors and general appearance.

It is always best to give slop or drink of any kind to hogs before they have had their feed of grain. When cold weather sets in it is better yet if the slop can be warmed. Ice cold slop does not do hogs much good in very cold weather.

Some farmers have so much to do that manure lies around their yards from year to year, just naturally rotting down where it does harm instead of good. What is the use of mapping out so much to do that often that which is most profitable has to be left undone?

Geese are easy to raise.

A bone cutter is essential.

Protect young fruit trees.

Sell all the superfluous cockerels.

Good fences help make good neighbors.

Englishmen eat, on an average, 95 eggs a year.

Study individual tastes in the cows, and feed accordingly.

Australia raises nearly 10,000,000 acres of wheat a year.

To most farmers the old cow looks better than she used to.

Better three good cows any time than a half dozen scrubs.

High feeding, unless the horse is used every day is a positive injury.

Keep the sire in service just as long as improvement follows his use.

A little green corn in the stalk occasionally will be relished by the hogs.

Regularity in milking hours means more milk in the pail with the same feed.

The fall-plowed land should not be worked, but should be left rough over winter.

The onion crop in Texas was so large this year that it barely paid expenses.

Better than saving the largest potatoes is to save the seed from the most productive hills.

The yellow condition of the alfalfa indicates that it has not received sufficient nitrogen.

If your garden is too wet at times remember that fall is a good time to put in the drains.

If alfalfa or clover will not thrive in your climate or soil it is pretty certain cowpeas will.

Hairy or winter vetch may be sown in the fall, and will be a very useful early spring forage.

Give the wethers extra grain and send them to market before the pasture is dried and short.

If the pigs are thrifty and doing well that is good evidence that they are being pretty well fed.

If you are tired of making milk on high-priced mill feed why not try alfalfa, clover or cowpeas next year?

Save the wood ashes during the coming winter and you will have the best kind of fertilizer for the orchard.

Many a new and valuable implement is left out all winter more through carelessness than anything else.

Close housing and bad ventilation in the cow stable are favorable conditions for starting tuberculosis in a herd.

Good breeding and good feeding are so closely related that they must go together, one is useless without the other.

If sheep are in a good thrifty condition at the start two months of good feeding will properly fatten for market.

Why not lay by the returns from the next few dozen eggs and buy a bone cutter? It will pay for itself in one winter's time.

A horse may be sound in every particular but if he has not a level head he is never a pleasant horse and rarely a valuable one.

A spool of copper wire will come in handy for repairing all sorts of small breaks. Even common baling wire finds hundreds of uses.

With beef prices soaring, the temptation to sell dairy heifer calves for veal is strong, but the foresighted dairyman does not think of giving in to it.

Apples have been found to keep better if well colored and ripened, though not overripe. Picking should not be delayed till this fruit commences to fall.

Ensilage cannot be destroyed by fire and is the best feed produced on the farm for the cow in milk. The dairyman who does not build a silo is wasting part of his profits.

Fodder that is somewhat green when cut should be left very lightly tied in the shock for a day or two in order that it may cure out before being tied and bound tightly together.

A good salve for all kinds of sores on man or beast, sore neck on horses or shoulders is made by taking equal parts of lard and bees-wax, melt and add half as much turpentine to the mixture.

No breed of farm stock is so highly developed that it can be kept at a high standard without careful selection and culling. The fact that stock has attained a high plane is evidence of selection that must be continued.

DANGER FROM GRIPPE

Lies in That Cough and Weak, Worn-out Condition.

Grippe, pleurisy, pneumonia, these are greatly to be feared at this time of the year.

To prevent grippe from being followed by either pleurisy or pneumonia, it is important to drive the last traces of it out of the system quickly.

Our advice is to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, and get your strength and vitality back quickly.

Mrs. A. A. Grabill, of Strasburg, Va. says: "Grippe left me weak, run down and with a severe cough, from which I suffered four years. I tried different remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good until I took Vinol, from which I received great benefit. My cough is almost entirely gone, and I am strong and well again, and I am glad to recommend Vinol to others who suffer as I did."

Try Vinol with the certainty that if it does not benefit you we will give back your money.

Indigestion
causes heartburn, sour stomach, nervousness, nausea, impure blood, and more trouble than many different kinds of diseases. The food you eat ferments in your stomach, and the poisons it forms are absorbed into your whole system, causing many distressing symptoms. At the first sign of indigestion, try

Thedford's Black-Draught

Mrs. Riley Laramore, of Goodwater, Mo., says: "I suffered for years from dyspepsia and heartburn. Thedford's Black-Draught, in small doses, cured my heartburn in a few days, and now I can eat without distress." Try it.

Break the Fallow.

In thirteenth chapter of Matt. Jesus tells us the results of sowing seed in untilled ground. Some ground being stony the plants soon wither and died for lack of moisture, other seed fell among thorns and was by them choked and rendered fruitless. Brake up your fallow ground and sow not among thorns. Jesus interprets the thorns to be the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches—Matt 13:22 The seed of the kingdom, Gods Word, notwithstanding its excellent quality can produce no fruit when sown in a heart filled with the love and cares of this world and its wealth, pride and fashions.

Breaking up of such ground corresponds to Bible conviction, which results in a true repentance. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit, a broken and a contrite heart. God thou wilt not despise.—Psa.51-17.

It is too often the case that souls in a backslidden state, in whose heart thorns and briars have long been growing, go to meeting and after hearing the Word preached in its fulness for a few days, begin to form new resolutions, acknowledge their short comings, testify of their intention to do better in the future, only to go forth and have the Word choked and their good resolutions crowded out by thorns which still remain in their hearts. Beloved, let us heed the admonition, break up your fallow ground and sow not among thorns, for that which beareth thorns and briars is ejected, and is nigh unto cursing, whose end is to be burned. Heb. 6-8.

Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap—Gal. 6.7. Let us be no less wise than the children of this world, who would not sow cheat expecting to reap wheat. Let us not sow mails and wickedness and expect the harvest to be peace and righteousness.

Jesus answered, verily, verily I say unto thee, except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God—St. John 3-5.

He that believes and is baptised shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be damned. And these signs shall follow them that believe. In my name shall they cast out devils, they shall speak with new tongues, they shall take up serpents and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them, they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover.—Mark 16, 16-19.

Jesus answered and said unto him, if a man love me he will keep my words, and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him—John 14-23.

So the Lord will be with us if we keep all of his words. Then if we disobey we transgress his law; if we transgress his law we commit sin for sin is the transgressing of the law, and Paul said knowing this that our old man is crucified with him that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin, for he that is dead, to the world, is freed from sin—Rom. 6, 6.8.

James says, ye adulters and adulteress know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God—James 4-4. Therefore we should not, as Christians, serve the amusements of the world, they belong to worldly people. For when ye were the servants of sin ye were free from righteousness—Romans 6-20. Friends, read sixth chapter of Romans and 3d chapter of 1 John.

For instance, we take a man who says we can't live here without sin, is a Sinner, if he commits Sin what better is he than any other Sinner? If a Sinner he can't be a Christian until he is born of the Spirit and Water. He ought to know of himself that he can't be both a Sinner and a Christian. See Matt. 6-24. See Luke 16-9, which says make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness that when he fail to be a Christian they may receive you unto everlasting habitation of the ungodly. Jesus answered them, verily I say unto you Whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin.—St. John 8, 34-35. So as a Christian we must live free from sin or we are a sinner. Every man that hopes to be a Christian purifies himself even as he is pure—1 John 3-3. Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not; whosoever sinneth hath not seen him, neither know him—1 John 3-6.

Now, dear friends, we see that the Bible surely teaches we can live here in this life free from sin; we acknowledge a sinner cannot live as a Christian can with the Lord to help him over—come all things, therefore if the Son shall make you free ye shall be free indeed—John 8-36.

I determined to know the truth for myself for I knew that this knowledge was for me and by the help of the Word and the Holy Spirit, these two great witnesses, I got my feet on the solid Rock of truth and know so. This is really the only satisfactory way for any truthseeker. Try the spirits prove all things and hold fast that is good or true—1Thess. 5-12. 1 John 4-1. This is the only way we can save ourselves from false teachings.

Let no man deceive you with vain words, for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience—Eph. 5-6.

A Christian should trust the Lord for all things, for his healing when sick as well as for Salvation from sin. Jesus saith unto him. I will come and heal him—Matt. 8-7. Jesus gave his disciples power to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease. Who is capable of this duty? And these signs shall follow them that believe—in my name shall they cast out devils, they shall speak with new tongues—Mark 16-17. The power of the Lord was present to heal them—Luke 5-17.

And into whatsoever city ye enter and they receive you, heal the sick that are therein and say unto them the Kingdom of God is come nigh unto you—Luke 10, 8-9.

In the name of Jesus of Nazarath rise up and walk—Acts 3-6, and his name through faith in his name hath made this man strong whom ye see and know—Acts. 3-16.

Is any among you afflicted let him pray, is any sick among you, let him call for the elders of the church and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord, and the prayer of faith shall save the sick and the Lord shall raise him up and if he have committed sins they shall be forgiven him—James 5-13-16.

A Christian has a great desire for the soul of people to get saved from their sins. He wants to see them saved, he will spend his money and time on them and what he does it is for the glory of God instead of self. His mind is what can I accomplish for the Lord today he humbles himself before the Lord for strength and wisdom every day. He never eats a meal without giving thanks to the Lord.

There is a man who is called Pastor Russell, who is teaching a false doctrine that suits all deceived people because he claims there is no hell or everlasting punishment. He teaches this for self-benefit more than the desire to save souls. Oh what an awful deceiving doctrine of the devil he tries to get people to believe. There is no punishment everlasting after death, but there surely is for the Bible teaches it. He will surely find it so when he dies, for his false teaching there is a great punishment for them. False Christ and false prophets shall rise and shall show signs and wonders to seduce if it were possible even the elect—Mk. 13-22, for such are false apostles, deceitful workers transforming themselves into the apostles of Christ, and no marvel for Satan himself is transformed into an angel of light—2 Cor. 11-13-15. So people are being deceived by Russell's teaching because it is easy and they think by it they will escape the lake of fire and brimstone, but will be badly surprised if they die in these sins.

It is better for thee to enter into life warned than having two hands to go into hell, into the fire that never shall be quenched. Wherein the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched. Mk. 9-43-44.

And the devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone where the beast and the false profits are, and shall be tormented day and night forever—Rev. 20-10, and whosoever was not found written in the Book of life was cast into the lake of fire—Rev. 20-14. The idolaters and all liars shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone—Rev. 12-8. If we believe the Bible we must take it all or it is no use to take any. Christ says, all I have told you is necessary for you to do to be saved so you see, Brethren, we must obey the Gospel if we expect to be saved.

The Correct Road Spirit.

The more progressive citizens residing north of Gunpowder creek on the Union and Burlington road, who have been making a big success of the use of the split-log drag, have about concluded to go a step further and make an ideal piece of road for a distance of three miles, regardless of the refusal of some of the land owners who would be materially benefitted thereby to assist in the work, although repeatedly solicited to lend a helping hand. The proposition now under consideration is the donation of a large amount of hauling of stone along the road for the purpose of macadamizing it in the most approved style. These progressive men say the stone are close at hand and can be had for hauling, and that they can find spare time during the summer months for doing the work. They believe that eight or ten teams can be enlisted in the work, and that one or two weeks work will make a big showing. In the event that it is impossible to complete the work this year it will be resumed next year where it is left off. The use of the drag on the road for the past few years has given it nearly enough crown to receive the macadam, and this work has been accomplished at times when it cost those so engaged very little, in fact those who have used the drag consider the cost of the work they have done nothing as compared to the benefit they have received therefrom. There is but little doubt that those who have so far refused to give the proposition any encouragement will fall in line when the work is gotten under way and will ultimately bear their part, as they have too much pride and are imbued with too much public spirit to see their neighbors engaged in such a valuable and commendable piece of work by which they are to be benefitted, while they refuse to assist. If the work is once in progress there is but little doubt but all those who are directly interested in it will be found pulling together in the most harmonious manner, as every citizen has an interest in the upbuilding of his neighborhood. If the present plans are carried out the three miles of road will be a model piece when completed, as those at the head of the movement are practical road men and will be satisfied with the best class of work only.

Good roads constitute the leading problem today in Kentucky, and every property owner is interested in them, especially in Boone county where a system of good roads would put at the door of every land owner one of the best markets in the entire country, and farmers could make a speciality of any kind of farming he desired as he would be in a few hours of a market for anything he could produce, but as it is now there are only a few months in each year that the farmer is certain of being able to reach the market when his produce is ready, which is a very great handicap to any community and a detriment to prosperity. There is not a county in Kentucky to which a system of good roads would be of more benefit. It has all the natural advantages of any agricultural section of country, and its market is close and among the best. With a system of good roads there would be an increased demand for Boone county real estate, whereas at present many would be purchasers who come to the county seeking investments return because of the very bad roads they encounter in their search for desirable farms, of which there would be many did the public roads not render them inaccessible for about one-third of the year. For a county to keep up with the procession the time has come when good roads are a necessity, and Boone can not afford to drop out of the procession when she is abundantly able to have the best of everything that is going, and which is deserved by her good people, who have heretofore denyed themselves many comforts that the coming generations may be on easy street, but for these sacrifices and deprivations they will receive no thanks and others will enjoy the property they accumulate by constantly laboring under the disadvantage of dragging over bad roads killing their teams and exposing themselves. It is time that the people of Boone were turning their attention more to solid comfort then to the inflation of their pocket book. When they do this they will be a happier and more prosperous people, and her lands will be sought.

Difference Now and Then.

Forty years ago upon the farm the soil was new and productive and the population was much less in the United States and the cost of living was correspondingly low; hogs fattened in the woods on waste; a jeans pair of trousers and a coat of the same material was good enough for the farm boy and many times the owner of the farm. Now standing collars, tailor made clothes in many cases. Now fertilizer must be used to make a good crop. Feed for the team and family is higher and the labor worth double; so taking everything in consideration our forefathers lived perhaps as easily as we do today. The day has come when the soil must be looked after or else the population will far over-reach the crop production of the country and the high cost of living instead of decreasing will increase. The cost of land forty years ago was much less than today therefore the investment upon which a profit is to be greater, now it costs more to buy the work stock, dairy stock, etc., and as a rule the soil is thinner. The high price of hogs, beef cattle and provisions raised upon the farm offset this increased cost of the land but it takes more systematic farming to succeed now than then. So it pays to train up the boys and girls to be successful farmers and they will not have to cry back to the farm from the crowded city.

Error In Instructions.

Error in instructions caused a reversal of the Floyd Circuit court by the Court of Appeals in a case in which Elizabeth Robinett had recovered $500 damages on account of an exciting ride she had from Catlettsburg to her home in Harold, Floyd county, on the Chesapeake & Ohio. Her father, with whom she was sitting, and the conductor engaged in an altercation over her father's ticket, and her father was knocked against her and then put off the train. The conductor was afterward declared insane, and she sued the company, charging that assault and battery had been committed on her person. The court held that if she had been brought into physical contact with the participants during the fight by reason of one of them being knocked against her, that substantially fulfilled the statutory definition of assault and battery, but the trial court failed to give instructions to the jury to which the defense was entitled.

Want the Lexington Pike.

The hearing in the matter of condemning the Lexington turnpike, so far as its boundary in Kenton county is concerned, came up yesterday before Co. Judge Walter Cleary. The appraisers, it is claimed, placed a value of $13,000 on the pike, and at a partial hearing yesterday the court overruled the demurrer of the defendants and set the hearing of the proceedings for next Thursday. It is said there is a constitutional question involved in the suit, it being claimed that the state has a half interest in the pike, which, it is believed, it is willing to give to the county with the provision that the county maintain it. Should that be the case, the pike will cost the county but $9,500. The Lexington pike is the only one in the county where gates are maintained.—Covington news in Friday's Enquirer.

That Old Fashioned Sleigh.

About this season of the year a great many persons use to get busy tapping sugar trees for making the old time homemade molasses and sugar, very little of either of which is seen in this part of the country anymore. The sugar season was a busy time about forty years ago, when there were numerous sugar camps in the county, and a large quantity of their product was the result.

Burned to Death at Elliston.

Williamstown, Feb. 8.—Maggie, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. J. M. Webster, of Elliston, lost her life when their home was destroyed by fire last night. She was sleeping in an upstairs room and was burned to death. The mother and two children escaped in their night clothes and walked two miles to the home of C. M. Sipple, barefooted.

Recall of A Jury.

At Jackson, Wednesday, Circuit Judge Young set a good example by discharging a petit jury panel which returned "two very dissimilar verdicts in two very similar cases."

"It seems that this jury cannot or will not return proper verdicts," Judge Young is reported as saying, "and that a poor man has not an equal chance with one who wears good clothes and an air of prosperity." The provocation lay in the fact that a prosperous looking individual was fined $50 for shooting on a public highway, while a man "of little means and poor appearance" was "soaked" to the extent of a seventy-five-dollar fine and a 10 day jail sentence for the same offense.

Jury material is abundant and courts would do well to exercise more discretion than they ordinarily do in selecting it. A jury which shows an inclination to make fish of one criminal and fowl of another in cases when the defendants are equally culpable should be disbanded and its members sent about their business. There is no lack of instances in Kentucky where juries fail to do their duty. In truth, one of the greatest obstacles on the administration of justice is the leniency which many jurors show in dealing with crimes of both high and low degree.

The poor and ignorant individual who "plays Indian" on the public highway is no more blamable than the well dressed "gent" who selects a thoroughfare as a proper base from which to shoot holes in the atmosphere and the scenery. Certainly, as between the two, sympathy would be less likely to be misplaced if bestowed upon the man "of little means and poor appearance," who, it is reasonable to say is a victim of environment and better acquainted with the seamy side of life than with the polished arts of civilization.

The combined efforts of Judge Young and Judge Benton, who at 91 contributed in no small measure to clarifying the situation encourage other judges and other communities to deal resolutely and fearlessly with difficulty and dangerous conditions whether they exist.—Courier Journal.

Will Cause A Blush of Shame.

The recent trial of Policeman Maloney in Louisville for killing a man following a bar room row, with the circumstances attending it, will cause a blush of shame to every Kentuckian who is jealous of the good name of the State. Kentucky at its best has an unsavory reputation among her sister States, and this trial will not help the reputation any. Commonwealth's Attorney Huffaker has made a sensational charge that there was a "frame up" to obtain a verdict favorable to the defendant. If true those responsible should be dealt with in a manner that would preclude a repetition of such practice. The suggestion of a Louisville attorney that a popular subscription be started to raise a fund to be offered as a reward to the person who will secure the capture and conviction of the parties responsible for causing the disappearance of the only eye witness to the killing, is a laudable one, and it is to be hoped that such a fund will be started. The robes of justice are dragging in the mire in our proud old commonwealth, and it is high time that they be gathered up. The price of human life in Kentucky is too cheap.—LaGrange Era.

A New Swindle.

The Georgetown News says that a poorly clad woman, carrying what she claimed was a delicate babe, trudged through the streets during a heavy rain soliciting aid which was readily given. Later in the day, however, it was discovered that the "babe" in her arms was nothing more than a small dog, which she had tactfully clothed to resemble the image of a child, having a thin veil over the "purp's" face so that its appealing eyes would penetrate the heart and pocket of an unsuspecting public.

Encourage the Hens.

By far the larger part of the eggs produced in this country came from farms where hens are allowed to run as they please. Not one in ten of these flocks produce eggs enough to pay for their feed, where the farmer takes the oats, corn and wheat out of his granary. The reason it pays him to keep hens on the place is because they pick up the waste grain and weed seeds and make a few eggs each year out of them. Every farmer who keeps a flock of hens on his place under these conditions is not living up to his opportunities. His hens could be made more profitable than his cows if he would go at it right. A dozen eggs can be produced for much less than a pound of butter, to say nothing about the difference in the amount of labor required. Let the farmer study the poultry question along the same lines he does his dairy operations and it will not be long before he sees the possibilities of his hens. If he will house his hens as comfortably as he does his cattle and feed them as well as the cows are fed, there will be a big balance in favor of the hens when the profits are figured up at the end of the year.—Our Country.

Didn't Buy the Tobacco.

Henderson, Feb. 8.—Thos. Gallaher will start back to Ireland this afternoon, without having bought any of the tobacco of the Stemming District Association. There is now little hope of a sale of the entire crop. There are buyers for 10,000,000 pounds, which will probably be sold at 7 cents. It is likely that the tobacco will be sold at this place and the balance prized.

BOONE'S ADMIRATION

By Lee Conway.

"I need to be a little fairy godmother for the children to-day," said Claribel, the eldest, received the day after her sixteenth birthday a basket of bonbons, a token of admiration of a youth whom she had met while visiting in the summer, towardly rebelled at the prospect of seeing the delicious sweets vanish like the dew before the sun. For the young Cromptons always made remarkably short work of a box of candy.

"I speak first for that big piece of candied pineapple," said Alice as the children gathered around Claribel to see the delectable package opened.

"Can I have some o' them candied violets, Claribel?" asked small Joe.

"No, you can't." Claribel quickly raised the basket beyond the reach of Joe's none too clean hand. "You can't have any, because you said, 'them' instead of 'those.'"

"Well, I don't care if I did. You ate more'n half the taffy I bought with the nickel dad gave me for having my spelling paper right."

"And it was the first time he ever got a perfect mark," chimed Helen.

"Why, Claribel, aren't you going to let us have any of the candy? You shut down the basket lid with a regular forever bang."

"Mayn't I have that pineapple to put in my lunch box?" asked Alice. "I guess if you had to take an old lunch to school every day the way I do, and—"

"No, Alice," returned Claribel with finality. "I'm going to save this candy."

"Save it!" exclaimed all the children.

"What for?" demanded Carita. "You know I had the toothache yesterday and couldn't eat any of your birthday candy. I think I ought to have a lot of this."

"And get the toothache again," scornfully remarked Claribel. "If you weren't such a baby about going to the dentist you could have your teeth fixed."

"Well, what good would it do if you're always going to save your candy?"

"I'm not always going to save it," replied Claribel in a tone of martyred patience, "but this is a very special basket of candy and I think if I don't want it all gobbled up the first minute I've a right to keep it. My sorority is going to meet here a week from next Saturday and I want to show all the girls this beautiful basket just as it is. Then I'll pass it around and you can all have some."

"Yes, after the sorority girls have picked it all over," grumbled Alice.

"Some day you may wish to join my sorority, Alice."

Alice, being an aspirant for early election to her sister's sorority, looked somewhat chagrined and meutioned casually that it was time to be going to school. After the others were gone Claribel hastily looked about for a hiding place for her basket of candy. After a moment's desperate thought—for nothing was sacred in the house of Crompton—she flew into the library and secreted the candy with considerable satisfaction at her bright idea.

"Where on earth did you put your candy?" asked Helen the next day.

"Oh, were you looking for it?"

"No, of course not, but I didn't see it anywhere and I just wondered where it was."

"I suppose you all wondered." Claribel was smiling superior. "I just put it away."

Joe, coming in from play on the Saturday of the sorority meeting, forced his way into the library against the protests of his young sisters, who warned him that Claribel would be cross if he went into the meeting.

"She was always very secret, I don't care if it is a secret," declared Joe. "Claribel promised me some violets today and I want them."

"You run right away," commanded Helen as he entered the room. "You know you can't come to our meeting."

"I don't want to come to your meeting. All I want is the candy you said you'd—"

"Oh, my basket of candy!" fairly shrieked Claribel. "It's all burned up." "Why, how can it be?" asked Alice, who had ventured in, having been listening at the door. "Where was it?"

Claribel pointed at the fireplace. "I put it under the cedar boughs that I brought in from the country to make the fireplace look pretty, and now the girls came todsy I thought a cheerful fire would be and I lighted it and forgot all about the candy."

The sisters, sorority and real, looked sympathetically about the room. Claribel, but Joe said, "I know you're sorry you didn't give me the candied violets."

LATE WORK IN THE ORCHARD

Thorough Spraying After Rotten Fruit and Other Refuse Is Cleaned Up Is Recommended.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

After all rotten apples, pruned limbs and other refuse have been cleaned up about the orchard, the trees should be given a thorough spraying.

If possible, one should choose a warm day for this operation, so most of the insect pests, crawling out to lie in the sunlight, will be exposed to the action of the spraying solution.

Special attention should be given old knots, rough and rotten spots about the trees, as in these places is where the fruit pests deposit their eggs for next season's crop and at the same time many of these pests themselves are harboring in these safe retreats till winter is over.

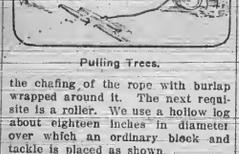
There are several reasons for this fall spraying. It not only destroys the insect pests, but their eggs also, which have been laid.

After the spraying the trees will be left healthy and clean and free from the pests while they are developing their next season's fruit crop. Another light spraying next spring will not come amiss, but this fall spraying will insure the work being done—not neglected next spring when the rush season is on and the field turns the farmer's attention from the orchard.

STRAWBERRY IS VERY HARDY

Plant Will Stand Severe Weather, but Is Injured by Alternate Thawing and Freezing.

The strawberry plant is very hardy, standing severe and continued freezing weather, but is often injured by alternating freezing and thawing, therefore we must cover to prevent this injury. Any coarse, strawy material, like old hay, straw, leaves, pine needles or strawy stable manure can be used for this purpose.



Only a thin covering is needed, just enough to prevent thawing until the warm weather of spring. Most growers of strawberries delay covering until the ground becomes frozen so that a team may be driven over the ground without cutting it, but it is better in the home garden to cover the bed as soon as the ground begins to freeze.

Blackberry canes may be protected in the same manner, but the roots must be started with a fork so that the bending shall not come upon the canes, which would be broken if bent over.

METHOD OF PULLING TREES

Good Team of Horses and Three-Quarter Inch Rope and Tackle Will Do Job Easily.

When we transplant trees taken from our nursery we use the method shown in the sketch for taking up large shade trees. A three-fourths inch rope, eight or ten feet long, is doubled, the ends tied together and looped around with an extra hitch, writes F. E. Dougan of Pawnee, Okla., in the Popular Mechanics. The tree trunk should be well protected from the chafing of the rope with burlap wrapped around it. The next requisite is a roller. We use a hollow log about eighteen inches in diameter over which an ordinary block and tackle is placed as shown.

A good team of horses will easily pull a tree three or four inches in diameter, with all its roots.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES

When did you manure the orchard last?

Fix up the ladders before putting them away.

Cover strawberries two inches deep with hay or straw.

Grape vines may be trimmed as soon as the leaves have fallen.

Get after the black knot on plum and cherry trees. Cut off and burn.

Buy a pair of pruning shears. They can be used any month in the year.

The easiest way to get rid of tent caterpillars is to cut down wild cherry trees.

Protect newly planted fruit trees from mice and rabbits by a strip of tar paper.

Plow up the vegetable garden before freezing weather and let frost act on the soil.

Gather up all rubbish in the orchard and burn it. Use rake and pruning knife freely.

Many a desirable tree has been ruined because the wire or label was not removed.

Letting wormy and diseased apples rot on the ground is bad business. Better let the hogs in to them.

If you have not already done so, cover rhododendrons to protect them from alternate freezing and thawing.

Keep on the lookout constantly to destroy insect eggs and cocoanuts on the bark or trees and in rubbish piles.

SHE GOT RID OF HIM

By HELEN MILLER.

"Some men are born persistent," remarked Miss Pearl Fattershall to the stenographer from across the hall, as they ate their noon sandwiches together behind the files. "It nearly drives a girl crazy trying to discourage 'em. I don't know whether they are so stuck on themselves they can't believe any human woman wouldn't choke to death with joy at being noticed by them or whether they are just ordinary stupid. Believe me, I know—after Mr. Blewer!"

"Who's he?" asked the stenographer from across the hall.

"Him?" inquired Miss Fattershall, poising the remnants of her ham sandwich daintily in the air. "Why, Mr. Blewer is the only one out of captivity, that's who he is—and he just wailed for handcuffs put on by me, but I couldn't see it that way—not with the prospect of Jimmy's getting more pay after New Year's! Mr. Blewer is tall and looks as though he was varnished. You know that kind—varnished collar an' cuffs, an' hair an' teeth an' everything!

"I don't believe he ever sat down after his clothes were pressed till he got to our house. I never saw such a perfectly immaculate man. There wasn't a thing to object to in that line. He was always just right and I guess that's why he made me so tired.

"He's manager for the third floor at Pickle's factory and he can take a taxi whenever he wants to. That kind of dazzled me at first after hanging to a street car strap all the way home, but constant luxury soon palls.

"I treated that man to more varieties of snubs that you could count and he just hung around all the steadier. When I snapped his head off he merely murmured that he liked my sparkling vivacity and when I sulked he admired my dignified reserve. I for got engagements with him and he kept right on asking me. Why, do you know, if I ever forgot to keep an engagement with Jimmy he'd drop me like a hot potato! You can't fool with Jimmy! But Mr. Blewer, he just came right on. I'd keep him waiting an hour while I dressed and when I came down, instead of his gnawing his cane with rage, I'd find him comfortably reading a last month's magazine.

"If he brought me flowers I'd pin them on so they'd drop and get lost before we were a block away and when it was candy I always gave it to my little brother before him, saying I couldn't eat that variety of bunbuns. No, I wasn't ashamed of myself, because he might have had less conceit and more sense! A perfect lady hasn't much of any way of telling a man he's a bore and a back number with her except by the indirect lighting system—and if he's as blind as a bat that isn't her fault!

"Well, I had to get rid of Mr. Blewer somehow, because Jimmy was beginning to paw the air and breathe hard and I didn't want any duel on our front doorstep an' my picture in the papers labeled, 'Beautiful an' wealthy society girl, heroine of a romance!' Not for me! I have a little pride left!

"How do you suppose I got rid of Mr. Blewer—now, honest? Perfectly simple, my dear, and I'm telling you in case you get desperate some time, same as I was. I suddenly began dropping hints to him what a wonderfully fine cook I was and how I hated pounding a typewriter all day when my soul just longed for a gas range and a sack of flour and a recipe book. I said the dream of my life was to have time to cook delicious things that would melt in your mouth and that sometimes when I could persuade mother to go and visit her sister I got the dinner.

"He actually stuttered trying to say fast enough that he'd like so much to be invited to one of my own dinners some time, and after hesitating coyly I said he might have the chance soon.

"Mother is peculiar—she's so frightfully honest—so I had to get her out of the house before I could turn the trick. She nearly gave me heart disease the last minute by saying she guessed she wouldn't go to Aunt Jessie's that day after all—but I finally got her started. Maybe I didn't rush home from the office that night! I told my kid brother and sister that if they so much as peeped at anything they had to eat that night I was no longer a sister of theirs—and then I set to work.

"Sugared the soup and spilled the saltbox into the boiled cabbage and burned the meat till it was like leather and flavored the gravy with vanilla. I'd bet no cannonball was ever harder'n the biscuit I turned out and I made an apple pie that was lumpy and half done inside and not sweet enough and with a doughy tough crust—and if there's anything worse than that I'd hate to have to eat it!

"Oh, it was a splendid dinner of its kind and I heaped that Blewer man's plate. I made him eat two helpings of everything—there was plenty because the kids couldn't swallow a thing and stared at me so bewildered at the handout sister had cooked, I nearly died laughing inside!

"Toward the pie Mr. Blewer began getting pale and soon after he said he must be going. I told him I had so enjoyed having him see what I could do in the culinary line and he said yes, it had been a wonderful an' illuminating experience. And he hasn't been near me since! Not once! What do you think of that?"

"I think you probably killed the poor man with your cooking," replied the stenographer from across the hall.—Chicago Daily News.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondent of the Recorder:

Washington.—Few persons realize the far reaching importance of the fact that the U. S. will soon have an income tax on its statutes.

First of all it means that millionaires will—for the first time since this nation has stood, bear a fair proportion of the burden of taxation.

It is estimated that one hundred million dollars will be raised annually by taxing incomes. This will mean that that amount of taxation is to be taken off of the things that the people must have in order to live and placed on wealth.

Under the system of protection as played in this country, nearly every penny of the money necessary to run the government, maintain the army and navy construct public buildings, etc., is raised by taxing the things the people eat, wear and use. The only thing that protection does not tax is wealth. A man with a fortune of ten million dollars has not been required to pay a single penny of tax to the national government. This seems almost unbelievable, but it is true. The man working on the section for one dollar and fifty cents per day with a family of five children, is at the present time actually contributing more to run the national government than the millionaire bachelor, too proud to marry and raise a family.

The United States of America is practically the only one of the great nations where such a condition exists. Nearly every first class nation on earth levies either an income tax or an inheritance tax.

Why have we never been able to place an income tax on the statute books, is the question that naturally arises. Here is the answer: High protectionists have prevented the passage of an income tax law, because they knew that the more money the government collected from taxing incomes, the less excuse there would be for a tariff tax. To take protection away from the tariff is to interfere with their monopolies. And how could the tariff trusts gouge consumers without having monopolies of American markets?

In Love With Florida.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I am now in the city of Jacksonville, Florida, for a few months, having arrived after a very enjoyable trip from Cincinnati on the L. & N. R. R. on our trip through the mountain and level lands as well as through very rough and rugged country. Until we reached Georgia the land was generally quite rough with very large rock on each side, some of which, in appearance, were from 20 to 100 feet in diameter, and those on the summit of the highest hills looked like huge mansions or uninhabitated castles. The most surprising thing, however, was how such large trees could grow on such soil. Through Georgia and Florida the soil was either white or red—the land was level, somewhat swampy, and all the way large forests of pine trees met the eye.

No doubt many have given descriptions of Jacksonville, and you may be an imposition for me to ask you to publish this, but I found it so much larger and finer than I had expected that I was inclined to let my Ky. friends know what I think of it. Well, if I were a young man I should like very much to make it my future home—would do so even now in my old age if I had all my children here. It is a very flourishing city. Some years ago fire destroyed the greater part of it, but since then it has been built up with fine buildings and extended for miles. They have a great many very fine residences here that could not be purchased for any less than 30 to 50 thousand dollars, and some as high as one hundred thousand dollars, I am told. Those residences have large yards, lawns of beautiful flowers and all kinds large Magnolia, Palm oak and other kind of shade trees, and the business houses, some of which occupy one half to a whole square, are built of white or cream colored brick.

The Y. M. C. A. is a fine building with marble columns, door and window facings, wainscoting and tile floors. Some of these buildings are from six to fifteen stories in height. Here they have large stone churches and Masonic and other temples. They have quite a number of very commodious and well equipped hotels, too. The court house is a large building but they contemplate erecting a new one in the near future. The most beautiful part is with their monuments, fountains, lakes and large beds of the finest varieties of flowers in bloom and large shade trees are found here. Here they have well paved streets extending many miles into the country—nice sidewalks and everything kept neat and clean.

The St. Johns river, which I'm told at its widest part is five miles in width and floats the largest vessels, with its docks is also of much interest. Instead of flowing south, east or west, it flows toward the north. It is a very pretty body of water and abounds pretty body of water and abounds in fish.

I found the people here very sociable and accommodating—forgot to mention that the population is from 50,000 to 75,000 and rapidly increasing. Some decent lots that four or five years ago sold for $400 to $500 can not be bought now for less than $1,000 or more. Two or three miles out of town they sell for as much as $1,000.

I cannot say much about farm lands but I hear that they must be fertilized at a great expense to make them produce well and that it must be done every year. This, they say, is on account of the sandy soil. The land will not retain the fertilizer like our clay soil does. However I believe that land which can be had for such large oak and other timber as I see here, some of which are three to five feet in diameter, would with proper fencing and cultivation, [illegible] the thing. Again I believe that the price of milk 12 to 15 cents per quart this would be a fine country for a dairy farm. Can't raise grass here? Bet your life! In town, at least I have seen the most beautiful grass lawns. Suppose a live, energetic man with a herd of 50 or more fine cows would come here, buy a farm of 160 acres or more, build a barn 40x100x16, buy enough his clover hay in bales from the north during haying season, and he could buy it at about $20 per ton, fill his barn with it and some other food sufficient for the year, and while he is making a fine profit on his cows, he is improving and enhancing the value of his farm.

While here I met Mr. Kirby Foster, wife and daughter, who are nicely located in Springfield, which is a part of Jacksonville and very beautiful. I had not met Kirby since he was quite a small boy. He holds a good position here, and like me, is very much in love with the city. Notwithstanding property and rents are very high here, anyone can live as cheaply here as in Kentucky or Ohio. Clothing, fruits and groceries here are about the same as in Cincinnati. Well, I have taken too much of your space, and with best wishes to you and my old Ky. friends in general, will close with one request—that you send my paper to my address here until further notice. Your old friend,

J. W. HOWE.

There is some little flurry over the matter to be P. The recipient was almost overcome with emotion as the gift was a genuine surprise.

James McGinnis, the clever and popular section foreman on the Q. & C. Railroad at Bracht Station, died Monday morning suddenly. He lost his daughter Miss Celia a couple of weeks ago by death, and his devotion and affection was so great for the young girl who was only sixteen, that he died from grief over the loss of his beloved daughter. Mr. McGinnis was 58 years old and a native of this county and leaves a widow and a daughter and many friends to mourn his death. He was a genial, clever man and was one of the best section foremen on the road. The funeral took place Wednesday at the cathedral in Covington, and the remains were laid to rest in St. Mary's cemetery.

Last Thursday, W. F. Buckner, a fireman on one of the freight engines on the L. & N. Railroad, narrowly escaped being killed, and was seriously injured. Mr. Buckner was cleaning out the ash pan of his engine with a long handled shovel as the local morning train came into the station at Walton from Louisville, and not noticing or hearing the approaching train, the noise of the steam escaping from his own engine drowning any other noise, he had the long handle shovel extended in the way of the approaching engine which struck it with great force, causing Mr. Buckner to be thrown with great violence against his engine, his head striking the wheels and springs, knocking him unconscious. He was quickly carried to the office of Dr. B. K. Menefee, who gave him such attention as he could to relieve his suffering. Blood was flowing from the injured man's head, and the extent of his injuries could not be determined. The fast train was stopped and took the unfortunate man to Covington where he was taken to St. Mary's Hospital. Mr. Buckner is about 28 years old and resides at Bonnieville, Hart county.

Quite a peculiar and amusing mistake occurred recently involving some property rights that if it had not been in the hands of reasonable, fair people there would have been an adjudication in the courts. Thos. W. Marshall purchased a lot from J. J. Hudson in the new subdivision to the town of Walton, and being of the progressive and enterprising type Mr. Marshall proceeded to erect a neat little cottage residence thereon. As an additional evidence of thrift and public spirit he also beautified the property by setting out shrubbery and shade trees. When all of these improvements had been completed various citizens sauntered up that way admiring the improvements made, and among the number was his honor the Mayor H. C. Diers. He was considerably astonished to find that the house and all of the improvements had been placed on a lot owned by him which Mr. Marshall had mistaken for the one he had purchased, but his astonishment was nothing to that of Mr. Marshall who had invested about all of his savings in his new home. Mr. Diers very generously agreed to exchange lots with Mr. Marshall which Mr. Marshall gratefully agreed to accept, but afterwards desiring to retain that lot also, it being adjacent to the other, Mr. Diers sold him the lot for $60.

Marriage Problem Solved.

St. Louis has a woman who solved the marriage question for her sons by training up several servant girls in the home so that after five years they were fitted to be wives; then she married the girls to the boys, and they have lived happily ever after.

This method is wiser than any so far advocated by marriage reformers and supporters of eugenics, for it avoids the objectionable requirement of a physical and a financial investigation of the conditions of the candidates for matrimony before a license is granted. Moreover it solves more problems than one. Its general adoption would assure the continuance of the home, for it could not be carried out in a flat. In addition it removes most of the perplexing factors from the servant girl problem, puts an end to discriminate flirting, encourages housekeeping among girls and saves youth from the dangers of going to summer resorts in search of a wife. Here are many evils avoided by a single process. The plan, therefore, may be looked upon as an ideal one, provided legislators can be made to keep their hands off it and not try to enact it into a law.

While the new State primary law is supposed to open the door of opportunity to the "poor man" by doing away with the old-time entrance fee of candidates who wanted to run for office, it is being said by many aspirants to office that it will really cost more to run now than ever before. For instance in Louisville and Jefferson county a candidate who desires to enter the August primary is required to present a petition with at least 500 signatures, and it is argued that this alone will cost each candidate between $500 and $1,000. Many of them also are of the opinion that it is going to be no easy task to get signatures to their nominating petitions.—Louisville Times.

There is always something to kick about. A Lexington woman complained because she found a snail in the jug of buttermilk obtained from the milk dealer, and a Louisville woman was still more indignant when she came across a dead mouse in the can of beer she bought at the corner grocery. If consumers were a little more lenient dealers would get along better.—Georgetown Times.

The State Board of Valuation and Assessment finally fixed the value of whisky for taxation at $12 per barrel, the valuation applying to all whisky in warehouses as of September 1, 1912. This is an increase of 2$ per barrel over last year and the year before.

Mrs. Mary F. Allen died at the residence of her daughter in Union, Thursday, Feb. 13, 1913, after an illness of several weeks. She was the daughter of the late C. H. and Angeline Putnam Wilson and the widow of C. M. Allen, who died eight years ago. Three daughters and a son and three sisters are left to mourn the absence of this departed one. Her character was peculiarly sweet and cheerful and wherever she went she attracted making friends out of mere acquaintances and a very large circle of warm friends mingle their tears with those of her family who weep for her bright presence. She had been a member of Big Bone Baptist church for forty-one years, and Rev. Wm McMillan preached her funeral sermon there from the text, "She hath done what she could." The text and his beautiful and consoling remarks were aptly suitable to the life of Mrs. Allen, which had almost run the limit of three score and ten, she having been born August 25, 1843. Miss Nellie Rouse and Mr. J. G. Renaker spent last Thursday evening very pleasantly with Miss Anna Miller.

It is hard to tell what they are scrapping about down in Mexico. The principal cause of the trouble seems to be a desire on the part of numerous Mexicans to rule the country in the capacity of President, and the would-be Presidents are bobbing up every day. The army that fights under the command of a general today may be divided and fighting tomorrow under a new commander, who, during the night, has concluded that he ought to be made President. The country appears to be in a state of anarchy, and the best thing for the Americans and citizens of other foreign countries to do is to get back home as soon as possible, and not involve their countries in trouble in an endeavor to protect them and their property. Other nations should refuse to intervene and let the Mexicans wipe themselves out and the sooner the better.

Auto Truck Stalled On Middle Creek Boulevard.

Theo. Heck & Co's. furniture truck went down to Carl Cason's Tuesday with a load of furniture, and just before reaching the house the truck stuck in the mud, the hind axle going down to the ground. Middle creek roads were not constructed with a view to the operation of autos thereon.

J. W. Sebree, who has been residing on the Bohannon farm in Petersburg precinct, moved last Monday, to the farm he purchased recently of John Bachelor in Locust Grove neighborhood.

Personal Mention.

Gerome Respass and wife, of Woodlawn, Ohio, were guests of Sheriff Hume and wife, last Sunday.

Curtis Johnson, of Big Bone, was the guest of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Sam Johnson, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Sam Johnson, who has been visiting relatives in the Big Bone neighborhood for several weeks, has returned home.

Prof. Homer Dix, principal of the Union Graded School, was the guest of his mother and brothers at this place the latter part of last week.

Miss Sharmer Jackson, who has been living with Atty. S. Gaines and wife, and attending High School, left Monday for her home at Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

Jas. A. Duncan, ex-Circuit Clerk, was among the visitors to Burlington, Tuesday. His friends here, and that is everybody, were glad to have him among them.

Miss Mary A. Thompson, after a pleasant visit of several weeks with friends at Norwood, Ohio, returned to her home in Burlington, the latter part of last week.

Mrs. H. W. Shearer and sister, Miss Besse Hall, of Newport, spent from Saturday until Tuesday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A Hall. Mr. Shearer came out Monday and accompanied them home.

Among the delegates appointed by Gov. McCreary to attend the Conference for Education in the South, to be held at Richmond, Va., April 16, 17 and 18, are Edgar C. Riley, Burlington, and W. H Clayton, Hebron.

Scott Chambers and wife, of Walton, passed thru Burlington, Sunday, enroute home from Petersburg, where they had been visiting their relatives. His machine was on the limp when they reached Burlington, and he called on N. E. Riddell, who furnished him the necessary repairs and he completed his trip home without further trouble.

Was a Native of Boone County.

Last Sunday's Enquirer contained an account of the finding of the body of Miss Nettie Soards in a California canon a few days before. She had been robbed, and it is a question with the authorities as to whether she was robbed and thrown over the precipice or whether the robber found the dead body in the canon. The authorities were notified as to the whereabouts of the body by an anonymous post card. Miss Soards was a citizen of Cincinnati at the time of her death, and many years ago her father, W. H. Soards, was a citizen of the Hebron neighborhood this county. The remains of Miss Soards were returned to Cincinnati for interment.

Let The Women Do the Work.

There is at least one public institution in Kentucky that is conducted on an economical plan. It is the Home for Incurables at Louisville and is under the management of the Kentucky Branch of the King's Daughters and Sons. State Inspector Goodpaster, who has recently investigated the management of the institution finds that the State's $10,000 annual gift should be reduced to $5,000. If several of the other institutions which draw money from the State treasury could be conducted as strictly on business principles as the one above referred to, the State would not be annoyed with interest bearing warrants very long. The institution is under the control and management of women, one of whom is Mrs. Josie Piatt, a native of this county. It might be well to let the women try their hand at the management of some of the expensive public institutions in Kentucky. They certainly would not make matters any worse.

DEERS TO BE FREED IN KENTUCKY MOUNTAINS.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 14.—A big game preserve in the Kentucky Mountains will be established this year. The Game and Fish Commission has brought twenty white tail deer, the breed native to Kentucky hills, and will set them free in Jackson, Leslie and Wayne counties as soon as the roads are in condition to permit travel by wagon back from the railroads. Executive Agent J. Q. Ward said it is probable that the deer will be branded, as there is no law now to protect deer in Kentucky, excepting one preventing the killing of "marked deer." He thought the brand will protect the new herd until legislation can be secured. It will be necessary to prohibit deer hunting until the mountains are well stocked. There are fifteen does and five bucks in the herd, which are to be shipped from the Lake Superior preserves.

Bert Smith, carrier on rural route No. 2, started out over his route Tuesday morning with a new watch in his pocket, but when he got home and reached for the watch to see in what time he had made his trip it was not to be found, he having lost it somewhere on his route.

Keep Up The Good Work.

Some of the town dogs got mutton hungry last Friday and invaded L. P. Clore's sheep pasture near town to satisfy their appetities. Their presence was discovered by Mr. Clore before they had killed any sheep and now there are several less dogs about the town.

Graduated With Honors.

Miss Georgia Carroll, of Big Bone, granddaughter or Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Miller, graduated at the Louisville High School, last week. She was a pupil of Mr. Wiliam Gaines when he taught school at Big Bone Springs many years ago. Miss Georgia graduated with honors.

Only A Few Left.

While there are a considerable number of children in Burlington as well as several grown persons who have not had measles, the disease seems to be subsiding. It is a disease that every one ought to have while young, as it is very inconvenient to be housed up by it after reaching your majority.

Will Have A Gold Mine.

The way the price of gasoline is advancing the automobile will become an expensive vehicle in a few months more. An effort is being made to bring out a much cheaper fuel than gasoline and which will be equally as good as gasoline for use in motors. The fellow who succeeds in producing a cheaper fuel for motor use will have a financial bonanza.

Andrew Acra Dead.

Andrew B. Acra, of Middle creek, who had been sick for several months, died last Sunday night. He was a single man and leaves several brothers to mourn his death. He was about fifty-five years of age and was an ideal citizen whom to know was to like. He was long a patient sufferer and was willing to go when his time came.

Makes Work A Pleasure.

Henry Lewis Tanner, of Erlanger, was in Burlington, Monday. Mr. Tanner always brings good cheer to the Recorder, and last Monday was no exception. Besides paying for old subscribers Mr. Tanner added a new one to the list and then advertised a big sale of personal property for March the 1st, which requires a set of bills also. Mr. Tanner is the kind of a friend that makes work in a printing office a pleasure. His sale is advertised in another column.

A Large Crowd Expected.

If the weather is favorable on the 26th inst., the sale at J. E. Ransom's, near Verona, will be attended by a record breaking crowd. Mr. Ransom has the property to draw buyers from far and near and they will be there. His livestock is the result of many years careful and successful farming, breeding of good cattle, hogs, horses and sheep having received his personal and especial attention, and had his health not failed him he would not be selling out. Read the advertisement in this paper.

The Jury Hung Again.

Atty. S. W. Tolin went to Williamstown, last Friday, to sit as especial Judge in the trial of one Martin, indicted for false swearing. A special Judge being necessary to try the case, the attorneys engaged on either side agreed on Atty. Tolin and he complied with their desires. The jury failed to agree upon a verdict and was discharged. Judge Tolin arriving at home Tuesday evening. In this prosecution there has been one conviction and two hung juries. The verdict finding the defendant guilty was set aside and a new trial granted.

Large Crowd at Sale.

The sale of the personal estate of the late Herman Gebbing last Wednesday was well attended and good prices prevailed. The crowd was served with a good lunch which made everybody feel comfortable notwithstanding the very bad weather that prevailed. N. W. Burkitt, of Union, was the auctioneer and was at his best and disposed of the property rapidly, making it bring all it was worth. Several of the candidates for county offices were in attendance and were hustling for votes, giving the crowd a thorough canvassing, and each one was well satisfied with the strength he found he had in the crowd.

Subterranium Explorers.

The Putorius Foetidus Club held nightly meetings last week and discussed the habits of that animal from every angle. There were various opinions as to its usefulness to man, but all agreed that there is big pay in exploring the dens at this time of the year when they are inhabited by from three to ten of the odoriferous creatures. The club at one of its meetings appointed a committee to ascertain if it is possible to secure a fume proof regalia to wear by a member when exploring subterranium abode of the Putorious. The club has a large membership of workers who can make the dirt fly when they start in to exhume the much sought animal.

BYE-GONE DAYS

Around The Country Store In Old Kentucky, Many Amusing Things Occurred.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

The writer has just recovered from a hearty laugh over some occurrences of by-gone days that happened down in Old Kentucky where he used to keep store.

Things have changed wonderfully down there. Father Time has been busy with his scythe and many have fallen in front of his sure and relentless blade. They were all good and I loved them—the rich ones, and the poor ones, the old ones and the young ones, the weak and the strong—they were all alike to me, black and white.

My experiences were many, some sad, but very few that memory doesn't hold dear, very few that I cannot recall with delight. The old croquet ground, the watermelons in summer, the fish fries—the latter being a name we gave to many varieties of entertainment, almost anything that we enjoyed in a high degree was a fish fry. Billy Stephens, Thos. Willis, Fil Wingate, James Gaines and many others were active members of the club, and were jolly good fellows.

A great many amusing things occurred in that old store where I was secretary and treasurer, salesman, purchasing agent, bookkeeper, barber, shoemaker, horse doctor, screen door hanger and most anything else that a handy man could be.

I recall one summer afternoon we were all indoors, we stayed in because there was no shade anywhere else, and the old place was hot. Gov. Stith was a frequenter of the store—a genial soul he was. I liked him. A man over size, and willing to hustle to get along but just simply one of those big, over grown men who could hardly make an honest living. Governor had a fondness for chewing tobacco and the very best at that. I kept a brand called Hudson's Pride, and he loved it so well he would almost eat it. One day I saw Gov. as we called him, sitting near the tobacco and knew he wanted it. I took a nice piece and opened it up a little and filled the opening with cayenne pepper, then went into the front room. In a few minutes I returned and saw him frothing at the mouth, his eyes streaming with tears, he said, "why Governor you have hydrophobia; you have every symptom." Gov. said, "no it ain't hydrophobia, but the next thing to it."

We had a lot of fun in that old store. If it hadn't been for the humor of a few of us, time would have dragged wonderfully. As it was nobody was ever lonesome. They were long days then, but we didn't feel it.

I remember when the store was being painted. The painter had a large keg of paint mixed and ready to put on. It was a hot day. One of Jim Brown's hogs, an old sow, came along and, hog like, rubbed herself on the keg. Over it went and she lay down in the wet paint and rolled over and over in it. Maybe she wasn't a sight for a long time.

While I was there the black tongue was very prevalent among the dogs. Almost every dog in easy reach of the place fell a victim to this dread disease. I recall how Mr. Whitaker's white setter, Tom Hine's white bull dog, Mr. Winston's shepherd and many other died of it. The writer was always a deep sympathizer and willing to assist in curing the poor animals, but was never successful. The fact was and still is that black tongue in dogs, the real, genuine black tongue, can't be cured.

Some day I want to go back there and visit the old scene. I would be glad if I could meet old Nels, and Phil, and Rube Rucker and John Rob and Anderson and Dave Moyer and Mr. Whitaker and Mr. Winston and Fred and Henry Pfalzgraf and Louie Messmer, and a hundred others; but, alas! nearly all of them have gone back, their bodies to mother earth, their souls to God. Peaceful rest.

F. P. WALTON.

Farmers tell us they never saw wheat looking better at this time of the year, and so far the prospects are for a good crop this summer. During the recent cold and freezes it was protected by a mantle of snow, which prevented any injury being done it. Tobacco growers are beginning to interest themselves in the preparation of plant beds. Many beds were burned last fall, some raisers being of the opinion that the fall of the year is the best time to prepare plant beds, while others contend that the spring season is the best. So it is, there is great difference of opinion among the best of farmers even. All are agreed, however, that hard, intelligent work, and keeping everlastingly at it, is the best way to attain success on the farm with any crop. —Blue Grass Clipper.

There is no better medicine made for colds than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It acts on nature's plan, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions, aids expector ation; and restores the system to a healthy condition. For sale by E. E. Kelly and Son and E. E. Kelly.

A novel charivari took place in Carrollton Monday. A number of business men headed by Harry Ketchum, F. M. Golden and Geo. Shirley, proceeded to the German-American bank and gave Forest Butcher an old fashioned serenade that made Carrollton howl. —Carrollton Democrat.

BORN IN BOONE COUNTY

Erastus Huey Passes Away At His Home in Plymouth, Ill., Aged Eighty-Three.

Erastus Huey was born in Boone county, Ky., November 25, 1830, and entered into rest at the home of his son, Walter in Plymouth, Illinois, Feb. 1, 1913.

At the age of seven years he came, with his parents, to Illinois, locating near Rushville, where they visited for a short time. The family then came to St. Mary's, Hancock county, and located on the farm since known as the Huey homestead. For almost seventy-five years Mr. Huey has been a resident of St. Mary's Township. John Huey, his father, died Nov. 6, 1874, and the mother, Matilda Huey, March 29, 1872. Erastus Huey was married to Susan Dale, Feb. 1, 1858. Mrs. Huey passed away June 10th, 1891.

To Mr. and Mrs. Huey were born seven children, Mrs. Ida Jeffries, Edward, Mrs. Fanny Cannon, and Walter, of Plymouth, Ill.; Mrs. Olivia Scott, of Denver, Ill.; one son, who died in infancy, and Robert, whose death occurred July 12, 1900. Mr. Huey was happy and blessed in his family, for no people stand higher in the public regard than do his descendants. He leaves also thirteen grandchildren and 1 great-grandchild.

Five brothers and two sisters are also left to mourn the loss of this dear friend, viz: Dr. Perry Huey, Geo. Huey and Mrs. Fanny Turner, of Plymouth, Ill.; Jas. Huey, of Beardstown, Ill.; Robt. Huey, of Hastings, Neb.; Fred Huey, of Arlington, Kansas and Mrs. Agnes Garnett, of Carthage, Illinois.

Mr. Huey was a man of more than the average intelligence, an honest man in every detail of life, a gentle, courteous christian gentleman. He left to each child financially enough for a good start in life, but what is far better, the memory of a father, a man who stood beyond reproach in the community where he had lived so long.

As a husband, father, citizen and friend, he has set an example worthy the highest emulation. For over sixty-five years he was a faithful member of St. Mary's Baptist church, and at the time of his death was the oldest member. In the quiet cemetery connected with that church, after a fitting funeral service, conducted by Rev. Mr. Foley and Rev. Mr. Sympson, his dear form was laid to rest under the beautiful snow, a fitting emblem of his life, to await the resurrection morn.

Good servant, great heart, gentle friend, farewell. We, the pilgrims of the night, still lodging in tents hail thy secure abode where all shadows are swallowed up of day." Thanks be to God for every good fight ended, for every victory won through pain, for the Captain of our Salvation, guiding by angel hands to where, beyond these voices, there is peace. A. B. T.

Frankfort, Feb. 12.—Commissioner of Agriculture J. W. Newman said today that already fifty-three ears of corn raised by Lester Bryant, of Warren county, the corn club champion, who died from asphyxiation while on a trip to Washington, has been sold at $1 apiece. The plan is to sell his corn at this price and use the money for erecting a suitable monument to his memory. He raised 147 bushels on an acre and won the sweepstakes for the whole United States, the prize given for raising the most corn for the least expenditure.

Danville, Feb. 12.—Sheriff B. G. Fox made his final settlement with the Fiscal Court yesterday afternoon. The records show that there are more than 400 dogs in Boyle county upon which taxes have not been paid. The dogs were assessed, but the owners have failed to pay up. The dogs will be killed as required by law.

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

In an editorial printed in the Louisville Courier-Journal Mr. Henry Watterson declares that Mr. Bryan is "most infirm" in judgment. But how does Mr. Henry Watterson know that such judgment is "most infirm." In parlance familiar in olden days, in the Courier-Journal office, it was always safe to "copper" every Watterson bet. If infirmity in judgment were a capital offense, Mr. Henry Watterson would long ago have been hanged as high as Haman on a political gibbet—and the world would have been poorer and Heaven richer to that extent.

How One County Is Solving the Sub-district Trustee Problem

The weak or the strong point in each and every rural school in our state is the subdistrict trustee. If a strong, thoroughly interested man is elected everything is well, but if a careless, indifferent man holds the office the school is in bad shape. A good trustee means a clean, comfortable building, a competent teacher and some interest on the part of the general public. A poor trustee means a badly kept building, a second or third rate teacher and a lack of interest by the neighborhood.

COUNTY BOARD CONTRACT.

We, the County Board of Education, of Nicholas County, Kentucky, agree to examine carefully the monthly reports sent in by the Sub- District Trustee of each District, and to assist them in any way possible to put their schools on a higher basis. We also agree to pay each Sub-District Trustee 25 cents an hour, not to exceed three hours, for their official visit once a month, for a term of six months unless the term is extended longer. The County Board shall for neglect of duty, unless the Sub-District Trustee was legally prosecuted, declare the office vacant and appoint another.

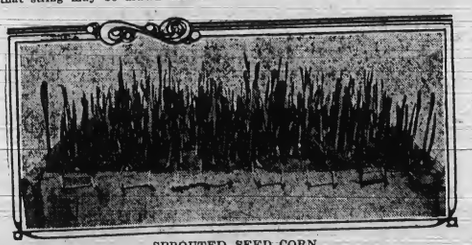
WHY NOT GET BUSY WITH THEM EVERYWHERE IN THE STATE?



The Boys' Corn Club Boys Are Getting Busy Testing Their Seed Corn

It does seem odd that more farmers and their sons have not done seed testing in the years that have passed and saved themselves any amount of worry and bother and loss of time and money. Last season a number of the boys in the clubs used shelled seed corn that was bought or furnished them and learned to their sorrow that it was poor seed. Their stand of corn was miserable, and at the very outset of the contest their chances for a prize was gone.

Many of the boys in the boys' corn clubs have learned their lesson and are busy these winter days. Some of them are prize winners of other seasons; others are the fellows that have shut their teeth hard and are going to try again. Both kinds are going to test their corn so that there will be no chance of a stand that will have to be replanted.

The boys are using old boxes that can be cut down to the required size or they are making boxes from any old lumber that is lying about the farm to use for their testing boxes. Nothing fine or especially good looking is necessary. Just a shallow box about 10 by 15 inches is all that is needed to test from 100 to 150 ears of corn. These boxes can be made and the corn tested now, while there is no danger of its getting in the way of any of the spring rush work.

The nails which are driven into the edge of the box are an inch apart, so that string may be drawn across from both directions. Each square inch outlined by the strings is enough space in which to plant six grains of corn, and that is enough to determine whether an ear of corn will do for seed or not.

In selecting the grains from each ear of corn that is to be tested remember that a grain should be taken from each of the different parts of the ear. This of course means running from butt to tip and around the entire circumference. As the six grains selected from the ear are placed in the moist earth or sand, mark the square and the car with the same number so you will know which ears to keep and which to discard.

When your testing box looks as far advanced as the one in the photo it will be an easy matter for you to decide which ears to keep for seed. If six strong, healthy plants come from the six grains planted you have a perfect ear of seed corn. If four have come it is questionable. Less than four means only half a stand at planting time, and the ear must be discarded.

The boys who are members of the boys' corn clubs of Kentucky have made their fathers and their big brothers who thought they knew everything about corn growing sit up and take notice. There is still a chance to teach them the value of the corn tester, so let each and every corn club boy test his seed corn this spring. IF THE BOYS WHO GREW ONE HUNDRED BUSHELS TO THE ACRE THINK IT PAYS TO TEST THEIR SEED CORN, HOW ABOUT YOU?

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondent:

Washington.—Three million dollars is to be the saving to the people of the country as the result of the fact that Congressman Ben Johnson of Kentucky is Chairman of the House Committee on the District of Columbia. He discovered that the people in the States are paying one-half of the taxes for those who reside in the District of Columbia until he began to make a fight in Congress they did not know it. Even some of the members of Congress did not know it.

The practice of the Government standing one-half of the taxes for residents of the District of Columbia is an old one. It has been going on for years. Custom is a hard thing to break down. But there is really no more reason why the people of the states should bear half of the expense of maintaining the District of Columbia than there is why they should pay half of the taxes of the government to stand one-half of the taxes makes Washington a fine place for tax dodging millionaires to build their palaces. It might only be expected that when Mr. Johnson began his fight pressure would be brought to bear on him to force him to abandon it. It was. The great newspapers of Washington flayed him and ridiculed him; the Senate set itself up against him, he was opposed on the floor of the House and he had to fight, and fight hard, for every inch of headway he made.

But Mr. Johnson took the attitude that he was sent to Congress to serve the best interests of all the people and not for the purpose of perpetuating soft snaps for the wealthy of the District of Columbia. Mr. Johnson, after a hard fight, succeeded in striking more than three millions of dollars out of the last appropriation bill for the District of Columbia.

"The people back in the States are taxed to carry on their local city, county and State governments, and, in addition, are taxed to pay one-half of all the municipal expenses of the City of Washington," declared Mr. Johnson. "Congress quarrels and fights within itself over the question as to whether one or two battleships shall be built, and without batting an eye or asking a question votes the price of a dreadnaught to Washington each Congress. Widows of the old soldiers are compelled to fight and scramble for an eight dollar or a twelve dollar a month pension, but the widow of a Washington policeman is paid a pension of fifty dollars a month and no questions asked, while the eight dollar pensioned widow back in the States is taxed to help pay it. The same may be said of the old soldier himself.

"The county school teacher bears her part of a tax burden in order to pay the school teacher $1,500 for teaching 280 hours in the schools of Washington. The school child back in the states bears his proportion of tax at home for school books, and then pays a tax to buy school books for the child of the millionaire who lives in Washington. The farmer on the rural route in the States must carry a lantern on his road or travel in the dark while he pays his proportion of the cost to put electric lights on the rural routes which lead out of the city of Washington to the limits of the seventy-square miles which constitutes the District of Columbia.

"The school child back in the states is given desk room in its school at a cost of a dollar or two, while that child bears its proportion of tax which is imposed upon the American people to give desk room costing twelve hundred and ten dollars for each child which has entered the school age during the last five years in the city of Washington."

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Cull the ewe flock.

Be careful in milking.

Sheep need care and feed.

Good fences are important.

Lime may be applied to the soil at any time.

The best seed corn is that grown on one's own farm.

Potatoes are as cheap this year as they will ever be again.

The dairy cow should essentially be a large and rich milker.

A coat of whitewash in the poultry house adds both beauty and profit.

Hogs running in the corn field are healthier than those shut in a pen.

To have horses of endurance give the colts a chance to develop their muscles.

Don't waste your time cutting corn for fodder after one good frost strikes it.

The only way to make sheep pay is to keep the best sheep and give them the best care.

Change of pasture makes fat cattle, they say. Variety in feed also makes cows better milkers.

The value of a hog depends upon his ability to make good pork. This is equally true of all breeds.

Are you keeping the boys and girls properly supplied with good "tools" to do their work in the schoolroom?

Your lambs ought to be big enough now to bring a good price. Let them go and give the rest a better crance.

The hay stock without a good top is just about on a par with the corn shock that has nearly twisted down.

Feeding the drop apples to the stock will save much grain and act as a good appetizer for the animals.

Because a cow is a hearty eater is no sign that she is profitable, but all large and profitable cows are hearty eaters.

Millet should be cut before the seeds are ripe, in fact, after it is well headed out it is a candidate for the mower.

Don't leave the sheep in a dry, short pasture. Give them a chance in a fresh pasture or give a good grain ration.

Corn is ready to be cut for silage when the grain is in the dent and glazed but can still be broken with the thumb nail.

If you produce your own seed grain it is important to select it early out of the best part of the crop and take good care of it.

The fatality among pigs during the abnormally heated spell was in many cases increased, if not wholly caused, by putrid swill barrels.

Lung troubles in swine are frequently the result of dust and filth snuffed through the nostrils while feeding on the ground.

Pigs that have been properly grown up to five months with big strong frames, can be rounded up quickly for market with a ration consisting largely of corn.

If more sheep were kept by farmers right along, instead of having them when feed stuffs are high in price and sheep vice versa, more money could be realized.

Keep your eye open for a better ram than you have been using. No use tramping the same ground over year after year. Get a little farther along the road to better things.

There is no better balancer for stock wintered on corn fodder than cowpeas. They furnish just the elements that are lacking in all feeds like corn, cane or kafir fodder and timothy hay.

Churning troubles appear as soon as cold weather sets in. But not all the churning troubles are due to cold weather; the cow that has been giving milk for a long time is apt to furnish cream that is slow to "come."

Feed is plenty this fall and cheaper than it has been for some time. This does not mean that it will stay cheap all winter for should it be a hard winter the feed would lessen fast. The time to buy feed, if any is needed, is [illegible]

Fly time has passed.

Clean the poultry yard.

Pigs must have sunshine.

Burn the old nesting material.

In producing wool and mutton there is no waste.

A foul dairy makes no producer of prize-winning butter.

Livestock is the basis of most farmers' success in farming.

Sharpen and repair the garden tools for next season's use.

Feed is cheaper and more plentiful than it has been for years.

A cork soaked in oil makes a good substitute for a glass stopper.

All fruit should be graded and crated, especially for private marketing.

So far as can be done select the largest, and best sows for breeders.

Corn will dry out better if the shocks are kept down to a reasonable size.

Deep plowing and the gas tractor are the Gold Dust Twins of the new agriculture.

Wrap the young fruit trees early, to prevent the rabbits from gnawing and killing them.

Many of the troubles with both young and old horses may be traced to bad teeth.

Hogs will be high next year and it will pay to give those fall pigs a good start towards winter.

The first cold rains are hard on the cows and they should be kept in the barn in such weather.

A good pasture makes a brimming milk pail; and silo makes possible good winter pasture.

A little clover or alfalfa mixed with the silage when filling the silo will prove a profitable mixture.

Bran is worth more, pound for pound, as a part of a ration for a work horse than alfalfa meal.

The man who makes a business of cow keeping instead of a chore is on the right road to better profits.

In the development of horses, as well as elsewhere, judgment must be exercised as well as the muscles.

Just how long a breeding sire should be kept depends upon the excellence of the animal in question.

The way to increase the appetite of a horse, if such a thing is necessary, is to change his diet frequently.

'Twill soon be time to bind something around those small fruit trees, to stop rabbits from feasting on the bark.

Baling corn fodder is a new idea, but if it works out well it will save a good deal of hard and disagreeable work.

After all that may be said in favor of other pastures, clover stands at the head when it comes to right thing for pigs.

Mulching isn't to keep the strawberries from freezing, but to keep them from thawing after the ground is frozen.

Extremes and sudden changes in feeding, watering and salting will cause acute indigestion in sheep that is usually fatal.

Bear in mind that corn fodder, or fodder corn, must not be cut early for it means a loss of a large part of its feeding value.

Keep all the rotten fruit well cleaned up around the orchard, as these constitute the winter quarters of numerous orchard pests.

Look over the young stock carefully before disposing of it. A prize heifer or an exceptional colt may slip away and the credit and benefit go to some other man.

In the rush and hurry to keep up with the fall work we must not forget to provide plenty of bedding for all stock and see that it is dry. Wet bedding is a disease producer.

Every sheep that has lost one single tooth through old age is a candidate for the meat market. Don't stand in the way of her getting there; she may not weather another winter.

The most suitable time to apply lime in rotation is when preparing the land for wheat or hay following potatoes and corn, or as a top dressing on young clover and grass.

Potatoes that have taken a second growth are spoiled for table use and are greatly weakened for seed. The same holds good with beets; a second growth destroys the sugar content and makes them woody and tasteless.

A hog trough jammed full of crowding, squealing hogs means that some of them will get cheated out of their share of the slop, which is but another way of saying that you also are being cheated by such mismanagement.

A MESSAGE TO WOMEN

Who are "Just Ready to Drop."

When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired-out next morning as when you went to bed, then you need help right away.

Miss Lea Dumas writes from Malone, N. Y., saying: "I was in a badly run-down condition for several weeks, but two bottles of Vinol put me on my feet again and made me strong and well. Vinol has done me more good than all the other medicine I ever took."

If the careworn, haggard men and women, the pale, sickly children and feeble old folks around here would follow Miss Dumas' example, they, too, would soon be able to say that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, had built them up and made them strong.

It is a wonderfully strengthening and invigorating body-builder, and we sell it under an ironclad guarantee of satisfaction. You get your money back if Vinol does not help you.

LAW INVALID IN PART.

Such Is The Judgment of Leading Lawyers of the State—Test Suit to Be Filed.

(Louisville Post.)

Great interest has been aroused not only in Louisville but all over Kentucky in the validity of that section of the direct primary law in Kentucky which undertakes to provide that no man shall be nominated for public office at the primary unless he voted that party's ticket at the preceding election.

It has been explained that this section of the law, if legal, prevents all future efforts to take the Kentucky judiciary out of politics and prevents all independants from being nominated for office.

The Republican State Central Committee some weeks ago appointed Judge George DuRelle, Judge R. H. Winn, and Judge H. W. Batson as a committee to bring a suit for testing that section of the law, and such a suit will be filed in due time. In the mean time the question has been much discussed by the leading members of the Louisville bar and the opinion is general that the Court of Appeals will declare the section in question void. Should this be done no bar to political fusion would exist, although another law, which undertakes to say that no name nominated by petition can be put on the ballot under a special device if the same name has been put under one of the regular emblems, remains. This law is also believed by some attorneys to be void.

Rural Life and Modern Invention.

Electric light corporations in a number of the counties of Central Kentucky are securing franchises and making other necessary arrangements for supplying electric light and power to farmers.

Doubtless the farmers will avail themselves of the opportunity that will be presented. The residents of cities can no longer claim a monopoly of the "modern conveniences." Rural homes are being equipped with heating and water supply plants, with electric lights and with many other things which are popularly supposed to add to the comforts of living. The telephone has gone to the country and rural delivery has given the farmer a postoffice at his door. The automobile is helping to solve the problems of transportation. Good prices for farm products are enabling the farmer to supply himself with these adjuncts of better living and to improve his surroundings generally.

Good roads, interurban lines, rural delivery and modern inventions are taking away much of the isolation of rural life. The daily mail brings the daily paper. The telephone brings the news of the immediate neighborhood. The farmer is no longer forced to "send word" and to remain in suspense as to whether the "word" reaches the proper destination with reasonable promptness. To find a "lonely farmhouse" one must find it unoccupied or travel into a region where railroads have not penetrated and where good roads are unknown save by hearsay.

Distance is being annihilated and the world is growing smaller to the globe trotter. The rapid progress of an inventive age is constantly enlarging its territory and inevitably transforming conditions. Rural life is vastly different from what it used to be and the wonder is that so many people are discontented with it and are seeking the urban centers.—C.-J.

The United States Government has appropriated three million dollars to establish "back to the farm" stations in several of the large cities, to help the people from the city to the farm.

If the Page appropriation bill becomes a law, each State will receive ten million dollars for buildings in the larger towns. This is a great distribution of money that will benefit the laborer on public works, also the man who raises produce to feed them.

Raise a few good calves for beef, keep them at least two years, staff feed them. Any farmer can run from five to ten. They will bring big money, consume much roughness and furnish lots of manure for the fields and garden.

The Hog Industry.

Many farmers do not raise hogs. This is where they make a mistake. There is always a certain amount of waste upon the farm which the hogs will turn into profit. The reason some people do not make money out of the hog industry is because they do not know how to handle them. First the farm should be fenced into smaller fields, one for oats and grain, one for clover and one for rape all of which should be fed down. A few good cows and a bunch of steers to feed will help the hog industry as the corn fed to the cattle will do them good. At present prices for hogs and cattle they will pay better than tobacco and they will improve the soil if handled properly. Have a good hog house and good ponds of water. Keep good breeds and do not let them get hungry and market twice each year.—Owen Democrat.

This is the season of the year when mothers feel very much concerned over the frequent colds contracted by their children, and have abundant reason for it as every cold weakens the lungs, vitality and paves the way for the more serious diseases that so often follow. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures, and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by J. W. Berkshire and Sons and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Care of Lamps.

Do not leave the care of them until night, for this is dangerous. A lamp giving a good light and without odor can be had with absolute cleanliness to burner, wick and chimney. All in constant use should be filled each day, the wick trimmed and burner wiped off, as well as washing the chimney and shade. Never clean lamps on a table where food is prepared but have a special place for the work. Spread several newspapers over the table or shelf and upon these set the various parts. Some housekeepers think it better to wipe off the burned portions of the wick instead of cutting it. The main thing is to remove it evenly. Any piece of wick dropped on the burner will cause an odor when the lamp is lighted. About once a month remove the wick and boil the burner in hot soap suds or in a solution of washing soda. Wipe the inside of smoky chimneys with tissue paper before washing them. Care should be taken that they are thoroughly dry or they will break easily when heated. When first lighting a lamp keep the wick low to allow the chimney to heat gradually and never leave it immediately after lighting. Many a ceiling has been ruined by a smoky lamp.—Colman's Rural World.

N. L. Moore, of Hathaway, had the misfortune to lose $75 one day last week.

J. M. Stephens, of Grange Hall has been very much indisposed with rheumatism nearly all winter.

Jas. H. Aylor, of the lower Gunpowder neighborhood, has suffered considerably since last October from what at first was a small pimple on the side of his face, but which has since developed into a considerable sore.

The parcels post is growing and if good roads do not grow in proportion, somethin's gwine to drap. Surely the citizens of Boone county will not allow themselves to be deprived of so great a blessing as rural delivery when they are so bountifully blessed with the material with which to construct good roads.

Put the split drag on the mud roads.—If you are in doubt about who will pay you for your work try it once anyway and see if the personal benefit and convenience that you derive there from does not doubly pay you for your time and labor. There is nothing except stone or gravel that will do a mud road as much good as a drag. One dragging in a season will not keep the roads in condition, but if they are dragged every time there is enough travel to make depressions in which the water will accumulate there will never be anyone stuck in the mud. If a piece of road has to be dragged every day it will be but very little work required, as one man with a team and a properly constructed drag can drag one mile of road in two hours. Where is there a farmer at this season of the year who has not two hours of leisure every day?

There was an exodus of candidates from this part of the county, last Tuesday afternoon, to attend the big Ransom sale near Verona yesterday.

Who Is to Blame?

It looks very much like somebody is trying to put the Recorder out of business so far as its mail that is carried by the Q. & C. Railroad is concerned. For the last two months the packages of the Recorder made up for the offices supplied by that road have been delayed in delivery in the most exasperating manner. The trouble has been referred to the Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service at Cincinnati, twice, but if he has given the matter any attenion the fact is not known at this office, consequently the Recorder is at the mercy of incompetent mail clerks or someone who is intentionally trying to do it an injury. The Richwood, Walton, Big Bone, Beaver, Hamilton, Landing, Crittenden, Dry Ridge, Williamstown and Georgetown packages ought to leave Erlanger Thursday morning, going south, and why they do not can not be ascertained at this office.

Will Have to Be Done Over.

A young gentleman in the Bullittsville neighborhood, who has been accused of being on the brink of matrimony for several days, passed through Bullittsville, one evening last week with the front curtain of his buggy up while a suspicious looking suit case projected from the rear of the vehicle. His friends, who saw him, at once concluded that he was trying to put something over on them, and that night they organized an old fashioned charivari party, armed with all the instruments of noise it was possible to secure, and proceeded to his home where they turned loose their noise making machines to their fullest capacity. The young man soon appeared on the scene, and with all the eloquence at his command, he could not convince them that their performance was decidedly premature, and it was only after a close search of every department of the residence that satisfied the parties that they were too hasty with their celebration, and retired, saying that when the important event eventuated what they would do to the young man would be a plenty.

A Sweeping Confession.

Winchester, Feb. 19.—In the confessions of Govan, Elisha and Dock Smith, three brothers, laying bare the full details of the conspiracy to murder Ed Callahan, it is generally believed here that men "higher up" have been incriminated. The State's attorney's, although admitting that the confessions implicate several not included in the fifteen indicted, refuse to give out the names until an investigation has been made by the Breathitt Co. grand jury, now in session. Names of men prominent in Breathitt Co. and the State are being whispered over the city, today.

A tendency to confess seems to run in the Smith family. The three Smiths who confessed here are brothers of John Smith, who several years ago made the historic confession that Judge Hargis and Ed Callahan had hired him and others to assassinate J. B. Marcum and Dr. Cox. John Smith later married Callahan's first wife and is now living with her a few miles from Crocketts-ville, the home of the Callahans.

The motive for Callahan's assassination, according to the confessions, was revenge for the murders of John Davidson and Levi Johnson, relatives of the Deatons, for which Callahan was believed to be responsible, and further that the ex-sheriff would not be able to influence the verdict of the Gross boys, charged with the killing of Johnson and Davidson.

A Sensational Experience.

Hopkinsville, Feby. 19.—A special from Pine Knott, McCreary co, tell of the sensational experience of Nannie Lovett, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. L. A. Lovett, a well known farmer. She and two other little girls were playing in the barn at the Lovitt home, where there was a pet calf. During the play Nannie Lovitt's hands were tied by her two companions and the rope was then fastened to the calf's tail. This caused the young bovine to rear and jump in great fright. The little girls opened the stable door to call for help, and the calf jumped out, dragging the child several times over the adjacent lot. The child's flesh was terribly lacerated by coming in contact with rocks and other obstacles in the barn lot, but she was not seriously hurt.

Mrs. Grover Snyder is the guest of her father, R. S. Cowen and wife. She and her husband will locate in Butler, Pendleton county, where he will have charge of a large milk condensing concern which the company he has been working for will put in at that place.

Try a few more cows upon the farm. Do not ship the calves for veal. Build a few more stalls, and get a few more shoats. Build a hog lot and sow an acre of rape to graze, and watch your farm and bank account improve.

For Sale—Nice lot of maple saplings. Apply to Mrs. Belle Dickey, Richwood, Ky.

WORTH OF SHORTHORNS.

Farmers of Kentucky Should Produce More Prime Beef and Get Top Prices.

Hon. Abram Renick, writing in the Live Stock Record, as editor of the Shorthorn department, has the following: This is a question that is full of interest to every progressive farmer in America. Under present conditions the overhead expenses of operating a farm, the scarcity and high price of farm or unskilled labor make it necessary that our farms yield a greater gross income. To accomplish this result it is necessary to both practice economy and introduce better methods in farming. The average man who lives on and operates a farm should not be designated as a farmer, but rather as a land pirate or soil miner; as a land pirate he is transitory, he is there for the purpose of getting what he can from the soil without regard to the future and the natural consequences of his acts. When the farms fails to yield a revenue he sells and moves to another. The miner plows and tills the crops that he can sell to the greatest advantage off the farm, never thinking or caring for the future or the advantages of rotating, the growing of clover and turning the crop back to the hungry soil or the feeding of all crops back on the farm which produced them. The only way to do this is to breed and feed live stock. Statistical information does not make the impression usually that it should and we often fail to appreciate the full meaning and importance of a few figures when they are merely to express a per cent of increase or decrease of a certain product. This I believe is true regarding the statistics that are now being so freely used in expressing the great shortage in beef cattle. When you say that our population has increased 26 per cent in the last ten years and that we only have four-fifths as many cattle as we had ten years ago, or a loss of 20 per cent, the real significance of these figures is not appreciated. With an estimated immigration of 1,400,000 people to our shores in 1912, and estimating our natural increase 600,000 more, what provisions are the farmers making to feed this additional 2,000,000 people?

Canada, with a very short grazing season, extreme winters and the lack of corn, can not furnish us or interfere with our home market. Mexico, practically a barren waste from a revolution that has destroyed her cattle industry and is still in progress, is not holding out any hope for relief. Argentina can find a more profitable market for her surplus meat in European markets, and if this nation is to have more beef it must be bred and matured in the great corn belt states. It is the concensus of opinion of those who are in a position to judge that in no time within the next five years will a well bred and properly fed steer at 20 months old bring less than $100 on the Chicago market. Buy a few good cows now reduce your farm expenses by cultivating less, grow more pasture and mature all the cattle you breed by feeding the grain you produce on the farm, thereby increasing the fertility of your farm and your animal profits. Never in the history of our country did the future hold out such prospects as at present for those engaged in the production of prime beef.

Losses In Mexico.

The home side of the new outbreak of Mexico revolutionists appears in the statement published asserting that Americans have lost $400,000,000 out of six million invested in enterprises and industries in that country. If stable government is reestablished at some time in the near future, many of these losses may not prove total. But one surmises that after the pieces are picked up, there will be precious few things down there that are not pretty well dilapidated.

It is an emphatic warning to the American people, to beware of investments too far from home and not under the protection of a powerful government, able and willing to dispose justice between debtor and creditor. There is not a hamlet in the United States that has not been flooded with circulars offering sure and golden rewards to investors in Mexican, Central and South American enterprises. A steady stream of money from every state has poured into these precarious projects. No doubt many of them are perfectly good. But let every man with money to invest remember this: The people of the countries south of the United States do not take the obligation of a debt seriously. Their favorite watchword is "Manana' (tomorrow.) The debtor who insists upon his principal and interest on the day nominated in the bond, is regarded as most impolite, and a true Shylock, asking for his pound of flesh. Even an enterprise entirely controlled by Americans is more or less under the pressure of those conditions. It must collect its accounts through the means and tools provided by such a happy-go-lucky civilization.

KENTUCKY NEWS.

Where the King road drag has been used the highways are in fine condition, smooth and free of mud holes. The use of this drag should be general over the county, and will be in time, as land owners are offering to do the work free, and everyone can well afford to do so, as the work is light, while the benefits are great.—Greenville Record.

At the home of John Marion Wood, who resides on the Dud Kenady place, near Cobb, a few days ago, an explosion occurred that almost wrecked the chimney and scattered fire about the house and burned one of Mr. Wood's children badly. Mr. Wood had put a stick of wood on the fire and went to the hog pen to feed his hogs. Shortly after he had left the house he heard a loud noise, and rushing back to the house, found that an explosion had occurred.—Cadiz Record.

The mud tax, which three months ago began to be collected from the farmers of Bell county on account of the almost impossible condition of the roads of the county, is still in process of collection and will continue to be collected for the coming two months. This tax, which the farmers of every county in the United States who are without the modern hard surfaced roads are paying, is greatly in excess of all the other taxes combined which are necessary for the running of the Federal, State, county and district governments.—Middlesboro News-Record.

"I see a majority of your county Magistrates voted down a resolution introduced to adopt the split-log drag for all of your roads," said Mr. Stokes Payne, a prosperous farmer of the county, who owns considerable land in this county and Ballard. "I should like to take these gentlemen down into Ballard county and give them a demonstration of the merits of the drag, for I shall change their views, if they are open to conviction. Why, in certain sections of Ballard, where the drag has been used, the people are simply crazy about it. As you drive along the roads, you will see a drag in front of every prosperous farm. When it rains, you will find the owner out with that drag, as soon as the shower is over, and as a result the roads are as smooth as the levelest floor."—Paducah Sun.

Adams County in New Roll.

Adams county, Ohio, comes to the front with a new bid for fame. Adams claims to have produced in 1912 more White Burley tobacco than any other county in the United States.

Doubtless there will be counties in the Kentucky Burley district which will be disposed to dispute the claim and to call on the growers of the Ohio county for a showdown. However that may be, Adams county has raised "some" tobacco and is getting good prices for it, for this happens to be a year when Burley is occupying the front seats at the auction sales, while the dark-complexioned weed is languishing under the back stairs.

The minimum price of the Adams county Burley is twelve cents a pound and the maximum is as high as the buyer can reach. The quality is unusually fine and the crop is moving "like a house afire." There has not been so much excitement since Judge Blair started his famous vote-selling probe some years ago and disfranchised half the county.

Possibly the fact that some 1,300 male citizens of Adams county no longer feel any keen personal interest in politics may account for the remarkable boom in the tobacco growing industry. So many of the honest farmers in that bailiwick no longer have votes to sell that they may have turned to tobacco as the next best money crop with which they are acquainted. In which event they are to be congratulated upon their emancipation from politics.—C.-J

A Trapper Trapped.

Mr. Court Roney has been very successful the past fall and this winter in trapping, but Tuesday met his waterloo in a peculiar manner. In making the rounds of his many traps he found one that was thrown, but was carried in a small cave in a cleft of rock. In attempting to pull the trap out a loose rock on the inside closing the mouth of the cave so he could not extricate his hand. He hallooed for help and the Rev. Andrew Johnson hearing his cries, went to his rescue. After considerable prizing he succeeded in extricating the imprisoned hand. Any one who came near Curt for several days later, unless desticute of smell, would know that there were other varments in the cave besides groundhogs.—Oldham Era.

The local rural carriers had five mails to deliver last Monday, and maybe you think they did not have loads. The big delivery was on account of last Saturday being Washington's birthday, which the postal department requires the rural carriers to observe as a holiday.

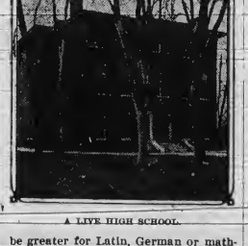
OLD IDEAS ARE PUSHED ASIDE

Schools Must Have Contact With Activity of People.



"WHY NOT TRAIN FOR LIFE?"

Higher Grades Are More Than Mere Incubators For Embryo Lawyers, Doctors, Teachers and Preachers. Domestic Science and Domestic Arts.

Schools will attract and hold the attention of the public in proportion to their contact with the everyday life and activity of the people. The old idea of a high school being an incubator for embryo lawyers, doctors, teachers and preachers is being pushed aside.

The school people—the real, live, wide awake school people—have seen this proposition clearly for some time, but they have been afraid of what the general public might think. The public has sensed that there was something out of gear in our school machinery, but it was afraid of what the education expert might say. And so the public and the school people have been seesawing.

Boys and girls welcome any study that tastes of everyday life and activity. The little girl in the lower grades mothers her doll, makes her clothes and mends them and cooks wonderful dinners on a homemade stove of brick out in the back yard. She keeps house and plays her part in a mimic world because it is the only outlet for what she sees of the activities of the world in which she is eventually to take her place. The years slip by, and she is ready for the high school. She must put her doll aside, and she can no longer with dignity cook on the brick stove in the back yard. Her own feeling would prompt her to go forward in sewing, cooking and the other household arts, but she is in a high school in which no such course is offered, so she loses an interest that had been part of her life and development. If she happens to find such a course in the high school the chances are that it is for a single period each day, and her credits earned for graduation would be greater for Latin, German or mathematics. She is anxious to get full credit for her labor, so she takes a topic for which she has no real liking. IN OTHER WORDS, OUR HIGH SCHOOLS ARE PUTTING A PREMIUM UPON WORK WHICH HAS SOME MENTAL AND CULTURAL VALUE INSTEAD OF COMMON, EVERYDAY HOME VALUE.

At the Henderson high school both domestic science and domestic arts for girls and manual training for boys have been given a very prominent place in the course of study. The school is now offering a three year course, and a fourth will be added next September. It is a four year course that calls for two forty-minute periods each day in the week, that real, strong, helpful, practical work may be accomplished. Too much of our school work has been theory, and we must have time enough for the practical side of domestic science and manual training.

Two years of this course, the freshman and the junior years, are used for sewing, pattern making, designing and a study of cloths and materials of various kinds. It is the aim of this work to have a girl strong enough to design a garment or plan a wardrobe rationally, to alter a pattern that does not fit or suit her. In a course of study of one period per day this would be impossible, but with eighty minutes each day of her school year at a sewing table results can be gotten.

In domestic science the work is rather out of the ordinary in that it seems so thoroughly commonplace and so usable in the home life that most of us have to live 365 days in the year. There is nothing that is fancy, but a very great deal about breads of various kinds, yeasts, baking powders, the care of sinks, refrigerators, etc. As one goes through this high school and sees the girls at this work there is the feeling that many of them are to be saved from the disappointment that comes to most young housekeepers.

That this work in Henderson appeals to the girls is shown by the fact that out of a total enrollment of 126 girls eighty-seven are taking domestic science or domestic arts.

The Increase of Cancer.

The State Board of Health is circulating in bulletin form an article entitled "Public Stupidity and Cancer Increase," written by Miss Annette Austin, and published recently by the Delineator.

Miss Austin is not a physician, but is a writer of recognized ability on educational, sociological and kindred themes. Her article directs attention to the rapid increase of cancer in the last ten years, in which time "it has become, for mature humanity, the most menacing disease on record." Statistics show that of those who attain the age of 35 years, one in every eight women and one in every eleven men fall victims to canper. "For the age decade between 50 and 60," Miss Austin says, "cancer is surpassed by no other disease as a cause of death for women, and only slightly by tuberculosis in men."

Tuberculosis, as a cause of death is beginning to show a decline, as a consequence, no doubt, of the effective warfare that is being waged against it. Cancer, on the contrary, is on the increase all over the world. Miss Austin shows that while the population of Great Britain doubled between 1850 and 1905 the cancer mortality increased six times. "In the United States the mortality rate from the disease has risen steadily, systematically, continuously from 9 per 100,000 of living in 1850 to 36.1 in 1880, to 49.1 in 1890, to 60 in 1900, to 73.1 in 1907, to 74.3 in 1908, to 77 in 1909." In the year last named there were 75,000 registered deaths and these, Miss Austin thinks, do not represent more than two-thirds of the actual number—"many having been assigned to secondary causes to save the feelings of the victims' families."

The "public stupidity" referred to in the caption of the article is the very general disposition to ignore danger signals and to delay treatment. The one point upon which all authorities agree Miss Austin says, is that "cancer is primarily a local disease, permanently curable in almo t every case by removal or destruction of the incipient growth." Moreover, it is added, "the disease nearly always indicates itself while in the local, curable stage, and in about four-fifths of the cases begins in regions which are accessible to surgery."

The scientific treatment of cancer has progressed greatly in recent years. While surgery is of paramoun t importance, "other agents are coming into use as adjuncts to the knife, and as substitutes, which accomplish the destruction more completely, cut off all possibility of recurrence, and make of cancer treatment a far more adequate, exhaustive and dependable science."

In the course of her article Miss Austin sounds a timely warning against quack specialties and cancer "hospitals" and "institutes." No case of real cancer which ever reached such a place, she says, was benefitted to the slightest degree.—C.-J.

TOBACCO TALK.

Mr. Farmer, don't figure the trust among the"down and out' yet a while.—Pembroke Journal.

At present prices for hogs and cattle they will pay better than tobacco.—Owen Democrat

There is not a single doubt about the advisability of growing other crops and giving more attention to livestock.—Henderson Gleaner.

We have advised farmers to not overdo things in the matter of a tobacco crop this year. Plant less and cultivate and handle it better.—Dover News.

The trouble in Ballard county is the large landholders will not rent farms to tenants unless they raise a big crop of tobacco, hence we have too much tobacco raised in our county.—La Center Advocate.

The Inquirer has been preaching the doctrine of less tobacco and a better quality to the farmers of the Green River section for a number of years, but they seem to pay no attention to it.—Owensboro Inquirer.

Mr. Thomas Gallaher, the noted tobacco buyer, of Belfast, Ireland, who arrived in Owensboro and Henderson, recently, has repeatedly declared that the tobacco offered for sale at this season is of poor quality, and that he does not care to buy of it. Some of the tobacco raisers themselves have admitted that, taken as a whole it is an inferior crop. There seems to be a strong hint in this to all tobacco raisers. The main suggestion conveyed is to raise a better quality of the weed, and then demand and stand for a better price.—Hartford Herald.

Kentucky Revenues.

Although bank deposits in Kentucky amount to over $200,000,000, taxes are paid on only $13,000,000, while fourteen times more tax is paid on dogs in the State than on all the stocks and bonds owned by citizens, according to the report of the Tax Commission, appointed under the authority of the last General Assembly, which was filed Monday with Gov. McCreary. The dog tax amounts to $127,000 and the tax on stocks and bonds $9,000. The Commission recommends that a permanent Tax Commission be appointed, and points out many places in which it is alleged, property is escaping taxation in Kentucky.

Laudable Thief.

A number of farmers who were in Mayfield county court day are preparing to keep a watchout for a young man who separated them from a dollar each without giving them anything in return. The boy began early in the day to mingle with the farmers at the wagon yards and other gathering places and when he would find a prospect he would as him if he would like to buy a pint of whisky. Many of the men thus approached were glad of the opportunity and paid a dollar on the spot for the pint. The boy then scampered away and when the farmer gathered a friend or two to assist in enjoying a "nip" he would almost collapse when he found that he had bought a pint of coffee instead of whisky. It is stated that the young man took in about $40 on his cold coffee proposition.

A Fly as Bookkeeper.

For seven months an expert accountant searched the books of a certain grain company of St. Paul for an error of an even of an even hundred dollars. There was that shortage in the cash. Whom to suspect the firm did not know. It spent much more than a hundred dollars trying to trace the matter down.

Then, after having gone over the books time and again, the accountant's pencil chanced to stop on an item of one hundred and fifty dollars. The pencil point rested on the figure "one," when the figure suddenly broke in two and slid down the page!

Upon examination it proved that the supposed figure "1" was a fly's leg which had become pasted in front of the fifty, raising the item to all appearances a hundred dollars. The fly had undoubtedly been crushed in the book when it was closed. —The Cleveland Press.

What Women are Doing.

The women of health who intelligently manage their own business and property affairs are becoming numerous, while few of those who have neither business nor property are satisfied with the alternative formerly offered them of resignation to poverty or dependence on the bounty of others. The number of self-respecting and selfsupporting women, married and single, is growing at a rapid pace. They not only hold an important place in the modern world of art and literature, but in many of the professions, trades and businesses, they are finding their way to success. Many a woman, left with a house full of little children, without money or influence, have stoutly faced the conditions and gone on, bravely fighting down every obstacle, and not only making a good living where the husband failed, but have achieved wealth and prominence, and brought up their dependent family to a high degree of usefulness.

Nickel Most Important Coin.

The handy nickel is dignified with an interesting editorial in the Oklahoma City Oklahoman in which it said: Every child knows what a nickel is, and every youngster is posted as to the possibilities of a nickel in domestic commerce. But no person knows how many nickels there are in circulation, not even the treasury officials. There have been 800,000,000 issued since we have been using the convenient five-cent pieces but many of them have been lost. How many people know that the humble nickel is the most important coin now in use? It is more circulated than any other piece of money that has a place in the currency. How many things purchased every day by the multitudes are sold for a nickel? This humble coin travels with constant velocity and does not remain long enough in the hands of any possessor for the temporary owner to get acquainted with it. This is because a nickel is never hoarded. The constant demand for it keeps it in the pocket ready for use whenever called for. It is not so with pennies, which are put in boxes until enough have been collected for use. The penny is too small in its individuality to cut any ice in shopping and so the occasion for it is limited. On account of the incessant traveling of the nickel, a comparatively small quantity serves the purpose of a large community. The popularity of the nickel as a coin makes it of interest to remind the public that the government is about to issue a new nickel of the Indian and buffalo type to take the place of the nickels that the children lose.—Ex.

What Good Roads Mean.

First they mean a decreased expense in hauling produce to market and in getting goods home from town. A farmer in Sullivan, Tenn., in 1908, had to haul barbed wire from Kingsport to Bristol, a distance of 25 miles. He found that with a two-horse team the largest load he could draw was 500 pounds, and that three days were necessary to make the trip. To haul one ton, therefore took twelve days, which, reckoned at three dollars a day for a man and team, was an expense of thirty-six dollars. A bond issue was finally made and the strip of road which he had hauled the wire was improved so that the same team can haul a ton to the load and the round trip in two days, at a cost of six dollars. In Madison county, Tenn., before the roads were improved a bale of cotton was a load for a team. Now the same team can haul ten bales to the load in less time. Figure it out.

Second. Good roads improve farm values. A farmer in Lee county, Virginia, owned a tract of one hundred acres which he offered for $1,500. In 1908 the road that passed his farm was improved, and tho he fought the improvement, he has since refused $3,000 for this place.

On this same road a tract increased from $6,000 to nine thousand in value after the improvement of the highway.

Third. Road improvement means better access to schools and better schools. It means the facilitation of the rural mail service, which is now seriously hampered in many places by the condition of the roads. It also means better and more attractive country and a consequent lessening of the city-ward drift of rural population. Let us have more good roads.—They are worth while.—Southern Agriculturalist.

Treatment of Different Classes.

In the case of the poor milker, which, in these days of high pressure and keen competition, no one should keep as a dairy animal, there is no difficulty about fixing the period during which she should be dry; she simply goes dry herself, generally a deal too soon for her owner; and some will take as much as three months rest, or yield in response to persistent dragging and generous feeding a quantity of milk that does not pay expenses. The short and best way with animals of this class is to weed them out, for they are quite out of place in the modern dairy.

A cow in poor condition may be allowed two months in which to recruit her strength, with advantage to herself and her prospective calf, but this is to some extent a matter of keep for the poor cow generally belongs to the poor feeder, and, if the feeding is generous, the animal in healthy condition, and the quantity of milk produced pays expenses there is no reason why the period of rest should not be further reduced.

In the case of the average cow, the milking can be continued until within a month of calving. If a cow is in a low condition, it is better in my opinion, to resort to higher feeding than to dry off. I have known cows treated thus for several years, sometimes being milked to within a month of calving, that have carried as good an appearance and produced equally good calves, as those which run dry nearly three times as long. Six weeks may be considered the average period during which a cow should be dry, unless the circumstances are exceptional.—Ex.

Forcing Cows of Present Day.

Under our present system of management of the dairy cows, we work for greater productiveness. We give the cows a good supply of excellent feed all winter and all summer. We do not subejct them to the changing processes of scant and abundant feed. The main idea is to make them comfortable during both winter and summer. Instead of feeding only one feed of hay and one of grain in winter, we give a variety of feeds, and so mingle the feeds that the bodily system is maintained, and such classes of feeds are supplied as are required to enable them to give about all the milk the system is capable of secreting and yielding. The drain on the system is constant and not changeable. The cow is a steady worker from the beginning of the period of lactation to the end.

By our modern systems of management the cows are much more productive than those in former years. The average amount of milk is raised to double that yielded by the old style cows. The amount of butter fat is more than doubled. Under the increase of production the cows do not suffer. The condition of flesh is more constant. The period of lactation has been lengthened. The profits have been increased. The results obtained are more satisfactory and the period of usefulness has been lengthened. Many of the good cows last up to sixteen and eighteen years of age.

Water In The Farm House

Few other home conveniences will save so much labor and add so much comfort as soft water, hot and cold, right at hand. The carrying and lifting of water, and the emptying of tubes are things that are extremely taxing and that could be readily accomplished by mechanical means. To open a faucet and lift a plug is all that should be necessary for filling and emptying tubs and washing machine. Water is needed, not only in the laundry but all over the house, the laundry being mentioned especially because wash day is the hardest day in the week, requiring the greatest amount of heavy lifting, which is hard on the back. Wash day also entails much danger of sickness because of necessary exposure when water must be carried in and out in cold weather.

The entire family should be interested in this needed improvement, because it would confer a personal benefit on each one. Soft water is better than hard for all kinds of cleaning, washing dishes, woodwork, floors and also for bodily ablutions. Who enjoys the harsh, sticky feeling of hands washed in hard water, to say nothing of chapping incident to its use in cold weather. The wash basin, the wash boiler, everything used with hard water, give silent evidence of this characteristic, consuming time and requiring extra labor in scouring when simple washing alone would be necessary if soft water had been used. Cistern water is not best for the purposes of drinking and in preparing and cooking, and it is not the intention of this article to recommend it, but simply to insist that in case but one can be had in the house, let it be soft.—Miss Juniata L. Shepperd, University Farm, Minnesota.

Good Use for Poor Farms.

In Wisconsin the county poor farms have been made demonstration farms, for the benefit of the vicinity, and also the centers for pure seed distribution. They are object lessons for all farmers who pass them by and see them from the road. This seems an admirable plan; makes the poor farm under proper management, the most valuable farm in the county for it is in a manner and to a certain degree a model for a hunired or more of the privately owned farms for miles around, and at a comparatively small expense. The man who originated the idea and worked it out into practice deserves a good, big med al, if he has not already received one. It is a great and valuable scheme, and if wisely and carefully carried out, cannot fail to place Wisconsin among the foremost of our agricultural states. The good "poor farms" will soon become the models of all enterprising, up-to-date farms to pattern upon. They will stimulate, educate and encourage them in their efforts and furnish reliable home grown seed and help them in many other ways. The plan is so sensible and promises so much that it must commend itself everywhere, and we shall look for it to be adopted in all our western states at an early date.—Indiana Farmer.

The President.

The president of the United States has nothing whatever to do with the making of the laws of the individual states or of the United States. He is purely and simply the national executive, his business being to carry out the laws that are made by the congress. In order to be able to make laws the president would need to be an absolute monarch like the czar of Russia or the Sultan of Turkey. As he is, he is simply the head servant of the people, with his duties clearly laid down in the constitution, and from which he cannot deviate. Instead of making the laws the laws are made by the legislative servants of the people for him to execute.

Local Happenings.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the Readers of the Boone Co. Recorder:

Wm. Stephens, The Home of Good Clothes, has moved his store from 710 Madison Ave. to the Southeast corner of Eighth and Madison Ave. He extends a special invitation to visit his new place at Eighth and Madison Avenue, Covington, Kentucky.

Next Tuesday it will be President Woodrow Wilson.

Some of the farmers were sowing grass seed last week.

The Burlington and Florence turnpike is in a fairly good condition.

The candidates should not allow good weather to make them restless.

Bert Smith found his watch in his corn bin the next day after he missed it.

Next Monday will be held the regular March term of the Boone county court.

Every day last week was looked upon as a weather breeder, and the prophets were fooled.

Jack Eddins, the local telephone lineman, was doing some rush work on his lines last week.

The Modern Woodmen's lodge at Burlington was unable to maintain itself, consequently it has surrendered its charter.

The early gardeners will begin to get busy now every time an opportunity is offered for them to do any working in their truck patches.

Wild geese have been seen going north this month, a sign that there is not much bad weather in store for the immediate future.

Circuit Clerk Maurer went to Belleview, last Saturday to attend a business meeting of the Farmers' Canning Co., of which he is a stockholder.

The Lexington pike from Erlanger to the car line was in an awful condition last week. In some places it looked like it had been plowed.

W. P. Cropper, of North Bend neighborhood, fell from his barn loft a few days ago and crippled himself considerably. No bones were broken.

A pretty good sized crowd attended the sale of the personal estate of the late Alfred Cason, last Thursday afternoon, and good prices prevailed.

W. J. Brell, of Erlanger, will start his auto truck on the first day of March, and will make three trips a week from Cincinnati to Burlington, hauling freight.

The weather man located at Cincinnati kept predicting rain last week until it came, but the temperature did not descend to as low point as he claimed it would.

It is important that you test your seed corn so that you will have some idea as to what to expect in the way of a stand of corn when you plant it this spring.

It looks like Judge Allie Young is the man to clean up Breathitt county, and if he can do it he will have earned the everlasting gratitude of the State.—Flemingsburg Gazette.

This office had the biggest run of sale bills to print last week that it has had in a long time. It looked like every person who came ordered sale bills, while others ordered by telephone.

Only four rural mail carriers attended the meeting at Florence, last Saturday, where Mr. and Mrs. James P. Tanner and their accomplished daughter, Miss Lena, entertained the boys in a most sumptuous manner.

Another case of diphtheria appeared in Petersburg last week, but the school there was not dismissed as it had been on two previous occasions this winter on account of the appearance of that disease in the town and district.

For a sprain you will find Chamberlain's Liniment excellent. It allays the pain, removes the soreness, and soon restores the parts to a healthy condition. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.

The spreading of new stone and the construction of breast works at frequent intervals on the Burlington and Belleview and the Burlington and Petersburg turnpikes has made life a burden for the autoists who have traveled them recently.

The measles which have prevailed in Burlington and vicinity this winter was a good kind to have. Miss Ruth Hall was the only patient who was dangerously ill at any time. Measles that allows a patient to be out in four or five days are not as bad as a genuine sick headache.

What's Become of That Railroad?

What has become of Rising Sun's railroad that was uppermost in the minds of her citizens not long since? A railroad would soon make Rising Sun one of the best little cities on the Ohio river, she having many local advantages of which several of her more pretentious neighbors can not boast.

Acreage Will Be Increased.

Aberden, Ohio, Feb. 19—The acreage of tobacco will be largely increased in Brown and Adams counties this year. Brown county is the home of the white burley. The growers are now busily engaged in preparing their plant beds and ground. The fine spring-like weather of the last few days has permitted the farmers to do a great deal of plowing, the earliest in many years.

The Town Will Be Left.

The location of the proposed Government works at McVille will not interfere with much of the improved property in that village, as the lock and dam will be located above the town, being mostly on land belonging to Capt. John Smith. The canal through which the boats will pass is to be located on this side of the river, which will be of considerable advantage to both McVille and Belleview.

Doing A Big Business Here.

The mail order houses in Chicago are doing a considerable business in this part of the country, a large majority of the postoffice orders issued by the local office being payable to them, while parcel post packages are being received from there every day. They are taking considerable trade out of this territory that the local merchants should control.

Sowed Their Plant Beds.

The growers in many neighborhoods got busy last week and prepared a large number of tobacco plant beds, and the indications now are that a very large acreage will be pitched this year as a result of the high prices the weed has been bringing this winter. It pays well to raise tobacco at ten cents a pound, which figures have been below the average price for several months past.

Broke the Record.

Last Thursday Bert Smith, carrier on route No. 2, had the biggest delivery ever made on that route. Notwithstanding the roads were very bad he was compelled to go in his cart in order to be able to take his mail, and to add to his work he broke the record for issuing postoffice money orders and receiving registered packages. It was late in the afternoon when he got back to the Burlington office altho he had wasted no time on the trip.

John Stephens Dead.

John Stephens, a native of this county died at his home in Erlanger at 12:15 a. m., last Saturday, having been prostrated by a stroke of paralysis on the preceding Wednesday. Mr. Stephens entered his 87th year on the 27th of last December. He was one of a family of thirteen children, only one of whom, ex-county judge Benjamin Stephens, of Florence, survives. Mr. Stephens had long been a member of the Christian church, and his funeral services for the Union and Rathchurch in Erlanger at 10 a. m. last Monday by Revs. Garrison, Buffington and Edgar C. Riley, after which the Masons, of whom he was made on in Good Faith lodge at Florence in 1865, took charge. The interment took place in the Rice cemetery at Union. A biography of this grand old man will be published next week.

Card of Thanks—We desire to express to the friends who were so kind to us and our father, John Stephens, during his last illness, our heartfelt appreciation of their kindness, and to thank the ministers, Revs. Garrison, Buffington and Riley for their consoling remarks at the funeral, and the Masons for the interest they manifested in him; also undertaker Scott Chambers for his efficient service.

The Children.

It is said that the corn in this part of the country did not mature properly last fall, consequently in order to secure a good stand the coming spring the planter should exercise great care in selecting his seed. The selection and testing of seed should begin now in order that a test may be as thorough as it is possible to make. It makes no difference how much labor is expended in the preparation of the seed bed if your seed prove defective a large per cent of your labor is wasted. Seek to make every hill produce two good ears. That is the way to produce a bumper yield.

Those who are interested in the science of meterology and its regulation of climate will be glad to know that "Uncle" Cyrus Bell asserted yesterday that notwithstanding the asseverations of science having exploded the moon theory, he was still a believer in it, and had always noted that when Luna was flat on its back and north of the Perryville pike you could look out for a cold spell.—Danville Advocate.

Gov. McCeary will attend the inauguration of President-elect Wilson on the fourth of March, and will present to the incoming President while there an invitation to come to Louisville as the guest of the city next September and to make an address in the armory on the occasion of the Perry centennial celebration.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS.

Kentucky Educational Association to Meet In Louisville.

Officers of the Kentucky Educational Association report that the teachers of the State have been aroused as never before over the annual session of the Association which is to be held in Louisville, April 31, May 1, 2, and 3 and finishing touches are now being put to the elaborate program. Exceptionally low railroad rates from every point and an attendance of not less than 50,000 teachers is anticipated. A special invitation has been given to school trustees and members of the boards of education to attend and aid the educators in efforts to improve Kentucky's school system. Numerous good speakers of national prominence are on the program. One of the pleasing features will be an exhibit from rural and city schools. This will cover everything from examples of the handiwork of the manuel training students to exhibits from the Boys' Corn Clubs. All sessions will be held in the Christian church, a spacious room of the edifice having been set aside exclusively for the school exhibits.

FOR SALE—Sweet Clover Seed; White and Yellow; in any quantities. O. B. Sleete, Mason, Ky. Telephone 1023

NOTICE

To Kentucky Female Orphan School Graduates.

All graduates of the above named school are requested to send name and address to Principal of K. F. O. S., Midway, Ky., that each may receive an invitation to the Alumnae meeting in May. Send name and address whether or not circumstances favor attendance.

ELLA JOHNSON,
Principal K. F. O. S.

One reason assigned for the big scramble on in almost every county for the office of Jailer is that the "boys" have gotten "wise" to the fact that beginning January 1, 1914, when the new officials assume office, fee s will be increased 50 per cent. Under an act of the Legislature which takes effect then the Jailer's will be allowed 75 cents a day for feeding prisoners in their charge instead of fifty cents a day as now allowed. In many counties this increase will make the Jailer's office the best paying one and accounts for the numerous candidates. But in Boone county this increase on the amount of fees will not make the jailer a millionaire by any means. Boone has about as little use for a jail as any county in the State.

Live Stock Fared Well.

Winter is about over and as a general thing livestock is in splendid condition. February being the only month in which there has been any pinching weather, and that was not so long and severe as to make any impression on animals. The owners of livestock in Boone county are, in nearly every instance, prepared to protect them from severe weather during the winter, and very few cattle, hogs or horses have to shift for themselves during cold weather, most of them being furnished with comfortable quarters which pays the owners an immense per cent on the amount invested in shelter for them.

Lewis Beemon, who lives out on the North Bend road, was a caller at this office, last Saturday, having called in to pay the subscription of a neighbor, an old batchelor, who was afraid to come to town through fear of catching measles, he, his mother nor his sisters having had the disease.

NOTICE—The members of the Boone County Wool Growers Association will meet at Burlington March, court day for the purpose of organizing and pooling wool for the ensuing year.

L. T. CLORE,
Secretary.

Congressman A. B. Rouse writes the Recorder that a civil service examination will be held at Covington on March 10 for general clerkships. From the register of eligibles resulting from this examination certification will be made to fill vacancies as they may occur in clerical positions in the department and offices at Washington, D. C., at entrance salaries of usually $840 or nine hundred per annum. Mr. Rouse will take pleasure in giving possible applicants any further information regarding these examinations.

The big auto furniture truck which got hung up in the mud down on Middle creek, last Tuesday, did not get out of its trouble until Friday afternoon. It passed thru Burlington about six o'clock that evening enroute to the city. Men with the machines seemed to be enjoying themselves, notwithstanding the hard luck they had experienced the past few days.

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Mill, Va., who is the mother of eighteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering and now recommends these tablets to the public. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

WHALE STRANDED IN RIVER

Exited Korean Natives Finally Killed Monster and Profited Exceedingly Thereby.

An extraordinary event is reported from Sin Anju, a railway town in North Pyong an province in Korea. About noon when the tide was high villagers of Wangpong Li, Tong Kyon, in the Kasan district of the same province, were amazed to see a big black object swimming in the River Tallyong, running near by.

They did not know what the monster was and watched its movements with great excitement and interest. Soon after the monster sent up a column of water and disappeared.

On the following day at about 7 o'clock Tomizo Tashiro, a Japanese railway linesman in service at Sin Anju station, while patrolling the line was astonished to see a whale struggling to go downstream at a point about five cho above the railway bridge on the Tallyong river. It was low tide and the water having considerably receded the river was only about five feet deep. The whale had evidently stranded on a shallow place and was unable to move.

Tashiro was overjoyed to find the unexpected spoil and tried to kill it by firing at it with a fowling piece he was carrying. He fired at it eighteen times, but the whale semed to be none the worse in consequence. Tashiro concluded that it would not do to try to kill it in that way and running to the nearest village collected several Koreans, told them of his find and each armed with an ax they returned to the spot.

The whale was still there, the water having further receded. They rushed into the stream and by striking the monster on the head with the axes they at last succeeded in killing it. The whale was about 35 feet in length and was valued at about 1,000 yen.

HARD WORK TO GAIN FAVOR

European Powers Refuse for Years to Recognize King Ferdinand of Bulgaria.

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria was twenty-six years old when his difficult task began. He had to contend with the further hardship that the European courts refused to recognize his rank, beyond the continual danger of plots and attempts at assassination which he had to face within Bulgaria itself. Of his external difficulties a good story is told:

On one of his unofficial visits to France—for France did not recognize him for ten years—King Ferdinand paid a visit to the Bourbon Duc d'Aumale, his uncle, at Chantilly. The Duc d'Aumale was working in his library when his nephew, without previously having announced, entered the room.

Surprised at the interruption, the duke began to look extremely angry with such an unceremonious visitor when suddenly he burst out laughing: "My poor Ferdinand, forgive me. I was like Europe. I did not recognize you!"

Vegetarian Side Dish.

There are times when it is profitable to have lived in Bohemia and to be young together. Guy Pene Dubois, the art critic and painter, was invited to dinner by Rockwell Kent, and after Dubois reached Kent's studio home he suddenly remembered that Kent was an avowed champion of vegetarianism and a strict follower of meatless diet. Dubois had a violent attack of duty and declared he had to telephone his office. As one of those instruments was not a part of the Kent studio he went out to attend to the promptings of conscience. When he came back and sat down to the table he produced from his pocket triumphantly a good-sized bologna done up in tinfoil. "Now," he announced, as he put it down on his plate, "we can begin."

Snapshot Calendar.

A calendar made by the following directions is new and dainty, and the work on it is not too difficult for small fingers. On a strip of satin ribbon twenty-four inches long and about five inches wide turn up a three-inch hem, and featherstich this with heavy embroidery silk. Paste above this a small calendar, then three small snapshots unmounted and cut circular. Of course these pictures should be of people or scenes dear to the intended recipient. Turn upper ends of ribbon to form a point, and to this tack a tiny brass ring to be used as a hanger. Last, split the hem and fringe up to the featherstitching.—Harper's Bazar.

Epitaph of Bulgarian Heroes.

The following lines, originally engraved on the tombstone of a young Bulgarian hero, Hadji Dimiter, who fell in the war for independence in 1877, have been written over several of the graves of victims of the present war:

"He lies in his blood, living still, but his breast, full of youth and promise, is gashed by so deep a blow.

"At his right an abandoned gun, at his left a sword in twain.

"He lies still, but in the sky the overhanging sun warms his heart.

"The woman reaping sings among the corn, while the blood of the hero flows but faster."

At the Opera.

Mrs. Styles—Well, I declare! There are the Gottroxes on time! I never knew them to get here before until the performances was half over!

Mr. Styles—Well, they usually come in their own automobile. I imagine they came down in a street car, tonight.

BIRDS DEFENDED THEIR HOME

Made Vicious Attack on Men Engaged in Painting Tower in Which They Had Nest.

Workmen who have been painting the tower of College hall on the Vanderbilt campus were attacked while suspended on their lofty scaffold by two diminutive sparrow hawks, the self-appointed guardians of the towers, says the Nashville Democrat.

One of the birds, the workmen said, lighted upon one of the gargoyles of the tower soon after the painting was started, and after a few moments of reconnoitering sallied into the "mere man," pecking at his head and beating him with its wings. The workman fought back, but the bird was not hurt. Its cries brought its mate to its assistance, and the birds continued the battle.

A lucky stroke of the workman's paint brush at last sent one of the hawks away, and the other soon followed. The workman said the birds were small, but that he was afraid his eyes would be pecked out before he could beat the hawks away. The behavior of the birds is strange, as this is not the nesting season, and they presumably had no reason for wanting to guard their tower except the fact that it had been their home for several years. Rarely if ever before have sparrow hawks been known to attack a human being.

WHY HE CONTINUED TO CALL

Neither the Great Man Nor Possibility of Business Formed the Attraction for Visitor.

"See here," said the great man, when the caller had finally been permitted to enter the private office, "this is the sixth time you have come to discuss this matter. I told you in the beginning that I would notify you when I was ready to take it up. Why do you insist on bothering me about it?"

"I'm sorry it's a bother to you to have me call."

"You must understand that I'm a very busy man. I can't understand how you are able to afford to waste so much time hanging around here, waiting to see me, when you must know that your coming isn't going to do you any good. I'll take up your case when I come to it in its regular order, and not before. I've told you that a number of times."

"Yes, I know you have; but that pretty girl who sits in your outer office, telling people you are busy, is one of the most entertaining girls I ever met."—Chicago Record Herald.

"Skunk Bear."

Dr. Charles Stuart Moody, the well-known outdoor writer, who has recently returned from an expedition in the Rockies to study the habits of the mountain goat, has an amusing and instructive article upon the little known wolverine in Outing. It begins thus:

If some patriotically-inclined sportsman were to get up a voting contest to decide upon the most worthless and at the same time the most diabolically-cunning animal on earth I should have to squander all my money buying votes for the wolverine. Doubtless the red fox would have many supporters, but Sir Reynard is one of the infant class in a Methodist Sunday school when compared to this "long-coupled" cross between an overgrown weasel and an undergrown bear that inhabits the North woods.

Power of the Editor.

According to French law, the editor of a newspaper wields more power than the proprietor. A wealthy Russian admirer of Louis Blanc founded a paper, "L'Homme Libre," of which Blanc was appointed editor. The Russian rather fancied himself as a writer, and sent some articles to the paper, which Blanc returned with thanks. This so infuriated the owner that he endeavored to make the courts compel Blanc to insert the articles. The judge held that an editor has a right to decline articles, even when written by his proprietor, and so dismissed the plaintiff's suit with costs. But it was probably within the proprietor's right to retaliate by dismissing the editor.

Brazil Has Oldest City.

St. Augustine, Fla., will have to take a back seat as the oldest city, according to Dr. Jacob Frank, former president of the Chicago Surgical society, who declared in a lecture that Bahia, Brazil, was the oldest city on the western hemisphere. Doctor Frank, who recently returned from a tour of South America, lectured to the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart and patients of the Columbus hospital.

"I investigated the records of Bahia thoroughly," said Doctor Frank, "and I find that city to have been founded in 1549, thirty-five years before St. Augustine. This makes it the oldest city on the hemisphere."

Safe Course.

The face of the young man was rueful, and the lawyer he was interviewing looked exceedingly grave.

It was a clear case of breach of promise, and the man of law could see nothing but heavy damages as the ultimate outcome. And he lectured to some purpose the young man, who waxed restive.

"Oh, yes," the latter said impatiently, "I know all about it. The same old song, 'Do right and fear nothing.'"

"No, no, that's not it at all," said the lawyer smiling shrewdly. "What I meant to impress upon you was, 'Don't write and fear nothing.'"

INDIGESTION FIVE YEARS

Relieved by Vinol.

Strength and even life itself depends upon the nourishment and proper assimilation of food, and unless digestion is good, the whole body suffers.

Mrs. L. D. Cook, Vineland, N. J., says: "I was sick five years with indigestion. My stomach seemed to have a heavy load in it, and at other times it seemed to be tied in knots. Nobody knows how I suffered.

"I tried a great many doctors and a great many kinds of medicine, but nothing did any good until I took Vinol. It has helped me wonderfully. I am improving fast, feel better and am getting my flesh back again. Vinol has done me a world of good."

We know the great power of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, in curing chronic stomach trouble and building up all weakened, run-down persons, and that is why we guarantee to return your money if it does not help you.

GREAT NAME NOW A MEMORY

With the Passing of Junius Brutus Booth Famous Family of Players Has Become Extinct.

The suicide of Junius Brutus Booth in England marks the end of one of the final chapters in the history of the most illustrious family of players known to American stage. Almost a hundred years ago the grandfather of the young man came to this country, an actor of established London reputation. He still lives in the memory of a few old players as one of the finest tragic actors ever seen on our boards.

On his death in 1852 his son Edwin found himself charged with the responsibility of sustaining the great reputation of his father. That the mantle of the elder Booth fell upon shoulders capable of wearing it gracefully and with infinite credit to the family has long since been a matter of history. Edwin Booth left behind him a reputation second to that of no man of his calling in private as well as professional life. He gave to the City of New York one of the noblest playhouses it has ever had, and to his fellow actors the Players club. The amount of his private charities will never be known, for the Booths were ever a modest race.

The father of the man, whose tragic death has just been chronicled was Junius Brutus Booth, an actor of good repute, though he never gained the high place won by his brother, Edwin. The mother of the younger Junius Brutus was Agnes Booth, one of the very best actresses of her day.

Thus passes the glory of an honored name.—Exchange.

BACKS UP CLAIMS OF ERIC

French Scientist Points to Proof That Norsemen Visited America in Eleventh Century.

M. Henri Cordier in the current number of the Journal des Savants calls attention to a proof of the discovery of America in the eleventh century which has hitherto passed unnoticed. In the Saga of Eric the Red it is said that when Thorfin Karlsefne returned from "Markland," or Newfoundland, in 1006, he took back to Greenland with him two children from the northern land of the Skraelings, and four words of their language are preserved in the Saga. These words were thought by the Greenlanders to be the names of the children's parents or chiefs; but M. Cordier shows that they can be traced to Esquimau phrases of the present day, two of them meaning something like "Wait a moment" and "the Northern Islands" respectively. To this he joins the statement of Prof. Waldemar Jocheson, of St. Petersburg, that the scientific expedition sent by F. P. Riabuschinski to Kamschatka has proved the morphological connection of the Kamschatkan language with several Indian dialects of North America. This derives additional interest from the news from America of the discovery by Mr. V. Stefansson of tribes of white Esquimaus showing many traces of Norse descent, on the shores of Coronation gulf.—The Athenaeum.

Genius and Childishness.

A great philosopher once said that every true genius remained, in a certain sense, a child his whole life long. If such is the case, then relying upon believable accounts, De Quincey must have ever displayed this mark of mental distinction. In the practical affairs of daily life, he is said to have been unusually helpless. On one occasion, it is related, he starved while carrying in his pocket a draft for a considerable sum, not knowing that it could be converted into cash. Early in life his wife died, leaving him with a family of children, whom he was unable to care for properly. Toward the close of his career, however, when he had practically broken his terrible habit, and his works were circulated widely, he seems to have enjoyed more prosperity. He died in 1859.

Birdless Riviera.

The absence of birds has often been noticed by visitors to the Riviera. It is now being very particularly felt by those who are interested in the production of roses, oranges, lemons and flowers and vegetables generally, as insects which attack plants have late been unusually numerous and various methods have been adopted—mostly in vain—to put an end to their ravages.

The introduction of various insect eating beetles is being tried and a ladybird farmer might probably prosper in the district, but the greatest remedy would be the protection of birds which would at the same time lend some cheer to the silent gardens of the Cote d'Azur.

Lawyer Almost Came to Grief.

The paper the other day told how a Missouri judge almost punished a lawyer whose conduct in court was reprehensible. In a voice "quivering with emotion" his honor sent the jury from the room, and then, addressing the offending counsel, said: "Your questions are utterly improper and your personal conduct deserves the keenest reproach and condemnation. If you continue this behavior I shall fine you for contempt of court." Would it be permissible to suggest that the most effective way to fine a lawyer for contempt of court is to fine him?—Kansas City Star.

ALL THE MAN'S FAULT

By GERTRUDE MILLETT.

"No," said Bella. "I'll not go with you on a lake boat this year. I have too vivid a recollection of my last lake trip. Mrs. Clark invited me to go to Escanaba with her and Fay on a freight boat. I was delighted. Fay had been on the trip before and she reported that she had the time of her life.

"The trip to Escanaba was a dream. The captain and sailors could not do enough for us. It was moonlight and the lake looked beautiful. I felt as if I was on a private yacht. It was perfect till we started back.

"At Escanaba they loaded the boat with tons of iron ore. The vessel sank deeper and deeper into the water, until it began to look like a submarine. Then when we started for Chicago we were towing a barge loaded with more tons and tons of ore.

"We had been on our way a day, when I saw that the sky looked like lead, with ugly yellow streaks across it. I said to Mrs. Clark, 'I think we shall have a storm.'

"You know how optimistic she is! With that sky above us, she gayly remarked, 'Oh, do you think so?'

"It was not long before the storm broke. The wind came suddenly and the rain came down like an overturned sea. We hurried into the protection of the cabin and watched the storm.

"It was awful the way the boat creaked. I will say nothing about the way it rocked. The rope which pulled the barge broke like a thread. In a few minutes it seemed miles away.

"Presently I saw a sailor make his way to the lifeboat. I watched him anxiously. He was working at the ropes.

"I said to Mrs. Clark, 'He is going to lower the lifeboat and you must know what that means.'

"She did not answer me, but pushed the screen door open and rushed up to the man, pulled his sleeve and asked, 'Are you going to lower the lifeboat?' He paid no attention to her.

"She came back, threw herself into a seat and sobbed. 'I shall never see my husband again.'

"Tables and chairs were sliding about. In despair I dropped upon the floor. Oh, why did I ever come! Tons of iron below me! I could see the boat go down into the lake like a cannon ball.

"'I know when I strike the water,' I cried 'I'll go straight to the bottom.'

"Fay answered, despairingly, 'We all will. There'll be no other place to go!'

"Like a flash all the mean things I had ever done rushed through my mind. I never knew before that crisis on the lake that there were so many of them.

"Suddenly Fay jumped up. 'I am going to put on a life preserver,' she exclaimed.

"There was none in sight. We began to hunt frantically. The boat pitched us in every direction.

"We looked on the ceiling, on the walls and even tore the cushions from the chairs. There was no sign of life preservers. Where could those men have put them? At last Mrs. Clark found them in a closet, covered with insect powder. We pulled them out and each grabbed one.

"Fay was wriggling into hers—it looked like a doughnut. I had on a cork jacket with the back to the front. 'Tie it!' I kept on screaming to them.

"Mrs. Clark had one on and was trying to get into another. We were all sneezing because of the insect powder.

"Mrs. Clark ran to the door for fresh air. 'Oh, girls,' she called. 'There is the steward bringing us tea. And the lifeboat is still in its place!'

"Fay and I made a dive for the door. Yes, there was the lifeboat! I could hardly believe it.

"By this time the steward came up. 'Is the boat going to sink?' cried Mrs. Clark.

"'Sink? No, everything is all right,' he said.

"'Why, that sailor was lowering the lifeboat,' shrieked Fay.

"The captain came in at that minute. 'He was sent to fasten it more securely,' said the captain.

"'Then why couldn't he say so?' cried Mrs. Clark.

"I never could tell you how those men laughed. We began to pull at those life preservers. When mine came off I looked as if I had been rolled in insect powder. It was a comfort to see the other two look as if they had just escaped from an insane asylum.

"'My puffs are gone!' cried Fay, feeling her flattened head. 'They were brand new!'

"'It won't matter,' said Mrs. Clark. 'Brown puffs do not match yellow hair.'

"'Insect powder in my hair!' screamed Fay. 'It's all that man's fault!'

"'Did you really think you were going down?' asked the captain.

"'Did we think we were going down!' we cried in chorus.

"He looked at the general disorder —upturned tables, stripped chairs, life preservers and contents of closets on the floor and our disheveled appearance. Then he turned to the steward and said, with a wink, 'It's the worst storm we've had in thirty years!'"

Justice for the Rooster.

A government bulletin on the egret asserts that the barnyard rooster furnishes a great many fancy feathers that pass for "aigrettes." "Enormous quantities of fancy feathers," says the report, "are used by American milliners, but many that go for aigrettes are rooster tails."

H. C. Wayman conducting the services, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Baptist cemetery alongside of those of his wife.

Mrs. Anna Arnold-Glinn, the beloved wife of Joseph Glinn, died very suddenly Thursday night at her home in Walton from heart failure. While she had been complaining yet her death was not looked for, and her taking away was a sorrowful surprise to her many friends. Mrs. Glinn was born and reared in this neighborhood, her maiden name being Arnold, and she was 66 years old at the time of her death. Her husband survives her, and to him the heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends is tendered in his great bereavement. Mrs. Glinn was a very lovable woman, as she was kind and charitable, and always had sympathy for those in misfortune and distress, and she will be missed by many friends The funeral took place Sunday from the Baptist church, Rev. H. C. Wayman conducting the services, a large number of sorrowing friends being present.

One of the prettiest home weddings that has taken place in this section transpired last Saturday afternoon at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Bartlett Kniffen Menefee when their pretty daughter Miss Cecile was given in marriage to John Benjamin Allison of Gardner, Illinois, in the presence of the immediate relatives and a few invited friends. The parlor was tastefully decorated in Southern smilax and ferns, with pink and white carnations. At the appointed hour to the bewitching strains of "Hearts and Flowers" from the piano under the skilful touch of Prof. D. E. Belcher of Hanover, Indiana, the handsome young couple came gracefully into the parlor and took their position before the officiating minister, Rev. George P. Simmons of the Crittenden Christian church, who with the beautiful ring ceremony bound the two young lives together in the high estate of marriage. The bride was very becomingly attired in white satin with embroidered chiffon and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas. The groom wore the conventional black. Following the congratulations, and light refreshments of ice cream and cake, the young couple drove to Richwood and took the evening train for Chicago where they will spend their honeymoon, their departure being accompanied by a shower of rice and the best wishes of their friends and relatives for a long, happy and prosperous future. The charming bride is one of Walton's most popular young ladies, and is greatly esteemed for her excellent qualities of heart and mind. The groom comes with the reputation of a first class young gentleman, and his deportment and connections indicate his high standing. He is the assistant cashier in the bank owned by his father W. S. Allison, at Gardner's, Illinois, where the groom has prepared a pretty home for his bride, all ready to begin housekeeping on their arrival. Those present at the nuptials were the groom's parents Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Allison, Mrs. F. M. Allison and daughter Miss Frances, Mrs. Wade Allison and son Stanley, all of Gardner, Illinois, Hon. and Mrs. Harvey Myers and daughter of Covington, Prof. D. E. Belcher, of Hanover, Indiana, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Menefee, Mrs. C. M. Menefee, Rev. Geo. P. Simmons and daughter Miss Adelaide, Miss Jessie Crutcher, of Crittenden, Mrs. A. V. Menefee and son Kline of Williamstown, Prof. Arthur Priest of Edwardsville, Ill., Wm. Claycamp, of Covington, Mrs. A. M. Edwards, Walton.

For the Garden.

One of the ways of making money at home, which has been proven effective is to get a cannery; it need not be so very large if you are at all nervous about the outcome. One that will do for a small garden will cost about five dollars, but a ten-dollar outfit is better. Learn all you can about the growing of the fruit or vegetables you expect to can, and do the work just as nicely as possible. A great deal of garden stuff goes to waste, and if you should can your surplus, you can sell it readily. Do the work well, and get your name above your neighbors as a reliable, patient worker. It is full time, now, that you begin to plan for the garden and cannery. You will probably have disappointments and discouragements; but just determine that you are going to succeed. Only the best fruits and vegetables must be used. Make catsup out of the culls, and put a lot of it up for soup. Don't use rotten, or decaying vegetables, but put up the best.

Andrew Brown Acra, departed this life at 11 o'clock a. m. Sunday, Feb. 16, 1913, at the old homestead on Middle creek, where he was born and lived his entire life. He was born Oct. 18, 1856, being 56 years, 3 months and 28 days of age. His remains were interred at Belleview in the new cemetery on Tuesday, Feb. 18, 1913. He was a twin brother, John Henry, who departed this life the 24th of Nov. 1897. Andrew was never married. He has been virtually an invalid ever since he had an attack of blood poison some 20 years ago. Then in 1897 an attack of typhoid fever prostrated him to such an extent he never entirely recovered his health. Last July he became prostrated again with a complication of diseases from the effects of the former, that he was not able to withstand. Out of a family of twelve children, eleven boys and one girl, he leaves four brothers, Chas. H., Wm. L., Archie L., and Harry R. Acra to mourn his demise. He was strictly moral and said he was ready to go when the summons came. Death had no sting to him.

A CARD.

We feel under many obligations to our and his friends who so faithfully contributed their assistance rendering all aid and comforting his many wants during his last illness, and alleviating his brothers of a feeling of loneliness which was appreciated by Bro. Andrew while he lived. We who are left still hold them in the highest esteem. A brief service was held at the home by T. Z. Roberts, and prayer at the grave by Jas. W. Ryle were very appropriate and R. A. Steele's efficient service as undertaker.

MRS. HARRIET RICE

Passes Away After a Lingering Illness of Heart Trouble.

Mrs. Harriet Rice, aged eighty-two years, one month and twenty six days died at her home in the Idlewild neighborhood, at 11 p. m., last Friday, February 28th. She was the widow of the late Morgan Rice and a daughter of John and Florinda Riddell. She was the mother of four children, one of whom a daughter, died in infancy, and Wilbur who died about three months ago, Edward and Lot P. survive as do also her three grandchildren Wilbur, Wallace and Lallie. She was one of a family of nine children, only two of whom C. G. Riddell, of Rabbit Hash, and W. L. Riddell, of Burlington, survive. Mrs. Rice was purely a domestic woman and no place had for her the charms of home. She was a member of no church but led the life that in this world is recognized as that of a christian. She was of a forgiving spirit and when the faults or follies of anyone were mentioned in her presence always took a charitable view of the matter and was ever ready to offer some excuse for the ommission or commission. It was this with other like traits of character that endeared her to all with whom she was acquainted and made her life one worthy of emulation of both young and old. In her declining years she was blessed with two daughters-in-law whose devotion and attention could not be excelled. They left nothing undone that was calculated to contribute to her comfort, and during her periods of illness that were frequent during the last few years one or the other was at her side all the time night and day. Filial ties could not have been stronger had they been her own daughters, and their loving kindness was fully recognized and appreciated by Mrs. Rice who pronounced them jewels. The remains were taken by undertaker Scott Chambers, of Walton, to Bellview, last Monday where they were interred by the side of those of her husband, who preceded her to the grave several years.

Card of Thanks—We desire to extend our heartfelt thanks to those friends who were so kind to our mother during her last illness and rendered us so many favors during that period. We also desire to express our appreciation of the efficient manner in which undertaker Scott Chambers conducted the funeral.

Edward Rice and wife,
Lot P. Rice and wife.

Martin-Roberts.

Menter Martin, of Bullittsville neighborhood, and Miss Susan Roberts, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Roberts, of Burlington, were married last Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents in Burlington, Rev. J. S. Steers, of Dry Ridge, officiating. Only a few of the very intimate friends of the bride and groom witnessed the ceremony, shortly after which they left for their futnre home in the Bullittsville neighborhood. The big charivari for which arrangements had been made was brought to a sudden close when the participants were informed of the illness of the bride's sister, Miss Mary Roberts, who had measles. Mr. and Mrs. Martin are very popular young people and have a host of friends who wish them health, wealth and happiness. Mr. Martin is engaged in farming and the dairy business which he pushes with great energy and at which he is making a success, and having secured so worthy a young lady as a helpmeet, their continued success depends only on health. The bride will be missed greatly in Burlington, where her amiable disposition had made her a favorite with both young and old and her absence will be felt at every gathering of young people, she being one of the leaders in younger society. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and useful presents.

The Boone County Wool Growers' association met at Burlington, Monday, organized, and reorganized by electing J. H. Stephens, President, W. P. Beemon, Vice-President, L. T. Clore, Secretary-Treasurer. The following were elected to represent their precincts:

Verona—W. M. Whitson.
Rabbit Hash—J. H. Walton.
Petersburg—J. H. Stephens.
Florence—W. P. Beemon.
Burlington—L. T. Clore.

In union there is strength, a fact of which the wool growers of this county have become thoroughly convinced since they have been pooling their wool. They will have another pool this year. The wool pool is operated at a nominal cost to the growers and has given satisfaction every year. It is a pity that the tobacco pool could not be handled in as satisfactory a manner as the Boone County Wool Pool is operated.

A very large crowd attended the sale of J. E. Ransom, near Verona, last Thursday, notwithstanding it was a bad day for a public gathering. The stock sold brought good prices, and in the aggregate brought a large sum of money. The festive candidates were busy among the people and at night the man who had not felt the friendly grasp of one of these clever fellows was not to be found in that assemblage.

A gentleman by the name of McKinley stayed at the Boone House one night the past week. He was moving from DeMossville, Pendleton county to near Dillsboro, Indiana. He had shipped all his personal property and two buggies and three horses by train, and he and a hired man were going across the country with horses and buggies. They had traveled forty-four miles when they struck Burlington.

David Williamson, of the Waterloo neighborhood, reported that portion of the East Bend road over which he traveled last Monday coming to court as in first-class condition it having been dragged just before the freeze which left it as smooth as a floor. He expected to encounter a very bad road when he started from home. He is an advocate of the drag on the public road.

There was a small crowd in town last Monday, several of the candidates being among the absent, but those who were here were a busy set of fellows, working the crowd closely, and about every man in Burlington that day returned home in the afternoon with a large assortment of candidates' cards in his pocket.

The Boone county court has probated one dozen wills since the first of the year. The disposition of property by will is becoming much more common than it used to be. It is a very good way for a person to dispose of his property as he desires it to pass at his death.

WOODROW WILSON MADE PRESIDENT

Many Thousands Witness His Induction Into Office.

CEREMONIES ARE IMPRESSIVE

New Executive of Nation Takes Oath on East Portico of Capitol After Marshall Becomes Vice-President.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington, March 4.—Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey is president of the United States and Thomas Riley Marshall of Indiana is vice-president. The instant that the oath-taking ceremonies at noon today in front of the capitol were completed, the Democratic party of this country "came into its own" again after an absence of sixteen years from the precincts of executive power.

A throng of many thousands of people witnessed the newly elected president's induction into office. Nine-tenths of the members of the crowd were enthusiastically joyful, the other tenth cheered with them, as becoming good American citizens watching a governmental change ordered in accordance with the law and the Constitution.

The Bible which during each successive four years is kept as one of the treasures of the Supreme court, was the immediate instrument of the oath taking of Woodrow Wilson. Edward Douglass White, chief justice of the United States, held the Book for Mr. Wilson to rest his hands upon while he made solemn covenant to support the Constitution and the laws of the United States, and to fulfill the duties of his office as well and as faithfully as it lay within his power to do.

Thomas Riley Marshall swore fealty to the Constitution and to the people in the senate chamber, where for four years it will be his duty to preside over the deliberations of the members of the upper house of congress.

Ceremonies Simple and Impressive.

Both of the ceremonies proper were conducted in a severely simple but most impressive manner. The surroundings of the scene of the president's induction into office, however, were not so simple, for it was an out-of-door event and the great gathering of military, naval and uniformed civil organizations gave much more than a touch of splendor to the scene.

In the senate chamber, where the the oath was taken by the man now vice-president of the United States, there were gathered about 2,000 people; all that the upper house will contain without the risk of danger because of the rush and press of the multitudes. It is probable that nowhere else in the United States at any time are there gathered an equal number of men and women whose names are so widely known. The gathering in the senate chamber and later on the east portico of the capitol was composed largely of those prominent for their services in America, and in part of foreigners who have secured places for their names in the current history of the world's doings.

Arranged by Congress.

The arrangements of the ceremonies for the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas Riley Marshall were made by the joint committee on arrangements of congress. The senate section of this committee was ruled by a majority of Republicans, but there is Democratic testimony to the fact that the Republican senators were willing to outdo their Democratic brethren in the work of making orderly and impressive the inaugural ceremonies in honor of two chieftains of the opposition.

President Taft and President-elect Wilson rode together from the White House to the capitol, accompanied by two members of the congressional committee of arrangements. The vice-president-elect also rode from the White House to the capitol and in the carriage with him were the senate's president pro tempore, Senator Bacon of Georgia, and three members of the congressional committee of arrangements.

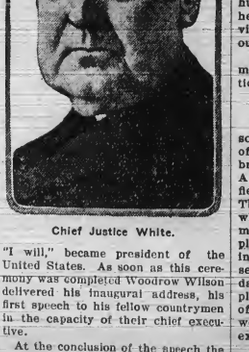
The admission to the senate chamber to witness the oath-taking of the vice-president was by ticket, and it is needless to say every seat was occupied. On the floor of the chamber were many former members of the senate who, because of the fact that they once held membership in that body, were given the privileges of the floor. After the hall was filled and all the minor officials of government and those privileged to witness the ceremonies were seated, William H. Taft and Woodrow Wilson, preceded by the sergeant-at-arms and the committee of arrangements, entered the senate chamber. They were followed immediately by Vice-President-elect Thomas R. Marshall, leaning upon the arm of the president pro tempore of the senate.

The president and the president-elect sat in the first row of seats directly in front and almost under the desk of the presiding officer. In the same row, but to their left, were the vice-president-elect and two former vice-presidents of the United States, Levi P. Morton of New York and Adlai A. Stevenson of Illinois.

When the distinguished company entered the chamber the senate was still under its old organization. The oath of office was immediately administered to Vice-President-elect Marshall, who thereupon became Vice-President Marshall. The prayer of the day was given by the chaplain of the senate, Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church, of which President Taft has been a member. After the prayer the vice-president administered the oath of office to all the newly chosen senators, and therewith the senate of the United States passed for the first time in years into the control of the Democratic party.

Procession to East Portico.

Immediately after the senate ceremonies a procession was formed to march to the platform of the east portico of the capitol, where Woodrow Wilson was to take the oath. The procession included the president and the president-elect, members of the Supreme court, both houses of congress, all of the foreign ambassadors, all of the heads of the executive departments, many governors of states and territories, Admiral Dewey of the navy and several high officers of the sea service, the chief of staff of the army and many distinguished persons from civil life. They were followed by the members of the press and by those persons who had succeeded in securing seats in the senate galleries to witness the day's proceedings.



When President Taft and the president-elect emerged from the capitol on to the portico they saw in front of them, reaching far back into the park to the east, an immense concourse of citizens. In the narrow line between the onlookers and the platform on which Mr. Wilson was to take the oath, were drawn up the cadets of the two greatest government schools, West Point and Annapolis, and flanking them were bodies of regulars and of national guardsmen. The whole scene was charged with color and with life.

On reaching the platform the president and president-elect took the seats reserved for them, seats which were flanked by many rows of benches rising tier on tier for the accommodation of the friends and families of the officers of the government and of the press.

Mr. Wilson Takes the Oath.

The instant that Mr. Taft and Mr. Wilson came within sight of the crowd there was a great outburst of applause, and the military bands struck quickly into "The Star Spangled Banner." Only a few bars of the music were played and then soldiers and civilians became silent to witness respectfully the oath taking and to listen to the address which followed.

The chief justice of the Supreme court delivered the oath to the president-elect, who, uttering the words,

Chief Justice White.

"I will," became president of the United States. As soon as this ceremony was completed Woodrow Wilson delivered his inaugural address, his first speech to his fellow countrymen in the capacity of their chief executive.

At the conclusion of the speech the bands played once more, and William Howard Taft, now ex-president of the United States, entered a carriage with the new president and, reversing the order of an hour before, sat on the left hand side of the carriage, while Mr. Wilson took "the seat of honor" on the right. The crowds cheered as they drove away to the White House, which Woodrow Wilson entered as the occupant and which William H. Taft immediately left as one whose lease had expired.

HAD TO ENFORCE THE LAW

Colonial Justice Could Not Overlook Infraction, Though Ready Enough With Hospitality.

The following is related of a good justice of the peace in Massachusetts in Colonial times.

On a cold night in winter a traveler called at his house for lodging. The ready hospitality of the justice was about being displayed when the stranger unluckily uttered a word which his host considered profane.

Whereupon he informed his guest that he was a magistrate, pointed out the nature of the offense, and explained the necessity of its being explated by sitting an hour in the stocks.

Remonstrance was unavailing for custom at that time allowed the magistrate to convict and punish at once, and in this case the magistrate acted as accuser, witness, jury, judge and sheriff, all in one.

Cold as it was, the worthy justice, aided by his son, conducted the traveler to the place of punishment, an open spot near the meeting house where the stocks were placed. Here the wayfarer was confined in the usual manner, the benevolent executor of the law remaining with him to beguile the time of its tedium by edifying conversation.

At the expiration of the hour he was reconducted to the house, and hospitalably entertained until the next morning, when the traveler departed. —Green Bag.

HEAT ASCRIBED TO BACTERIA

Discoveries of Scientist May Account for Otherwise Mysterious Burning of Haystacks.

The familiar phenomenon of the heating of hay in the stack has usually been ascribed to purely chemical reactions. Recent researches carried out by Miche, however, show that the process is a physiological one, due to bacteria and other lowly organisms. It was found that sterilized hay would not heat, but that if sprinkled with water contaminated with earth or ordinary hay it did so. A species of bacillus and a fungus were found to be chiefly responsible for temperatures up to 50 degrees centigrade. For higher temperatures another species of bacillus was found to be responsible. The work of the bacteria in the heating of hay illustrates the curious fact that these organisms usually end by killing themselves. In the center of a large heated stack the hay is found to be sterile. And this is attributed to the killing of the bacteria by the heat which they have themselves evolved. In other cases they are poisoned by the toxins which they themselves produce.

Such Is Fame.

Reginald de Koven, the composer of "Robin Hood," left the Knickerbocker theater, New York, recently after a rehearsal of some new chorus people and visited a barber shop across the street from the stage entrance. He climbed into a chair and asked for a shave.

"Rehearsing at the Knickerbocker?" asked the barber.

"Yes," replied Mr. de Koven.

"Actor?"

"No."

"Stage mechanic?"

"No."

"What are you doing on the stage then?"

"Did you ever hear of 'Robin Hood'?"

"Sure."

"I composed it."

"You did what?"

"I said composed it."

"Aw, go on," said the barber. "Robin Hood is a race horse."

Probably He Did.

'Gene Stevens, being asked if he knew a new story, deposed and said that he did not, but that he had a friend who was very sick and that the friend had had a good doctor, but that the doctor was puzzled about the case. So a consultation was held. Four other doctors came, looked wise, shook their heads, talked it over together and went away. Then the first doctor summoned the patient's wife.

"I am sorry to tell you that your husband is in a bad way," he said. "If he is religiously inclined I should advise that you send for a minister without delay."

"Yes, doctor. Shall I get just one minister or will he need a consultation?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Milking in Smoke.

In parts of Finland mosquitoes are so thick that fires have to be made of wet wood or green boughs and brush before the cows can be milked. A Finnish dairyman goes out into the field and starts a fire at milking time. The cows know as well as the milkers what this little fire and big smoke mean, and they run to get a good place leeward of the fire so as to be in great clouds of smoke. Finland sends out many million dollars of dairy stuff a year, yet the cows are plagued by insects during the whole of the short summer of about twelve weeks, and get no rest from the bites except when in the smoke.

Just then he caught sight of the visitor, blushed, and murmured:

"No, no; you must not expose your pedal extremities by extending them beyond the protective covering of the blankets, or you will lay your system open to attacks of catarrhal affection."

COULDN'T RELISH THE EGGS

Real Country Product Seemed Tasteless to Man Used to Cold Storage Variety.

"We had a bungalow this summer," said a man when he got back to town, "at a place where we could get really truly fresh eggs. When we wanted eggs we would go over and ask a farmer if he could let us have half a dozen or a dozen and he would say:

"'Well, I'll go out and see.'

"And then he would go out and bring us in some eggs, absolutely fresh laid eggs, right out of the hen's nests. And what eggs they were! A luxury impossible in the city; but, strange as it might seem, a luxury that, however one's tastes might be cultivated in other directions, not everybody would appreciate.

"We had a visitor up from the city one week and on the first day he was there we gave him some of those eggs for breakfast; we thought we would surprise him; but as it turned out he surprised us. We watched him unobstrusively, expecting to hear him with the first mouthful break out in praise of the same, but he never said a word, and he looked sort of strange over them someway, and then we said to him:

"'Aren't those wonderful eggs?'

"'They are very nice indeed,' he said, 'but there doesn't seem to be much taste to them; is there?'

"You see, he had become so accustomed to older eggs, and to storage eggs, with their stored up, accumulated flavor, eggs that had a very distinct taste of some sort, that at first our new laid eggs with their delicately delightful flavor had no appeal for him; on the contrary they seemed tasteless. But he came to love them before he went away."

SOLD HOSE "SIGHT UNSEEN"

In His Capacity as Auctioneer Indianapolis' Mayor Also Indulged in Some Pithy Remarks.

Mayor Lew Shank was auctioneer at Terre Haute for the Woman Franchise league in its sale of Christmas packages and had a laughing crowd in front of him. The articles were sold "sight unseen," but toward the last the mayor peeped and hinted at what he was offering. For instance:

"This box contains hose; they come above the ankles." A girl bought them. They were men's socks.

"Are you married?" asked the mayor.

"No," said the girl.

"Well, then, you will have no use for them."

Mayor Shank sold a box containing fancy suspenders and told the suffragists that soon they would be worn by women as well as men.

"And, look here," said he when holding up a dainty article. "Hand embroidered and hand perfumed. I think it would do to stick down some of these low-necked dresses a lot of the women wear. I'd rather see a girl with her dresses short at the bottom than at the neck."—Indianapolis News.

Use of Resin in Wine.

Ancient Greeks found both advantages and disadvantages in the use of resin in their wine, which the modern Greeks continue. It was claimed that the resin not only made the wine more full bodied, but communicated an agreeable bouquet and a certain degree of raciness. On the other hand, it was admitted that resined wine when new was unwholesome and apt to induce headache and giddiness. But the real purpose of the resin, pitch, tar or pure turpentine was to counteract the tendency of inferior wines to turn into vinegar. Other things used for the same object were vegetable ashes, gypsum, burnt marble, calcined shells, almonds, parched salt, goat's milk, cedar cones, gall nuts, blazing pine torches and red hot irons. Also salts of lead, which were found so poisonous that eventually they had to be prohibited, with severe penalties.

New Domestic Service.

It is said that a turn has at last come in the tide and that thousands of young women are leaving British workshops to seek domestic service. Many of these are going to Canada, and a still greater number to Australia and New Zealand, where such service is particularly well paid. Few come to the United States. A Melbourne journal says: "We heard of one of these new arrivals who was a willing worker. After several days she produced a dainty dish surrounded by scalloped paper. Her mistress complimented her upon the decorative work. 'Lor' bless me, mum,' said the girl, 'that's one thing I'm clever at. You see, mum, my work in London was a'makin' of paper linin's for coffins.'"

Sage of Chelsea.

One day Carlyle was walking with a friend near the Marble Arch end of Hyde Park and had stopped to listen to a stump orator addressing a crowd on the question of the franchise.

Suddenly a rough hewn worthy detached himself from a group and without word of greeting or other preamble addressed himself to Carlyle in a borad Annandale accent: "Whit, now, ye'll be Tam Carlyle frae Ecclefechan?" The great man nodded, his eyes twinkling. "An' they ca' ye the Sage o' Chelsea?" "They do, puir buddies" (this in the same vernacular tem). "Weel," said the man scornfully, "I've heard of the wurrd applyit in connexion wi' a burrd I'll no name, but never afore this with a self-respecting man."—Westminster Gazette.

LISTENING TO AN INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

TALES OF OTHER INAUGURATIONS

Incidents That Marked the Day in Former Years.

WASHINGTON'S OATH-TAKING

New York Scene of His Induction—Story of Jefferson's Simplicity a Myth—"People's Day" When Jackson Took Office.

By E. W. PICKARD.

Woodrow Wilson is the twenty-seventh man to be inaugurated president of the United States, but the twenty-fifth to be inaugurated in Washington. George Washington took the oath of office in New York and John Adams in Philadelphia. Moreover, the Father of His Country was not inaugurated on March 4.

Arriving at Elizabethtown Point, N. J., on April 23, he entered a barge rowed by 12 pilots clad in white, and passed through the Kill von Kull into New York harbor, which was full of all manner of craft gaily decorated and loaded with cheering crowds. The Spanish man of war Gaiveston broke out the colors of all nations, and fired a salute of 13 guns, to which the American frigate North Carolina responded.

Arrival at New York.

As Washington stepped ashore at Murray's wharf the guns of the Battery roared out their salute and Gov. George Clinton and many members of congress saluted the first president. He was taken to the residence of Samuel Osgood, and for an entire week there was revelry throughout the city.

Finally, on April 30, all was ready for the inauguration. Washington was escorted to Federal hall, then the capitol, which stood on the site of the present sub-treasury at Wall and Broad streets. The streets had been filled since sunrise with waiting crowds, and the enthusiasm was intense. In the senate chamber Washington was joined by Adams, Knox, Hamilton, von Steuben and a few others, and all of them appeared on the balcony. Robert R. Livingston, chancellor of New York, administered the oath and cried "Long live George Washington, president of the United States," whereupon there broke out a mighty tumult of cheering, bell-ringing and the noise of cannon. Returning to the senate chamber, President Washington read his inaugural address and the history of the United States under the constitution began.

Myth About Jefferson.

If you are a good Democrat, no doubt you believe that Thomas Jefferson rode unattended to the capitol on horseback, tied his horse to the fence, and was inaugurated with less ceremony than would attend the taking of office by a keeper of a dog pound. Such is the old story, but it is pure myth and is first found in a book of travels in the United States written by John Davis, an Englishman. Davis asserted that he was an eye-witness of the simple ceremony which he described, but it has been proved that he was not in Washington at the time.

The inauguration of Jefferson, which marked the defeat of the Federalist party of Hamilton, Washington, Adams and Jay, was the first to take place in Washington. The newly established national capital, then but a few months old, contained only 3,000 inhabitants, many of them negroes; the houses were mostly huts and the streets muddy roads. The big event was thus described in the Philadelphia Aurora of March 11; 1801:

"At an early hour on Wednesday, March 4, the city of Washington presented a spectacle of uncommon animation occasioned by the addition to its usual population of a large body of citizens from the adjacent districts. A discharge from the company of Washington artillery ushered in the day, and about one o'clock the Alexandria company of riflemen with the company of artillery paraded in front of the President's lodgings. At 12 o'clock Thomas Jefferson, attended by a number of his fellow citizens, among whom were many members of congress, repaired to the capitol. His dress was, as usual, that of a plain citizen, without any distinctive badge of office. He entered the capitol under a discharge from the artillery. As soon as he withdrew a discharge from the artillery was made. The remainder of the day was devoted to purposes of festivity, and at night there was a pretty general illumination."

Jackson Almost Mobbed.

When Andrew Jackson was elected in the fall of 1828 the people of the west and the radical elements of the south scored a triumph and he was hailed as a "man of the people." This character was emphasized on the day of his inauguration the following March, for never before had such a huge motley throng gathered in Washington. Jackson's wife had died not long before, and he asked that the ceremonies be made very simple, but the masses were too hilarious to heed the request. The weather was pleasant and the east front of the capitol was used for the first time for the inauguration. In front of it surged 10,000 persons who were restrained only by a great iron chain. Jackson rode to the capitol on a white horse and went through the ceremonies with dignity, and started back to the White House. Then began his troubles, for the people broke loose with a vengeance.

"The president was literally pursued by a motley concourse of people, riding, running, helter-skelter, striving who should first gain admittance into the executive mansion, where it was understood that refreshments would be distributed," wrote a contemporary, Mrs. Samuel Harrison Smith. In their mad rush the crowds smashed furniture and dishes and seized the food as if they were starving. "The confusion became more and more appalling. At one moment the president, who had retreated until he was pressed against the wall of the apartment, could only be secured against serious danger by a number of gentlemen linking arms and forming themselves into a barrier. It was then that the windows were thrown open, and the living throng found an outlet. It was the people's day, the people's president, and the people would rule."

Taken figuratively, that might not be so poor a description of the plight of presidents in these later days.

Exposure Killed Harrison.

For 12 years the Democrats controlled the destinies of the country, and then the Whigs elected William Henry Harrison, who was inaugurated March 4, 1841. By this time transportation was made easier by the building of railways and the crowd that flocked to Washington was immense. It was much better behaved than that which "honored" Jackson, but it was hungry for offices.

Cold, wintry blasts swept the streets of Washington that March day, and Harrison, already old and rather feeble, rode his white horse without cloak or overcoat, and with his hat off in salute to the cheering crowds. The line of march was unprecedentedly long, and so was the inaugural address, and then the president led the procession back to the White House. The exposure was too much for him and within one month he was dead.

Lincoln's First Inauguration.

Immensely dramatic was the first inauguration of Abraham Lincoln in 1861. From the day of his election threats against his life were numerous, and detectives discovered and foiled an organized plot to assassinate him on his way to Washington. The big bodies of troops that had been employed at former inaugurations merely to add pomp to the occasion now were used for the protection of the president. As he rode to the capitol in a carriage he was preceded by a company of sappers and miners; a double file of cavalry rode on each side, and in the rear were infantry and riflemen. On house tops and in windows all along Pennsylvania avenue were posted riflemen.

The day had opened cloudy, chilly and dismal, but as the president stepped forward to take the oath from the aged Chief Justice Taney the sun burst through the clouds and shone full on the bowed head of the man who was to give up his life for the country he loved. Lincoln himself noticed this "sunburst" and drew from it a happy augury.

AN AMENDMENT

To Constitution to Permit Convicts to be Worked on Roads Will be Submitted Next November.

At the regular election next November a vote will be taken on the constitutional amendment proposed by the Legislature at the 1912 session to permit the working of convicts on the public roads. In view of this the State Board of Prison Commissioners this week decided that it will grant no options for the renewal for four years of expiring contracts for prison labor, and Chairman Daniel E. O'Sullivan has made the announcement that "any prison labor contract that may be made in the future will be subject to any change in the constitution or legislation."

This decision is the direct outgrowth of the proposal of the Reliance Manufacturing Co. to exercise an option for renewal of a contract for the daily employment of 75 of the convicts in the Eddyville prison. The Prison Board has no contract directly with this company. The prisoners are subleased from Wm. E. Goodbar and the Kentucky Shoe Manufacturing Company for 67 cents each per day, while the original contractors pay the State 50 cents each per day for the use of the 75 men.

This take-off of 17 cents a man a day displeased the present Commissioners, and they submitted the legality of the option to the Attorney General from whom they received an opinion that the option of the Reliance Company is nonenforceable because it is not satisfactory to both parties and there is no consideration for it. The overplus is but one of the many examples of the evils of the system of contract employment of Kentucky's prison labor, and there has long been a loud clamor for a change. It has been suggested that, while the Commissioners are on the subject, it might be well for them to inquire into the legality of the act of their predecessors in turning over from one firm to another 600 prisoners for a period of seven years without the formality of advertising or of receiving bids.

If the constitutional amendment is adopted the state will not be able to secure the services of these 600 men at Frankfort until January 1, 1919, should the contract be held binding and the remainder of the able-bodied men at Frankfort Prison are under contract on il January 1, 1915.

Allie W. Young has been acting as special circuit judge in Breathitt county, and has been going after the violators of law without fear or favor. If the course he is pursuing on the bench had been followed for the last twenty years many of that county's prominent citizens would not have been consigned to untimely graves. He knows the people with whom he is dealing and the rich and the poor look alike to him when he is on the bench, and even handed justice is his motto. He can not be intimidated.

The farmers want to get busy with their plows now.

(Flemingsburg Gazette.)

A variety of Maysville booze appears to develop proclivities for sleep in a dangerous form, its users frequently selecting the railroad track on which to take a nap.

—o—

(Trenton Progress.)

Our planters have been active this week preparing for a 1913 tobacco crop. Everywhere the work of preparing and burning plant beds has been going on during the few pretty springlike days.

—o—

(Danville Advocate.)

Several robins and red birds have already put in an appearance about town but we'll wait until the first martin arrives before we can be induced to think that spring has really come. And, besides, "Uncle" Cy, says that "It's a leetle too early yet to plant mardi-grass seed."

—o—

(Lexington Herald.)

Always about Washington's birthday a flood of Ulster county N. Y., Gazettes come out of their hiding to catch unwary newspaper men. There may be some "original" copies of the Gazette printed January 1, 1800, telling of the death of the Father of his Country, but they are in museums. The others are fac-similes.

—o—

(Pikeville Kentuckian.)

It is a fair estimate to say that there are 2,000 men in Pike county who will take money for their votes as they would for a sack of corn, and with no thought of having done wrong. Anyother fair estimate is that 2,000 other men in the county sell their votes in a round-about way by getting money and promising other votes, labor, etc., in return for same.

—o—

(Columbia News.)

Our invitation to discuss the building of good roads by a bond issue has brought to the front several who seem to see much danger to the dear people by buying good roads on reasonable time, and manifest an interest in a future generation that far surpassed their present sacrifices to aid the present out of the mire of mud and other disagreeable conditions. They are unwilling to leave to posterity substantial improvements, good property values and active industries if accompanied by a small amount of original cost. They prefer to entail it with mud and depression, simply to avoid a reasonable obligation.

(Princeton Leader.)

Our friend Ford Lewis, of the Rock Spring community, was in the city last week. Speaking of a recent article appearing in the papers, stating that a Boyle county man had succeeded in raising a strain of chickens that grow wool instead of feathers, Ford said: "Now, most people who read that will say it is a yarn. If it wasn't for my own observation and experience I would say the same thing, but I am prepared to believe most anything out of the ordinary. I've got a pond down on my farm that was stocked some years ago with German carp. They grow mighty big, but we found out they ain't fit to eat, and accordingly nobody had fished in the pond till last summer. I went down one day and threw in a hook, more out of curiosity to see how big they were getting. In a little while I hooked one, and succeeded in dragging a 20 pounder to the bank. It was as white as cotton, and imagine my astonishment when, on examining it closely, I found that instead of scales it was covered from gills to tail with as fine a coat of feathers as ever grew on a goose's breast. I seined the pond next day, and the feather bed I sleep on these cold winter nights is the product of that day's work."

Split Log Drag.

(Owensboro Inquirer.)

All hats off to those enterprising farmers who are giving the King drag a thorough tryout on various Daviess county roads. It is reported that in every case it is proving a success.

—o—

(Paducah News-Democrat.)

According to report Judge Lang found on his first "Road Thursday" that the split-log drag used immediately after rains is the solution of the good roads problem.

—o—

(Fulton News.)

Go in whichever direction one pleases from Fulton and there will be seen the good results of the road drag. Since the roads have dried and the weather has been good, the road drags of Fulton county have been doing their perfect work. The News welcomes the good roads awakening.

—o—

(Bardwell News.)

There is but one proper way to secure funds for bettering the condition of the public roads, and that one way is by selling bonds for that purpose. The question of better roads is becoming more popular every year and it is only a matter of time until Carlisle county's thoroughfares will be built of gravel or some other similar substance, and the present generation had just as well have some of the benefits of better roads. The only reasonable way to secure the improvement is by selling bonds.

—o—

(Hodgenville Herald.)

When a county issues bonds and the money is expended under the supervision of competent engineers on the roads of the county it is considered an investment

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recent I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS,
Erlanger, Ky.

and not an expense. This is absolutely the only way we will ever have good roads over the county unless every citizen should come along and offer the county authorities money, time and labor; and it would take every citizen in the county to make this possible. For the past 10 years or more the county has been expending an average of about $7,000 a year on the roads, and fully this much has been made up in free labor, and the private subscriptions will bring the total of good, hard American dollars that have been expended in this county to build roads up to $160,000 and yet we have no good roads.

—o—

(Providence Enterprise.)

The King split log drag is being tried out on the streets of Providence for the first time and the wonder now is that it was never tried before, after all the advertising this wonderful device for working the roads has had over the country. The credit for having it now is due to Prof. W. B. Snow, assistant cashier of the Providence Banking Company, who, after seeing one at work in a neighboring city, came home so enthused that he hied away to the woods Tuesday, cut the timber and made one of these remarkable drags with his own hands, which he brought home and presented to the city. The city authorities started the drag to work Wednesday morning and the results are very satisfactory to all who have seen its execution. It is the best thing we have ever seen for smoothing up a dirt road and if the city will keep using it at the proper time, just after a rain, our streets will be kept in much better condition. It is a very simple device and the cost of making is so absurdly small that it is a wonder that the drags are not in more general use. They could be used on the country roads with great profit and we would have better roads than ever before.

A LONG LIFE ENDED

One of The County's Oldest Citizens and Successful Farmers Passes Away.

Was A Member of One of the County's Oldest Families.

John Stephens, son of John Stephens, who died in 1856, and Frances Faulkoner Stephens, who died in 1847, was born December 17, 1826 on the farm now owned by his brother Judge Ben Stephens near Florence. He was married to Madeline Rice in May, 1849, and to this union were born nine children, six boys and three girls. One boy dying in infancy and another, Owen, who died in the fall of 1906. Of the seven living children Mrs. Fannie Gaines lives in Denver, Col.; Ben Stephens in Ashland, Kansas; Mrs. Eunie Arnold, in Missouri; E. K. Stephens in this county; R. J. Stephens, in Missouri; Ed. Stephens, in Delhi, Ohio, and Miss Lizzie Stephens, in Erlanger, Ky. In the early seventies he made the Good Confession and since that time has been prominent in the work of the Christian church. He died in Erlanger, Ky., Feb. 21, 1913.

John Stephens lived in Boone county the whole of his life save the last few years which he spent in Erlanger, altho he still claimed Bullittsville as his residence and always came back home to vote.

He was a very active man and his energy in the business world was largely expressed in his farm work and management. Until he became too old to ride horse back he managed his own farm. He met with reverses but always with his mind on the bright side he conquered all trials and his last days of this life were spent visiting with his children and living over again and again with his friends the many things of the past.

His family history is linked with the early history of our county. Especially with the history of the Desciples of of Christ was the Stephens name known. His father's house was the preacher's home for such pioneer preachers as Walter Scott, John Smith and other men of that day. John Stephens was a church going man. He was a devoted and consistent worker in the Bible school. Many younger men and women and especially those who have worshiped at Bullittsville remember his happy spirit while presiding over the Sunday school or at the Lord's Table. Many of his characteristics should be emulated by Christian people.

Mr. Stephens had been a Mason since October, 1865, when he was made a Mason in Good Faith Lodge at Florence, and at the time of his death was a member of Burlington lodge, altho Good Faith Lodge had charge of his fuenral service, the religious services being conducted at Erlanger Christian church by Revs. Garrison, Buflington and Edgar Riley, after which the remains were conveyed by undertaker C. Scott Chambers to the Rice cemetery near Union and interred by the side of those of his wife, who died several years ago, and thus was concluded the earthy career of one loved in life and mourned in death. The pallbearers were Dr. Blackerby and M. Rogers, of Erlanger; and Jas. L. Riley, of Ludlow, and G. G. Hughes, W. D. Cropper and W. L. Riddell, of Burlington. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful.

You judge a man not by what he promises to do, but by what he has done. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judged by this standard has no superior. People everywhere speak of it in the highest terms of praise. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Miss Edna Beall, of Francesville neighborhood, who dismissed her room in the public school here several weeks ago on account of so many of her pupils being ill, returned on Monday of last week to resume her work, which she is very anxious to complete in time to enter a normal school for the summer term.

Clifford Hedges, a prominent farmer from out on Gunpowder Heights, was in town, last Friday, with a new horse that attracted considerable attention on the part of the population that is up on horse-ology. Mr. Hedges is one of the leading dealers in horse flesh in this part of the county, and handles more horses than any other man in this neighborhood.

W. C. Johnson, candidate for assessor, was in Burlington last Friday night and gave the boys who play checkers, a few pointers. He was somewhat selfish in his playing, taking every game in which he took part, but he was playing against the entire house at once, giving every one present a chance to butt in when he thought he saw a good move to be made. They produce checker players at Beaver.

The Recorder has been informed by the Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service in Cincinnati that it is impossible to get its packages on the morning mail train so that the Walton and other offices that go south over the Q & C can be delivered on Thursday morning, but says that there is no excuse for their delivery being delayed until the following morning and that he is investigating the matter.

The Kentucky Democrats in Congress are urging the appointment of John R. Downing, of Georgetown, for Controller of the Currency.

Children are much more likely to contract the contagious diseases when they have colds. Whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever and consumption are diseases that are often contracted when the child has a cold. That is why all medical authorities say beware of colds. For the quick cure of colds you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by J. W. Berkshire and Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Patterson & Rouse, of Paynes Depot, and Hugh Atkinson, of Mt. Sterling, held a very successful Hampshire sale in Louisville, on Tuesday, Feb. 25th. Fifty head sold at an average of $40 per head. A very even range of prices prevailed, and the demand was strong. E. C. Stone, Secretary of the American Hampshire Association, was on hand with liberal mall bids on at least half of the consignment. He purchased hogs to go to breeders as far west as Kansas and topped the sale, paying $100 for Perfection Gem.

L. C. Scothorn, the Idlewild merchant, intends to put a four ton auto truck in the freight business between Idlewild and Cincinnati about the first of March, and the indications are that the people in his neighborhood will give him all the business in the freight line that they have. He will be prepared to haul livestock and will be able to make two round trips a day to the city and will go on as many days in the week as the business will require. Mr. Scothorn is a hustler when it comes to business and if anybody can make a success of that business in his territory, he is the man.

Taking Burlington's local fur dealer's purchase during the season as a basis upon which to make an estimate, it is evident that the trappers in this county sell about two thousand dollars worth of furs every season, which is quite an amount of money to derive from the capture of skunk, minks, weasles, coons, foxes and other native wild animals. A large number of persons engage in trapping every winter and many of them pick up considerable money in that way. Some of the farmers object to the killing of the skunks which they claim are very industrious in the extermination of ground mice and many other things that destroy their produce, but the trappers go ahead and trap all the skunks they can.

It seems that the candidates can not resist the temptation to enter upon an active campaign, notwithstanding the long time before the date of the primary election and the bad roads and inclement weather that they are sure to encounter during the month. There is no question but what they will be much more welcome guests two months hence, and there is no reason why they should not delay their campaign several weeks. When the roads and the weather are good a candidate can make much better headway getting over the county, and everything will run a great deal smoother than it is now possible. If the candidates will leave the matter to the ladies they will have the campaign deferred several weeks yet.

Farmers of Bath county, Ky., are making preparations for the 1913 crop and according to reports this year will mark the biggest acreage of both corn and tobacco seen for many years. It is estimated the 1912 crop of tobacco brought the farmers of Bath county over $500,000 and consequently they were able to pay off old standing debts and mortgages. So encouraging were the proceeds from this crop that every available piece of land will be cultivated this year and many farmers who heretofore gave most of their attention to the raising of stock, will this time devote most of their time and energies to the tilling of the soil. Already quite a few tobacco beds have been burnt and sowed and a great deal of land has been plowed preparatory to planting the 1913 crop.

An order putting into effect the collect on delivery feature of the parcel post on July 1st, has been signed by Postmaster General Hitchcock. This is simply making mail carriers collecting agents for any and everybody who has any thing which they sell and can be transmitted by parcels post. The carriers have enough duties to perform without being made collectors for Tom, Dick and Harry. If the party who sends the parcel is not willing to trust his customer, a mail carrier should not be required to collect his bill or bring his package back to the postoffice. The labor of the rural carrier is increasing rapidly, and they should not be required to perform duties that are entirely out of their line. This feature has been adopted in order to compete with the express companies, which handle packages on the C. O. D. plan.

Tobacco Suit Explained.

In Tuesday's issue of the Kentucky Post there was an article with reference to the suit filed by Elmer B. Stansifer and W. M. Hutison and others against Clarence LeBus and others known as the Burley Tobacco Co. which states that following arguments the court overruled a motion for a receiver, etc. The fact of the matter is that the motion argued last Monday was for the appointment of Commissioners to hold an election of Directors for said society and the court did appoint them.

This suit was brought from the fact that the officers of his society refused to let a representative of Kenton county see the books of said company and after the sult was brought Judge Tracy made an order that the books should be shown. In this same article it recites a section of the by-laws of said company but it fails to give any of the main facts as laid down by the court, viz:—That the members of the district board of the Burley Tobacco Society was elected each year by the growers, who have pooled their crop for that year, thus the poolers in 1909 elected members of the district board, which incorporated the Burley Tobacco Society. All of these poolers are now shareholders in the Corporation.

The district board for 1909 represented the poolers of 1909 and no others. It follows therefore that the 1909 poolers when the new board is elected will be without EVEN INDIRECT REPRESENTATION in the election of directors of the Burley Tobacco Company.

If these shareholders fail to pool a future crop or if they discontinue raising tobacco they at once lose all right to a voice in the affairs of the Company. So also if they die or assign their shares or their assignees or their estates become shareholders in a CORPORATION WITHOUT RIGHT TO A VOICE OR TO REPRESENTATION OF ANY KIND WHATSOEVER. IT HARDLY SEEMS NECESSARY TO DEMONSTRATE THAT THE SCHEME devised by defendants for the control of the Burley Tobacco Company VIOLATES THE PLAIN PROVISIONS OF THE CONSTITUTION AND STATUTES OF THIS STATE. Indeed the impression obtained by the court from the argument of counsel for the defendants, was that counsel was not seriously contending that legal sanction could be found for the plan of organization set forth in the above quoted sections of the articles of incorporation."

The articles so far published in regard to this suit have been misleading to the tobacco growers who are interested in this suit and in justice to all concerned both sides of this question shoula be given.

The farmers and growers of tobacco went into this organization to better their condiions and to try to get an equitable price for their crop but they also desire to have a voice in the company and have some representation in the management of the concern, but in the year 1912 when no pool was attempted in Kenton county, yet this company undertakes to vote Kenton county's stock without giving the stockholders an opportunity to vote for a representative.

Confederate Pensions.

A special levy to meet the Confederate pension appropriation probably will be recommended to the next General Assembly. The schools, roads, banking and game and fish departments have specified revenues set apart for them, while the Confederate pensions, although falling due on a certain day every three months comes out of any money not otherwise appropriated in the general their chances with the outstanding warrants and current expenexpenditure fund and must take ses of the State, as well as other appropriations.

The present plan of paying them has been found unsatisfactory at the very outset. Two hundred and eighty-four pensions, aggregating about $22,000, fell due February 5th, but they have not been paid yet, nor does anyone seem to know when they will be paid. It is the intention to pay pension claims in cash, when sufficient cash is available. The Pension Board was in session in Frankfort last week and probably two or three hundred more pension claims were allowed. Most of these will date back to applications made during or before last July. When they will be paid no man knoweth, and all that the applicants can do is to patiently wait.

WILSON SPEAKS TO THE NATION

Inaugural Address Delivered by the New President.

SEES WORK OF RESTORATION

Task of Victorious Democracy Is to Square Every Process of National Life With Standards Set Up at the Beginning.

Washington, March 4.—President Wilson's inaugural address, remarkable for its brevity, was listened to with the greatest interest by the vast throng which was gathered in front of the capitol's east portico, and at its close there was heard nothing but praise for its eloquence and high moral tone. The address in full was as follows:

There has been a change of government. It began two years ago, when the house of representatives became Democratic by a decisive majority. It has now been completed. The senate about to assemble will also be Democratic. The offices of president and vice-president have been put into the hands of Democrats. What does the change mean? That is the question that is uppermost in our minds today. That is the question I am going to try to answer, in order, if I may, to interpret the occasion.

Purpose of the Nation.

It means much more than the mere success of a party. The success of a party means little except when the nation is using that party for a large and definite purpose. No one can mistake the purpose for which the nation now seeks to use the Democratic party. It seeks to use it to interpret a change in its own plans and point of view. Some old things with which we had grown familiar, and which had begun to creep into the very habit of our thought and of our lives, have altered their aspect as we have latterly looked critically upon them, with fresh, awakened eyes; have dropped their disguises and shown themselves alien and sinister. Some new things, as we look frankly upon them, willing to comprehend their real character, have come to assume the aspect of things long believed in and familiar, stuff of our own convictions. We have been refreshed by a new insight into our own life.

We see that in many things that life is very great. It is incomparably great in its material aspects, in its body of wealth, in the diversity and sweep of its energy, in the industries which have been conceived and built up by the genius of individual men and the limitless enterprise of groups of men. It is great, also, very great, in its moral force. Nowhere else in the world have noble men and women exhibited in more striking form the beauty and energy of sympathy and helpfulness and counsel in their efforts to rectify wrong, alleviate suffering, and set the weak in the way of strength and hope. We have built up, moreover, a great system of government, which has stood through a long age as in many respects a model for those who seek to set liberty upon foundations that will endure against fortuitous change, against storm and accident. Our life contains every great thing, and contains it in rich abundance.

Evils That Have Come.

But the evil has come with the good, and much fine gold has been corroded. With riches has come inexcusable waste. We have squandered a great part of what we might have used, and have not stopped to conserve the exceeding bounty of nature, without which our genius for enterprise would have been worthless and impotent, scorning to be careful, shamefully prodigal as well as admirably efficient. We have been proud of our industrial achievements, but we have not hitherto stopped thoughtfully enough to count the human cost, the cost of lives snuffed out, of energies overtaxed and broken, the fearful physical and spiritual cost to the men and women and children upon whom the dead weight and burden of it all has fallen pitilessly the years through. The groans and agony of it all had not yet reached our ears, the solemn, moving undertone of our life, coming up out of the mines and factories and out of every home where the struggle had its intimate and familiar seat. With the great government went many deep secret things which we too long delayed to look into and scrutinize with candid, fearless eyes. The great government we loved has too often been made use of for private and selfish purposes, and those who used it had forgotten the people.

At last a vision has been vouchsafed us of our life as a whole. We see the bad with the good, the debased and decadent with the sound and vital. With this vision we approach new affairs. Our duty is to cleanse, to reconsider, to restore, to correct the evil without impairing the good, to purify and humanize every process of our common life without weakening or sentimentalizing it. There has been something crude and heartless and unfeeling in our haste to succeed and be great. Our thought has been 'Let every man look out for himself, let every generation look out for itself,' while we reared giant machinery which made it impossible that any but those who stood at the levers of control should have a chance to look out for themselves. We had not forgotten our morals. We remembered well enough that we had set up a policy which was meant to serve the humblest as well as the most powerful, with an eye single to the standards of justice and fair play, and remembered it with pride. But we were very heedless and in a hurry to be great.

Things to Be Altered.

We have come now to the sober second thought. The scales of heedlessness have fallen from our eyes. We have made up our minds to square every process of our national life again with the standards we so proudly set up at the beginning and have always carried at our hearts. Our work is a work of restoration.

We have itemized with some degree of particularity the things that ought to be altered and here are some of the chief items: A tariff which cuts us off from our proper part in the commerce of the world, violates the just principles of taxation, and makes the government a facile instrument in the hands of private interests; a banking and currency system based upon the necessity of the government to sell its bonds fifty years ago and perfectly adapted to concentrating cash and restricting credits; an industrial system which, take it on all its sides, financial as well as administrative, holds capital in leading strings, restricts the liberties and limits the opportunities of labor, and exploits without renewing or conserving the natural resources of the country; a body of agricultural activities never yet given the efficiency of great business undertakings or served as it should be through the instrumentality of science taken directly to the farm, or afforded the facilities of credit best suited to its practical needs; water courses undeveloped, waste places unreclaimed, forests untended, fast disappearing without plan or prospect of renewal, unregarded waste heaps at every mine. We have studied as perhaps no other nation has the most effective means of production, but we have not studied cost or economy as we should either as organizers of industry, as statesmen, or as individuals.

Government for Humanity.

Nor have we studied and perfected the means by which government may be put at the service of humanity, in safeguarding the health of the nation, the health of its men and its women and its children, as well as their rights in the struggle for existence. This is no sentimental duty. The firm basis of government is justice, not pity. These are matters of justice. There can be no equality or opportunity, the first essential of justice in the body politic, if men and women and children be not shielded in their lives, their very vitality, from the consequences of great industrial and social processes which they cannot alter, control, or singly cope with. Society must see to it that it does not itself crush or weaken or damage its own constituent parts. The first duty of law is to keep sound the society it serves. Sanitary laws, pure food laws, and laws determining conditions of labor which individuals are powerless to determine for themselves are intimate parts of the very business of justice and legal efficiency.

These are some of the things we ought to do, and not leave the others undone, the old-fashioned, never-to-be-neglected, fundamental safeguarding of property and of individual right. This is the high enterprise of the new day; to lift everything that concerns our life as a nation to the light that shines from the hearthfire of every man's conscience and vision of the right. It is inconceivable that we should do this as partisans; it is inconceivable we should do it in ignorance of the facts as they are or in blind haste. We shall restore, not destroy. We shall deal with our economic system as it is and as it may be modified, not as it might be if we had a clean sheet of paper to write upon; and step by step we shall make it what it should be, in the spirit of those who question their own wisdom and seek counsel and knowledge, not shallow self-satisfaction or the excitement of excursions whither they cannot tell. Justice, and only justice, shall always be our motto.

Nation Deeply Stirred.

And yet it will be no cool process of mere science. The nation has been deeply stirred, stirred by a solemn passion, stirred by the knowledge of wrong, of ideals lost, of government too often debauched and made an instrument of evil. The feelings with which we face this new age of right and opportunity sweep across our heart-strings like some air out of God's own presence, where justice and mercy are reconciled and the judge and the brother are one. We know our task to be no mere task of politics but a task which shall search us through and through, whether we be able to understand our time and the need of our people, whether we be indeed their spokesmen and interpreters, whether we have the pure heart to comprehend and the rectified will to choose our high course of action.

This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication. Here muster, not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity. Men's hearts wait upon us; men's lives hang in the balance; men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do. Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try? I summon all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men, to my side. God helping me, I will not fail them, if they will but counsel and sustain me!

Possibly the era of superstition is withering away. One of the great steamship lines is to start out its vessels on Fridays hereafter. Yet the canny traveler still refuses to sleep in upper 13.

BRONCHITIS SUFFERER

Takes Druggist's Advice With Splendid Result.

If anyone should know the worth of a medicine, it is the retail druggist who sells it over his counter every day in the week, and is in a position to know what remedy gives the best satisfaction.

Mrs. Frank H. Uline, of West Sand Lake, N. Y., says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from bronchitis. Last July I had an attack which was more severe than any, and my friends thought I could not recover from it. Then I was advised by my druggist to try Vinol, which I did, with wonderful results. My cough has left me; I have gained in weight and appetite, and I am as strong as ever I was. I advise all who have bronchitis, chronic coughs, or who are run down to try Vinol."

It is the combined action of the medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver, without the greasy oil, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron that makes Vinol so efficient.

Remember, we guarantee Vinol to do just what we say — we pay back your money if it does not. R. W. Jones, Druggist, Walton, Ky.

WILSON HONORED BY FINE PARADE

New President Reviews Immense Inaugural Procession.

AVENUE A GLORIOUS SIGHT

By EDWARD B. CLARK.

Washington, March 4.—Woodrow Wilson, as ex-president of Princeton, rode down Pennsylvania avenue today, and later rode up the same avenue as president of the United States, and as the highest officer of government a few minutes thereafter reviewed the multitudes of soldiers and civilians which, with playing bands and flying flags, marched by to give him proper official and personal honor.

For several nights Pennsylvania avenue has been a glory of light. Today it was a glory of color, movement and music. here are 300,000 inhabitants of the city of Washington. Its temporary population is nearer the half million mark. The absentees from the flanking lines of the parade were mostly the policemen, who were given orders to protect the temporarily vacated residences of the capital.

Woodrow Wilson asked that "Jeffersonian simplicity" be observed in all things which had to do with his inauguration. The command for Jeffersonian simplicity seems to be susceptible to elastic construction. There was nothing savoring of courts or royalty, but there was evidence in plenty that the American people love uniforms and all kinds of display which can find a place within the limits of democratic definition. It was a good parade and a great occasion generally.

Throngs Vociferous With Joy.

The inhibition of the inaugural ball and of the planned public reception at the capitol had no effect as a bar to the attendance at this ceremony of changing presidents. Masses were here to see, and other masses were here to march. There was a greater demonstration while the procession was passing than there was four years ago. Victory had come to a party which had known nothing like victory for a good many years. The joy of possession found expression in steady and abundantly noisy acclaim.

President Taft and President-elect Wilson were escorted down the avenue by the National Guard troop of cavalry of Essex county, New Jersey. The carriage in which rode Vice-President-elect Marshall and President pro tempore Bacon of the United States senate was surrounded by the members of the Black Horse troop of the Culver Military academy of Indiana. This is the first time in the history of inaugural ceremonies that a guard of honor has escorted a vice-president to the scene of his oath taking.

Parade a Monster Affair.

The military and the civil parade, a huge affair which stretched its length for miles along the Washington streets, formed on the avenues radiating from the capitol. After President-elect Wilson had become President Wilson and Vice-President-elect Marshall had become Vice-President Marshall, they went straightway from the capitol to the White House and thence shortly to the reviewing stand in the park at the mansion's front.

The parade, with Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, United States army, as its grand marshal, started from the capitol grounds to move along the avenue to the White House, where it was to pass in review. The trumpeter sounded "forward march" at the instant the signal was flashed from the White house that in fifteen minutes the newly elected president and commander-in-chief of the armies and navies of the United States would be ready to review "his troops."

It was thought that the parade might lack some of the picturesque features which particularly appealed to the people on former occasions. There were Indians and rough riders here not only when Roosevelt was inaugurated, but when he went out of office and was succeeded by William H. Taft. The parade, however, in honor of Mr. Wilson seemed to be picturesque enough in its features to appeal to the multitudes. They certainly made noise enough over it.

The procession was in divisions, with General Wood as the grand marshal of the whole affair and having a place at its head. The display, in the words invariably used on like occasions, was "impressive and brilliant."

Regulars in First Division.

The regulars of the country's two armed service naturally had the right of way. Maj. Gen. W. W. Wotherspoon, United States army, was in command of the first division, in which marched the soldiers and sailors and marines from the posts and the navy yards within a day's ride of Washington. The West Point cadets and the midshipmen from the naval academy at Annapolis, competent beyond other corps in manual and in evolution, the future generals and admirals of the army, had place in the first division.

All branches of the army service were represented in the body of regulars—engineers, artillery, cavalry, infantry and signal corps. The sailors and marines from half a dozen battleships rolled along smartly in the wake of their landsmen brethren.

The National Guard division followed the division of regulars. It was commanded by Brig. Gen. Albert L. Mills, United States army, who wore the medal of honor given him for conspicuous personal gallantry at the battle of San Juan hill. General Mills is the chief of the militia division of the United States war department.

The entire National Guard of New Jersey was in line, and Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Maine and North Carolina were represented by bodies of civilian soldiers. Cadets from many of the private and state military schools of the country had a place in the militia division.

Veterans and Civilians.

The third division of the parade was composed of Grand Army of the Republic veterans, members of the Union Veteran league and of the Spanish war organizations. Gen. James E. Stuart of Chicago, a veteran of both the Civil and the Spanish wars, was in command.

Robert N. Harper, chief marshal of the civic forces, commanded the fourth division. Under his charge were political organizations from all parts of the country, among them being Tammany, represented by 2,000 of its braves, and Democratic clubs from Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

They put the American Indians into the civilian division. The fact that they were in war paint and feathers helped out in picturesqueness and did nothing to disturb the peace. Members of the United Hunt Clubs of America rode in this division. Their pink coats and their high hats apparently were not thought to jar "Jeffersonian simplicity" from its seat. Pink coats were worn on the hunting field in Jefferson's day and in Jefferson's state.

There were 1,000 Princeton students in the civic section of the parade. Many of them wore orange and black sweaters and they were somewhat noisy though perfectly proper. Students from seventeen other colleges and universities were among the marchers.

Spectators Cheer Constantly.

All along Pennsylvania avenue, from the capitol to a point four block beyond the White House, the spectators were massed in lines ten deep. The cheering was constant and Woodrow Wilson cannot complain that the ceremonies attending his induction into office were not accompanied by apparently heartfelt acclaim of the people over whom he is to rule for at least four years.

Every window in every building on Pennsylvania avenue which is not occupied for office purposes was rented weeks ago for a good round sum of money. Every room overlooking the marching parade was taken by as many spectators as could find a vantage point from which to peer through the window panes. The roofs of the buildings were covered with persons willing to stand for hours in a March day to see the wonders of the inaugural parade, and many of them particularly glad of an opportunity to go home and to say that after many years waiting they had seen a Democratic president inaugurated.

The parade passed the reviewing stand of President Wilson, who stood uncovered while the marchers saluted. When the last organization had marched by dusk was coming down. The hundreds of thousands of electric lamps were lighted and Washington at night became along its main thoroughfare as bright as Washington at day. The loss of the attraction of the inaugural ball was compensated for by the finest display of fireworks, it is said, this city has ever known.

PRESIDENT WILSON

To Allow Full Terms to Officeholders Said to be Reason for War on Taft's Appointments.

President-elect Wilson has caused it to be known among leading Democrats in Washington that he favors the policy of permitting Republican officeholders appointed for a fixed period to serve out their terms. Collectors of customs would not be included in this class, but postmasters, marshals, district attorneys, some officers of the Treasury and other departments like the Director of the Mint, and many others would be favorably affected. Gov-if President Wilson proves to be also that he will insist upon a strict observance of the civil service laws and regulations.

It now develops that the persistency of the Democratic Senators in refusing to confirm the Taft appointees is due to knowledge of views of the President-elect upon the civil service. Should the Taft appointees be confirmed they would serve a full four years under Wilson's plan, and as there are more than 2,000 of them scattered through every State, the Democratic leaders forsee unfortunate political complications if they yield now and permit so much useful patronage to slip out of their hands. The Republicans are equally unwilling to arrange any kind of compromise, preferring that the Democratic party shall bear the responsibility for all rejections or failures to confirm.

It is hoped in Washington that President Wilson proves to be the friend to the civil service that his ante-inauguration uterances indicate, he will ask Congress speedily for an appropriation to enable the Civil Service Commission to make the reclassification prescribed by the law of 1912. The Commission has full authority to readjust salaries and places in the department, but it is without funds to do the work. This is one reason why the new regulations expected of the Commission have not been promulgated.

Many sufferers from rheumatism have been surprised and delighted with the prompt relief afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. This liniment is for sale by J. W. Berkshire and Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Party Candidates.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 25—Attorney General Garnett today in answer to a number of inquiries concerning the construction of the State primary law decided that names of candidates can not be written on the ballots in the primary. The voter in the primary must indicate with the X the list of candidates for whom he desires to vote.

This decision was made in answer to the inquiry if Republicans could vote for Democratic candidates or Democrats vote for Republican candidates by writing the names on the ballots.

The Attorney General also held that in county races the candidates were not required to get a specified number of signers to the petition in any certain precinct.

REMARKABLE BAROMETER.

Mr. Gill Cooper, the Main-street merchant, has a remarkable barometer in his store. It is in the shape of a little house with two front doors. The family consists of the mother and several children. When the weather is to be fair, the children walk out into the yard; when foul the mother comes out and the children go in. The changing condition of the atmosphere has the inexplainable effect upon the old woman and her children. So far the barometer has not failed this year.—Danville Advocate.

Sheriff B. B. Hume was called to Rabbit Hash, last Saturday, to arrest a man named Brown, who was wanted over in Ohio county, Ind., charged with kidnapping a twelve year old girl. He was not long in locating his man, who denied that his name was Brown, but the officer recognized him as soon as he came upon him. He denied having kidnapped the girl when he saw that he could not fool the officer, saying that she came to this side of the river of her own accord. Brown was delivered to the Ohio county sheriff at Rising Sun, where the feeling against him was very strong, there being threats to have judge lynch try the accused.

J. F. Blyth sold to Jas. Goodridge his 92½ acres of land one mile out on the Belleview pike for $2,900. Possession given upon the execution of the deed.

No Bumper Tobacco Crop.

The Shelby Record gives the following reasons why there will be no bumper crop of tobacco this year: Although the high prices for tobacco this year would seem foreshadow an immense crop next season, in the opinion of well informed men such will not be the case. There are a number of reasons why no unusual acreage will be planted. There is not the land for more tobacco available. The labor to handle it is not there. Barn room is not sufficient. And above all, the farmers have learned that it is better to cultivate five acres well and get a good price for the tobacco, than to cultivate 10 acres indifferently and get a poor price. Then, too, the farmers have learned in the bitter school of experience that tobacco is not the only crop that grows in which there in money. They are diversifying their crops more and more each year, are making more money, are better satisfied and happier, and all things are working together for good. Moderate sized crops of tobacco well tended and well handled will bring good prices on the market, and there is no danger of overdoing the thing again.

Measure of Man.

The place to take the true measure of a man is not in the market place or amen corner, the forum or the field, but by his own fireside. There he lays aside his mask and you may learn whether he is an imp or an angel, king or cur, hero or humbug. Care not what the world may say him, whether it crowns him with bags or pelts him with bad eggs; I care not a copper cent what his religion or reputation may be, if his babies dread his hom-coming and his better half swallows her heart every time she asks him for a five dollar bill, he is a fraud of the first both night and morning until he is black in the face, and howls hallelujah until he shakes the eternal hills. But if his children rush to the gate to meet him and love's sunshine illuminates the face of his wife when she hears his footfall, you can take it for granted that he is pure gold his home is heaven, and the humbug never gets near the white throne of God. He may be a rank atheist and a red flag anarchist, a Mormon and a mugwump he may buy votes in blocks of five and bet on the election, he may deal them from the bottom of the deck and drink beer until he can't tell a silver dollar from a circular saw, and still be an infinitely better man than the cowardly little man who is all suavity in society, but who makes his home a hell, who vent upon the heads of his helpless wife and children an ill-nature he would like to inflict upon his fellowman, but he dares not. I can forgive much in that fellow mortal who would rather have the face of the world than the contempt of his wife; would rather call anger to the eyes of the world than fear to the face of a child.—Hornet.

Enjoyment for the Young.

Where youth does not have entertainment or enjoyment furnished him ready for use, he manages to start something that gives him the needed pastime. In small towns and villages there is a dearth of enjoyment provided and on tap, and hence when the little gathering at these points find recreation lacking, they usually start something to their liking, and this originally is not always best conductive to morals nor health. It is to avoid making of the town or the village a hell hole that public places of amusement should be started, where the young person the means, and in plenty, of good wholesome and healthy enjoyment and the temptation to illegimate forms will be in like proportion lessened. Yet, the boy or girl needs a public place of amusement, and should have it. By all means provide entertainment and enjoyment for both the boy and the girl. If you do not, understand full well, he or she will start something. And in providing enjoyment for the young people, do not let the older people select the pleasure without consulting the taste of the younger set. All that the older one should wish or want is that the means of enjoyment should be healthful and moral and in all other matters as wide and free as fancy could picture. The lines of the sectarian or ism of any kind or party should not be tolerated. The touch should be that of nature only in her proper mood.

Let the town, city or village do but this, and it will drive away their dullness and their wickedness, and many of them veritable spots of Paradise.—Shelby Sentinel.

J. E. Ransom's sale amounted to $4,000 and there were only six notes executed. Something out of the ordinary. Probably the discount for cash caused such a satisfactory result.

SOME BRIDE.

(Charlotteville Ky., Chronice.)

The bride is a woman of wondrous fascination and remarkable attractiveness, for, with manner as enchanting as the wand of a siren and a disposition as sweet as the odors of flowers and spirits as joyous as the carolings of birds and mind as brilliant as those glittering tresses which adorn the brow of winter, and with heart as pure as dewdrops trembling in a coronet of violets, she will make the home of her husband a paradise of enchantment like the lovely home of her girlhood, where the heaven-toned harp of marriage, with its chords of love and devotion and fond endearments send forth the sweetest strains of felicity that ever thrilled the senses with the rhythmic pulsings of ecstatic rapture.

Josh Slaughter brought to this office this morning a part of a twist of tobacco which was given him by his mother, Mary Jane Slaughter, who is now 87 years of age, and brought the tobacco to this city from Taylor Co. GOING TO THE WEDDING

By AMY GADSDEN.

"I went downtown and bought Lucy's wedding gift today," said the girl when conversation lagged a bit. "It was real fun."

"I went to school with Lucy, but she didn't ask me to her wedding or to the reception," said the young man caller. "I wish to goodness she had. Surely one's schoolmates ought to be asked if anybody is."

"The reception is going to be small," said the girl, soothingly. "The house isn't large you know."

"They're invited the whole town to the wedding—all but me."

"Well, it's too bad. I don't see, though, how you can go when you're not asked."

"If there was any way to slip me in you'd think of it, wouldn't you?" said the young man. "Couldn't I pretend to be a butler or something?

"Butlers wouldn't be at the wedding," exclaimed the girl. "You're thinking of ushers. Somebody might drop her card of admission out of the church window to you."

"She might get caught and thrown out. Do people have to have cards to the reception, too?"

"No, you walk right in for that, but you couldn't do it without being caught. They'd know you weren't asked.'

"I'd give a lot to go—to the wedding, anyhow."

"I didn't know you were so crazy over weddings."

"It isn't weddings I'm crazy over," said the young man, with a sigh. "But I bet you're going to let Sam Meadows take you."

"He hasn't asked me yet, but if he wants to take me I don't see why I shouldn't go with him and enjoy myself."

"No, I suppose not. A girl can't imagine going with Sam and not having the time of her life."

"I didn't say that."

"No, but you thought it, apparently. And here I am, crazy to go, and you won't even think up a practical way to smuggle me in."

"If you had called there recently you'd have received an invitation."

"I didn't want to call there. There was another place where I preferred to go."

"Dear me! What a popular young man."

"I didn't say a lot of places," he protested. "But you know I haven't got very much time and I'd rather be here than anywhere else."

"That's very kind of you," she said, smiling. "But you see what you've lost by it—you can't go to the wedding."

"Oh, bother!' he cried. "I don't care a thing about that wedding."

"Why you said you were crazy to go!"

"I am. But if you weren't going I'd not care at all."

"Maybe I won't go. Mother and father will be away and it may happen that Sam will take somebody else."

"That isn't likely. He's been horn every evening for months."

"Please don't exaggerate."

"Well, he's been here every time I have. And now he can take you to the doings and I've got to sit back and smile like an angel and look as if I liked it."

"You won't even see us."

"No, but I know just what a good time Sam will have. There won't be a prettier girl there than you are."

"Sam'll think differently," she said with a laugh. "Sam's awfully interested in my cousin Mary, who's one of the bridesmaids. He always talks about her every minute when he calls here. You see, they had a quarrel, and he came here to get news of her. It's all right now. I was the peacemaker, by the way."

"Then you're not going!" cried the young man joyfully. "Can I come over that evening?"

"I think you're horrid," she pouted. "I'm crazy to go to the wedding.'

"And I'm crazy about you!" he blurted out. "I've been trying to tell you all the evening, I want you to marry me!"

"Well, why— It's so—"

"You know I love you,' he said. "I couldn't stand it to think of your going with Sam when I wanted so to take you."

"You can go now!" she cried, securing possession of her own hands and proceeding to clap them. "One's fiance, you know, is always included!'—Chicago Daily News.

Mice Didn't Care.

Little Dorothea is one of those children whose danger signal is silence. When she is still, she is in mischief.

The other day her mother became aware of the quiet which boded trouble. She was about to look for the child when, at that moment, Dorothea came in, her face rosy with happiness and her mouth covered with crumbs.

"Where have you been, Dorothea?" asked her mother. "What are you eating?"

"Cheese," said the young lady, calmly.

"Cheese? Where did you get it, dear?"

"In the mouf-trap."

"In the mouse-trap!" exclaimed her mother, horrified.

"O, yeth!"

"But what will the mice do? They won't have any cheese."

"O, dey don't care, mamma! Dey was two mouflee in de trap, and dey didn't care a bit."

"HERO" THREATENED TO SUE

In the historical collections, just published, the late Governor John A. Martin tells where the late Senator John J. Ingalls got his inspiration for "Catfish Aristocracy."

When Ingalls went to Sumner (now an abandoned town) a young man of twenty-four, said Martin, he took great interest in such characters as Jonathan Gardner Lang. Lang was a jug fisherman in the river, melon raiser, truck patch farmer and town drunkard. Ingalls says that Lang was really a bright fellow. He had been a dragoon in the Mexican war, and his stories of experiences in the west were intensely interesting. Ingalls used to go out in Lang's boat when he was jugging for catfish, and spend hours listening to his talk.

Finally Ingalls wrote his "Catfish Aristocracy," and Lang recognized himself as the hero. He was very indignant and threatened to sue Ingalls, having been advised by some jackleg lawyer that the articles were libelous. Lang lived on a piece of land belonging to Ingalls at the time, and Ingalls declared it was actually true that he settled with Lang for a sack of flour and a side of bacon.

NO MOSQUITOES THERE NOW

Once So Bad in Panama a Cat Committed Suicide, According to Returned Traveler.

"One of the most striking features of the present condition of the Panama canal zone is the absence of mosquitoes, which at the beginning of the work by the United States, were a great menace to health," remarked Capt. A. B. Delaney of New York. "Before the United States took over the canal, I visited Panama, and I became thoroughly informed about the Panama mosquito. On a recent trip there I went into nearly every section of the zone, in the lowland and upland, and throughout the rainy season, and I failed to discover a single insect.

"I remember that on one occasion my company sent me to Panama on a wrecking expedition. We had on board our vessel a pet cat which had been aboard the ship for a long time. She was just an ordinary ship cat and knew all about fleas. But when we got to Panama, the cat soon gave evidence of being uncomfortable. We discovered that the mosquitoes were annoying her. Finally in desperation the cat jumped overboard and committed suicide to get rid of the mosquitoes. She simply could not stand the Panama mosquitoes."

Useless Bullets Issued to Turks.

In reference to the issue of wooden bulleted cartridges to the Turkish troops, it is interesting to note that similar cartridges are used in the British army for instruction purposes —to teach recruits how to load their rifles. The ordinary brass cartridge case is fitted with a wooden bullet painted red. The cartridge does not contain explosive—a charge of cordite —neither are percussion caps fitted. The brass cartridge cases are further perforated in two or more places, in order that instructors can tell at a glance that the ammunition is really "dummy" and that its use can endanger nobody. From this explanation it should be clear that the cartridges picked up on the Balkan battlefields could not possibly have been fired They were obviously thrown away by the Turkish troops when they discovered that they were useless.

Carried Away.

Not a little amusement was caused at one of the theaters in Portsmouth the other evening. A new drama entitled "Under the Rusian Flag," was being presented for the first time, and the audience had been following with bated breath the thrilling adventures of the hero, who had been turned out of the Russian army for supposed neglect of duty.

A most critical point in this story of Russian life had been reached, where the hero's father, who lay dying, calls for a pen in order to sign a will disinheriting his son. Just as the pen was handed to him a girl's voice from the gallery exclaimed:

"Give him another chance, mister!"

Needless to say, the audience turned from thrill to laughter.

Demand Rights for Woman.

The Society of Austrian Women has submitted a petition to the government asking for action on the case of Frau Kunitcks, the woman who was elected deputy to the parliament of Bohemia, and who has not yet been allowed to take her seat in that body, because the authorities refuse to discuss the validity of her election. In the petition the society empasized the fact that the election conformed with all the rules, and there is no mention of women not being eligible to stand as candidates for election in any law. In the face of these facts it asks that the will of the people shall be allowed to prevail, and Frau Kunitcka duly admitted to the Bohemian parliament.

Woman Says Too Much Pie.

Miss Elizabeth Fulton, head of the domestic science department of the State Normal school of Kansas, in a lecture recently declared that the American pie is the cause of many divorces in this coutry. Working on the nerves of men, pie makes the men thorose, and that makes their wives unhappy. "Soon the divorce courts loom up," she said. "America has gone pie crazy, and must turn back to fresh fruit, and not stick to the indigestible pie crust."

HOW AN INDIANA GIRL

Got Strong and Well Again at Small Cost.

Miss Alta Abel, of West Baden, Ind., says: "I was a complete wreck, always tired, wornout and nervous. I had to spend about one-third of my time in bed and my life was not worth living. Vinol, your delicious cod liver and iron tonic, was recommended, and it has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took in my life. That nervous and tired feeling is all gone, I have gained in health, flesh and strength, until I feel like another person."

Vinol is the most efficient strength-creator for such women. It is the medicinal elements of the cods' livers contained in Vinol, aided by the blood-making and strengthening properties of tonic iron, which makes it so far superior to all other tonics to build up health and strength for weak, tired, ailing women. It contains no oil and has a delicious taste.

We give back your money if Vinol does not do all that we claim. R. W. Jones, Druggist, Walton, Ky.

RURAL TEACHERS BODY OF TRAMPS

Dr. Claxton Says They Change Districts Too Often.

RESULTS IN POOR TEACHING

Problem Must Be Solved if Real Strong Work Is to Be Done in Country Districts—Is Hurting Children's Chances. Just a Question or Two.

In a recent address at Louisville, Ky., Dr. P. P. Claxton, commissioner of education for the United States, stated that the rural teachers constituted the greatest body of tramps known. Over 50 per cent of them move to a new district each school year.

Don't take Dr. Claxton's word for it. Think of all the rural districts you know and see how close his assertion comes to fitting your own and your neighbor's situation on the teacher question. The main reason for so much poor teaching in the country districts is that the teacher does not stay long enough in any one locality to know either the children or their parents. If it is as difficult as it is for you to manage your child after having it with you every day during its whole life, how can the average teacher do even creditable work when she absolutely does not know your children? She merely has got a nodding acquaintance with them; she can call them by name.

This is every man's problem as well as the teacher's problem. It must be solved if we are to have real strong work done. What will you do with it? It is what is hurting your child's chance for an education that is worth while.

GET BUSY.

Just a Question or Two.

IS YOUR SCHOOLHOUSE AS UP TO DATE AS YOUR NEW DAIRY BARN?

IS THE INTERIOR OF YOUR SCHOOL AS MODERN AS THAT NEW SILO?

IS YOUR TEACHER AS COMPETENT AS THAT TRAINER FOR YOUR COLTS?

IS THE SCHOOL AS WELL PAINTED AS YOUR CHURCH?

IS THE WATER AT THE SCHOOL AS CONVENIENT AND AS GOOD AS IT IS FOR THOSE YOUNG STEERS?

IS THE SCHOOLYARD AS BIG AS THE PASTURE WHERE YOU EXERCISE YOUR COLTS?

IS THE STOVE IN THE SCHOOL AS MODERN AS YOUR WIFE'S GASOLINE RANGE?

Aim high in your farm work. Shoot at the moon if you wish. Of course you will not hit the moon, but the chances are that you will scatter a lot of bird shot somewhere along the sky line.—Colonel Henry Exall, Texas Industrial Congress.

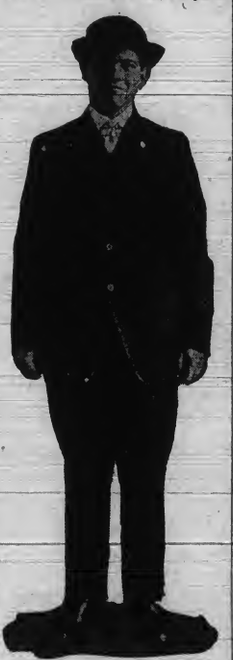
Do We Think For Ourselves?

Queer how many things in our life are inherited from the past and are accepted without a thought. We are afraid of storms, the dark and a thousand and one other things because our ancestors, who knew nothing of science, feared them.

We went to school and did our tasks in the good old fashioned way because that was the way our parents got their education. In thousands of schools scattered all over this enlightened country we are inflicting the same thing upon our children because of our habit of thought. Isn't it time for us to begin to view the child as something more than a receptacle for the three R's? Isn't school something bigger and better than we are trying to make the average country school? Doesn't real, pulsing life demand more, infinitely more, than it did 100 years ago? Doesn't life exist in the fields where crops are growing? Doesn't a problem exist except between the covers of a book? Is the geography of Africa as vital or as full of meaning as the brook that tumbles over rocks and mossy roots 100 yards from the schoolhouse door? Does any one really believe that the lock step studies without a break mean an education in its best and broadest sense?

No problem is solved in this little chat. Only a few questions are asked that most of us grownups don't think about. Put yourself in your child's place for a moment and see if your school building, the studies and the viewpoint are in step with all the advances that the world has made in the other activities of our varied life.

Health of the Child in School.



Do you eat breakfast every day? Do you drink coffee or tea? Do you have your bedroom window open or shut at night? Do you own a toothbrush?

These and other pertinent questions are to be answered by the children in the public schools of Minnesota. They form part of a "health grading outline" prepared by Dr. Ernest B. Hoag, special director of school hygiene for the state, whereby teachers and school nurses may learn in the most direct manner possible the physical condition of the children intrusted to their care. "Rational conservation of the mental and physical health of our school children" is the ultimate ideal of this and other current health projects reported to the United States bureau of education.

ERECTING HIS OWN MONUMENT.

How Lester Bryant, the Boy Champion Corn Grower of Kentucky, Will Buy His Own Memorial With His Record Crop of Corn.

One very frequently hears the remark, "That fellow is erecting his own monument." No one in the Rockfield neighborhood last summer ever thought that Lester Bryant's record crop of corn would be the means of building him a memorial. No one watching a vigorous youngster put his life and soul into the work as he did could have forseen such an event, and yet if the plans of the Hon. J. W. Newman carry, and they are sure to, the boy will have erected his own memorial.

At the funeral of Lester Bryant a few days after his tragic death at Washington Mr. Newman outlined his plan to a few close friends. The plan was so unique and so easy of handling that it was soon after decided upon. Mr. Newman has bought Lester Bryant's crop of fine Kentucky tested, Boone County White seed corn from the boy's father and had Dr. Mutchler, the government expert in charge of the Boys' Corn club movement, pick out fifty bushels of extra seed corn. This carefully selected stock seed corn will be offered for sale as the Lester Bryant Strain of Boone County White. It will be sold at $1 per ear. All the money realized from the sale of this remarkable corn will be placed in bank at Frankfort to the credit of the Lester Bryant memorial fund. As there will probably be at least 3,500 ears in the fifty bushels of corn, a magnificent monument is sure to rise in the Bowling Green cemetery, where the boy is buried.

Kentucky's Boys' Corn Clubs.

The Boys' Corn club movement is only two years old in this state, and yet big things have been accomplished. The Corn club boys, several thousand of them, are enthusiastic; but better than enthusiasm are the results that have come from the work.

When the state champions met in Washington this winter with the experts who had charge of the work in the various states, there was naturally a feeling of intense rivalry. Twelve of the southern states that had been pushing the Boys' Corn club idea for several years, had records of 442 boys that had grown over 100 bushels on an acre. Alabama and Georgia each had over 100 boys with this record to their credit, but both of these states had been organized for club work for the past eight years. It is very gratifying to be able to write that Kentucky, with an organization of only two years, made a splendid record. Fifty-seven boys in Kentucky this past season grew over 100 bushels of corn to the acre. How many adult farmers did that well?

Political Gossip and The Administration.

It would be well for the public to be on its guard against nine-tenths of the gossip, unfriendly to the new administration, that is coming out of Washington.

President Wilson has a gift for reticence, and his inaugural address shows that he has a gift for expression. When he has anything to say, he will say it himself, in his own person. When he has any announcement to make he will make it. When he has anything to do, he will do it. Let the public await, therefore, for things actually said and things actually done before deciding concerning the course of conduct of the new administration.

Let us illustrate what we mean. It was announced a few days ago that President Wilson had invited Castro to the inauguration. It was promptly denied by Castro himself.

It was said that the President had announced his purpose of spending a large part of his time in the President's room at the Capitol. This was the work of pure imagination, and was intended to arouse antagonism. It was avowedly based upon the work Mr. Wilson did as Governor of New Jersey in connection with various legislative policies.

It was further announced that Mr. Wilson when President intended to have the Vice President invited to a seat in the Cabinet. All of this is pure speculation, the work of imaginative, if not malicious correspondents.

In regard to the President's invitation to the Chevy Chase Club, the incident of the inaugural ball and various instances of like character, all that need be said is that President Wilson will not be bound by antiquated precedents, social or political. He is a man of his own mind, having in view definite purposes. He is neither radical nor reactionary. He is a man of simple habits and with no extravagant tastes. He is a man who takes life much more seriously than do the social leaders of Washington, New York or elsewhere. Courteous and attractive in social intercourse, social intercourse to him is only one of the influences of life and not the chief end of existence.—Louisville Evening Post.

The candidates are distributing an abundance of cards, the campaign seeming to be at the acute stage in so far as cards are concerned. At the rate they are using the little pasteboards it will require at least a million to put the county candidates through the fight.

In this issue appears the County Engineer's advertisement for letting out the public roads in the county for working this year. He wants to secure the services of men who know how to work roads and with which he will have no trouble in getting to comply with their contracts.

Very little plowing done during the month of February.

That Tobacco Pool.

That 1910 tobacco pool proved to be a scorcher. The first dash out of the box ten per cent of the pooler's tobacco was taken as stock in the Burley Tobacco Society, for which not a stockholder in this part of the country has a scratch of a pen to show how much or how many shares of stock he has, nor has he been paid any dividend thereon nor received any accounting in regard thereto. Distributions to the amount of sixty per cent have been made and there the business appears to have quit and most of the poolers have become so disgusted with the manner in which the business has been handled that they are never heard refer to the pool, and if the matter is mentioned to them they will, in most instances, answer in language that would not look well in print. Taking into consideration the results of the pool, morally and financially in Kentucky, it proved to be the most stupendous fake that was ever worked off in the State. It is generally believed that large amounts of money have been made by some at the expense of the poor grower who toiled night and day to produce his crop and whom they were pledged to protect. Many honest and conscientious men were advocates of the pool, believing it would be to the benefit of the growers to join it, and to this day these same men cannot explain to the poolers how the business has been handled and why it failed, altho they have supposed themselves on the inside all the time. Another thing is not understood by those who have tobacco in the pool, and that is why the remainder of the pooled tobacco was not sold while the prices were soring this season, and a final report made to those interested. The Burley Tobacco Society needs investigating.

His Hat In The Ring.

Petersburg, Ky., March 4, 1913.
Mr. Everett Helms and many others in the county:

Gentlemen:—I notice in the Recorder of February 19th, a call made upon me to become a candidate for Representative to represent the people of Boone county in the next General Assembly of Kentucky. In reply will say I accept the call with a feeling of great responsibility resting on one who represents his people. Consequently, and without fear or favor, greed or graft, I have never sought the office, but when such a call comes to me from so many people where I was born sixty-six years ago, and lived all of my life, I feel grateful to know that they place in me so much confidence as to my honesty, ability and integrity as to represent them in such an important office as this. It would be very ungrateful in me if I did not respond to their wishes. Although I may go down in defeat, yet, if I am fortunate enough to be elected I assure and promise them I will never betray a trust imposed in me. I will always be found working and voting in the interest of all the people. Equal rights to all and special privileges to none—a government of the people, for the people and by the people. I shall always seek the right and try to follow it. As to legislation, Honesty and everything for the best interests of the masses and not the classes. I shall endeavor to follow the example set before me by the two great leaders of our party, Woodrow Wilson and William Jennings Bryan. Should I be so fortunate as to represent my people, after the mission is performed for which I was elected, I want to return to my home and be able to meet one and all with as clear conscious and friendly hand-shake as I now do, and have it said of me well done thou good and faithful servant, you have fought the fight, you have kept the faith. Thanking you all and hoping to see you soon. I remain

Your humble servant,
W. T. STOTT.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS,
Erlanger, Ky.

Those who know buy DE LAVAL Cream Separators

Creamerymen—Because they are experts in the handling of cream and know by long experience that the De Laval skims cleanest and wears longest. That is why 98% of the World's creameries use the De Laval exclusively.

Experienced Dairymen—The De Laval is the universal favorite among big dairymen. They know that no other separator will give them such satisfactory service.

Old De Laval Users—Whenever a man who has used an old model De Laval decides to purchase a later style machine he invariably buys another De Laval.

Men Who Investigate—If anyone takes the time to investigate the merits of the various cream separators, either by finding out from other users what kind of service their machines have given or by testing other machines out against the De Laval, the chances are a hundred to one that his choice will be the De Laval. More De Laval machines are in use than any other make. There is a reason. Come in and we will tell you why.

OLD TIME FISH FRY

At Which The Fish Eaters Were Charmed By Burlington's Cicero.

Winding Up With An Old Fashed Stag Dance.

About forty persons assembled in the amusement department of Castle Hall, last Friday night, and enjoyed a dry fish fry. For the benefit of its readers the Recorder will state that a dry fish fry is one at which nothing stronger than black coffee is imbibed. Fifty pounds of fine lake salmon were prepared for the occasion by Elmo Fowler and Grover Jarrell, who know exactly how to do the turn to a Queen's taste. Besides the fish several gallons of black coffee were at the command of the guests while a generous supply of old fashioned Kentucky corn bread was in evidence for a while. Everybody present seemed to have prepared appetites especially for the evening and they used them to their full capacities, there being but one disappointment for the crowd and that was the absence of the town's champion fish eater, Charlie Westbay, who had disqualified himself by having eaten jointly his dinner and supper only a few minutes before he was informed of what was on docket for the evening, and knowing his very great fondness for the menu was afraid to put in his appearance less he would have to call a physician to treat a case of founder. After the feasting cigars were passed around and by the time the smoke in the room was of the consistency to be easily carved the local orchestra, which is C. A. Fowler, L. A. Conner and Kirb Tanner, mounted the stand and with two violins and a guitar, discoursed sweet music for the enjoyment of the boys. At this juncture Pratt Holloway, local photographer appeared with his camera and took several flash light pictures of the gathering. Burlington's Cicero, was prevailed upon to deliver an address, and, with his firery eloquence charmed his hearers, and at the conclusion round after round of applause shook the building. The oratorical feature was followed by an old time stag dance, which outside of the gastronomic performance, was the greatest feature of the evening. About 11 o'clock the crowd disbanded and the several members thereof wended their way to their usually peaceful couches, where they rolled and tossed and contended with the harrassing nightmare the remainder of the night. The fish fry last Friday night was an event that will long be remembered by those who took part therein.

J. M. Baker, of Big Bone, one of the Recorder's best Republican friends, was seen the other day. Mr. Baker has been holding a good, fat government job for some time and does not seem to be annoyed by the recent change in the politics of the powers that be at Washington, and the Recorder would be glad to see him stay in his present position to the limit, but he is ready to walk the plank at any time the command is given and without any mutterings, being game clear through.

Two gentlemen were in the Recorder's office, one afternoon last week, seeking information in regard to a farm in this neighborhood which they had seen advertised. They were told of another farm that is for sale, but when they were told it was not located on a pike they had all the information they desired in regard thereto. There will soon be no demand for farms not located on good roads. The time has come when the land owner wants a farm from which he can get to a market any day in the year.

Young Oberding, from over near Lawrenceburg, was out at A. L. Nichols' buying hogs last Friday, when his horse got loose and started to run with the buggy. He caught the animal when the bridle bit broke and he was thrown down and run over by the horse and vehicle, his clothing being badly torn while he was bruised some. J. M. Eddins and son, Stanley, saw the horse and vehicle as they came over the hill at W. J. Rice's, and ran to the top of the hill near the creamery and caught the animal when it reached that point and succeeded in stopping it. No damage was done to the vehicle.

The public schools should be taught between the first of April and the middle of December in each year, thereby eliminating from the term the weather which is bad and during which the pupils are the most subject to diseases. The warm weather in summer is not as hard on children as the cold weather which they are bound to encounter during the winter.

The Recorder sees by a pamphlet sent it by W. M. Conner that he has patented several very popular devices to be used in the production of poultry. Mr. Conner is a considerable genius, and when he was engaged on the farm he invented several implements of considerable merit. He is a great chicken fancier, and handles some of the most popular breeds.

Many sufferers from rheumatism have been surprised and delighted with the prompt relief afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. This liniment is for sale by J. W. Berkshire and Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Children are much more likely to contract the contagious diseases when they have colds. Whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever and consumption are diseases that are often contracted when the child has a cold. That is why all medical authorities say beware of colds. For the quick cure of colds you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by J. W. Berkshire and Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Robert Gaines who had been page in the National House of Representatives for a few months returned home last week immediately after the inauguration of President Wilson. It is generally believed that he has had all the city life he desires for the present at least, and that he will devote the remainder of this year to life on the farm.

Dr. Winston Gaines, of Cincinnati had a narrow escape from a serious auto accident at the first toll gate out on the Florence pike as he was returning to his home from from his father's, last Monday afternoon. The gate had been raised to let him pass, and the rocks that balance the pole fell out of the box and the pole descended in front of his machine, which struck and broke the pole. Fortunately the only damage to the auto was the breaking of one lamp.

Richard White has been considerably indisposed for several days has blood poison in one hand, the result of a small scratch on one finger.

The land owners at this end of the Burlington and Union public road are organizing to put that road in good condition this year by piking it by each one hauling and spreading stone thereon. A meeting will be held in the near future for the purpose of seeing how much hauling each of the directly interested parties will pledge besides making an estimate as to how many days hauling will be necessary to do the work. If the plans that are now under consideration are carried out those who do the work on the road will set a most excellent example for other neighborhoods in the county, and will put in operation a plan for improving public roads that may ultimately prove popular in the county.

You judge a man not by what he promises to do, but by what he has done. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judged by this standard has no superior. People everywhere speak of it in the highest terms of praise. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Nearly One Hundred Years Old.

Mrs. Evelyn Rice, who died in Petersburg, last Sunday was probably the oldest person in this county, being in her onehundredth year. She was a daughter of Joshua Rice, who owned a farm and lived many years at the mouth of Gunpowder. She was thw widow of Dr. Gill Rice, who died many years ago at his home on the Ohio river immediately below McVille in this county and where he owned a very fine ferm of hill and bottom land. She is survived by three sons, Erastus Rice, of Rising Sun, Indiana; Solon D. Rice, of McVille, this county, and John Wesley Rice, of Oklahoma.

VALUE OF LEAF MOLD

Especially Important Ingredient for the Soil

Quality of Fertilizer Secured Depends Very Materially on Sort of Leaves Composing It and Manner of Preparation.

(By W. R. GILBERT.)

This term is applied to leaves when they are so thoroughly decayed as to readily separate small particles.

Leaf molds is a valuable manure in many instances, especially on heavy soils, and one of the most important ingredients for the soil used in the successful cultivation of the majority of plants.

It may be used freely, particularly with the tender seedlings and cuttings of sofe wooded subjects, provided it be of good quality and free from injurious growth.

The production of roots in young plants of this description is induced and accelerated with more certainty by planting in this material than by the use of any other.

The quality of leaf mold depends very materially upon the sort of leaves composing it and in the manner of preparation adopted.

It is found from experience that the best leaves are those collected from a wood or other place where the principal trees are beech and oak, and where their leaves fall over a large surface each year, and naturally decay slowly, until those beneath the surface become changed into a light mold.

Leaf mold of good quality may be used to the extent of about one-third in composts of azaleas, greenhouse rhododendrons, and many of the fine-rooted, hard-wooded plants of this description.

It may also with advantage be incorporated along with peat in the preparation of the beds for nearly all plants of the health family which are grown out of doors.

Further, nothing is better suited for improving flower-beds, or for adding to soil of any description, for placing around trees, shrubs or plants whose roots it is desired to encourage.

SLED BRAKE RELIEVES TEAM

Considerable Weight Is Taken From Horses In Descending Hills—Runner Catches In Snow.

A sled brake can be made as shown in the accompanying illustration that will take the load from the team when descending hills. To make this brake a round bar A is fastened to the front bob with heavy eyes as shown at B, says the Iowa Homestead. A square head should be formed on the outer end, over which is placed the lever C, by which the brake is operated. A lug D is made fast to the bar A and drops down four or five inches with a hole in its lower end, to which is bolted the bar E, which in turn is bolted to the dog F. By pushing forward the lever C the dog F is lowered below the runner and catches in the snow or ground, thus acting as a brake.

Old Meadows.

Old meadows generally are lacking in nitrogen, which is most easily supplied by the application of nitrate of soda at the rate of 200 to 600 pounds per acre. The only way to be sure of the kind of fertilizer to apply is to make trials of different mixtures and find out which gives the best results. In most places the application of barnyard manure and cutting up the meadow with a disc will be more likely to give profitable returns than will the application of commercial fertilizers.

Feedings Pigs.

There should be system in feeding pigs that are to be used for breding, and that system should contemplate and have for its purpose rapid growth and early maturity of the animals; but, at the same time, they should be fed for a growth of frame and bone—not fattened on corn, but expanded by a feed rich in protein.

Vegetable Gardens.

Every country home should be well supplied with vegetables and every effort should be made to have a good garden. It requires rich soil and plenty of work and nothing should be neglected that will make things grow if there is a good supply of vegetables at reasonable cost.

Hog Sheds.

Hog sheds need not be expensive, but they should be dry, tight enough to exclude rains and snows, and also capable of being well ventilated in summer when the weather is hot and shade is needed.

OAT-SPROUTS FOR POULTRY

Green Food Problem for Winter Solved in Ingenious and Original Manner by Easterner.

(By D. S. BURCH, in the Farm and Fireside.)

A New Hampshire poultryman has solved the green-food problem in an ingenious and original manner. From an old box about three feet long and of the proportions illustrated he constructed double trays provided with a handle and mounted on short legs. The trays were then filled with rich soil thickly planted to oats and the box placed in a warm, light place near the kitche nrange.

An abundant growth of oat sprouts soon appeared which were relished by his hens to such an extent that he makes a regular practice of growing oat sprouts as a regular winter feed and the principal part of their ration of green food.

The sprouts are fed when about four inches long, and the sowing is regulated so that one tray can be harvested and replanted when the other is about half grown. The number of trays which can be grown is limited only by the amount of available space that is light and warm enough to cause a good growth of green oats.

USE AVAILABLE PLANT FOOD

Each Crop Grown of Necessity Must Take Something From Soil Which Is Not Returned.

The fertility of the soil is not like a bank account, which is tangible, in sight, can all be drawn out at one or more times or at will of the pedositors, says the American Cultivator. The soil is an investment with many qualifying conditions, viz: Available plant food, physical condition and moisture. These are in a great measure under the control of the farmer. Inasmuch as no plant has the ability to make something out of nothing, each crop grown of necessity must take available plant food out of the soil which never comes back in most cases. In figuring the cost of production the value of the plant food taken should be charged against the crop just as much as that added in way of manure of chemicals. In our experience in footing the cost of production we have charged the loss of plant food against the crop grown in proportion to the yield. In the legumes we have credited the crop with the added nitrogen. And that is not all—the improved physical condition of the soil has a value that cannot be measured.

If we are not going to charge the crop with the lost fertility then we should not credit it with the added. Rotation of crops may enable us for a time to grow profitable crops, but sooner or later our children or their children will pay the penalty. Fertility means a valuable asset in the farmer's hands.

Forcing Lily-of-the-Valley.

If your lily-of-the-valley bed is getting beyond bounds—as it is liable to do—take up a good-sized clump and wash off all the soil, then pack the pips tightly in boxes or pots six inches deep with sphagnum moss, which the florist can sell you. Wood moss washed clean would do, as the purpose is to hold moisture. The pips must be frozen either before or after they are potted, for unless this is attended to they will not do well. When the pips are ready to be forced place them where they will get strong heat; on the top shelf of the kitchen range or on top of a hot water tank. The secret of success is to keep the moss soaked all the time. In about three weeks of forcing the flowers will bloom.

Feed for Eggs.

With the present good prices for fresh eggs it will pay well to do the best possible for their production. Feed liberally with a variety of food, especially such as stimulate egg production and supplying clean drinking water and not snow. Save all the scraps from the house, meat or vegetables, as it will all be well liked and duly turned into eggs. Keep the quarters tidy and clean and the fowls free from vermin or disease.

Put Profits into the Farm.

It is better to put $10,000 in improvements on the farm than in the bank for your son. He will develop himself in obtaining the financial profits from such a farm. He can be an honest man, alert mentally, developed socially, and of a class which is morally the bulwark of the nation.

Silage and Bran.

Dairymen sometimes debate whether to feed their cows silage or bran. A little of both is better than either alone, and is most circumstances more economical. Bran supplies protein, an element in which corn silage is rather deficient. The two make a balanced ration.

Tillage of Crops.

The fertility of many farms has been reduced by improper systems of tillage and crops and commercial fertilisers are useful and even necessary in the economincally improvement of such lands.

Public Sale!

Thursday, MARCH 27th, 1913

Of F. S. Pollitt's Live Stock

AND OTHER THINGS

One mile West of Crittenden, Grant County, Kentucky.

Having sold my farm I will offer on the premises at Public Sale the following Live Stock and other property:

SIXTY-FIVE HEAD OF JERSEY CATTLE,
FIVE HEAD OF HORSES,
SEVENTEEN HEAD OF HOGS.

For five years and a half I have been building up a herd of High Grade Jersey Cows. It has been my aim to get rid of all inferior and unprofitable cattle. The most of my present herd are of my own raising. They are superior cream and butter cows. On account of the great richness of the milk from my herd it has sold at from five to eight cents per gallon more than average market milk. This herd has a most Remarkable Record. According to test made by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky., the milk showed 5.9 per cent. butter fat. For a large herd and a big quantity of milk this is an uncommonly HIGH RECORD. Almost 6 per cent. butter fat. The cows are well broken and gentle. Twenty-nine of these cows are from three to five years old. Two cows are six years old, and the balance are over six. About a dozen of these cows have freshened in the last three months; some ten or twelve should have calves at their side on day of sale, and most of the balance should come fresh a month or two later. Buy these cows.

Remember the Date, Thursday, March 27th, 1913.

HEIFERS—I will offer at this sale 13 highly-bred Yearling Heifers. They were all sired by my bull, "Practical Maid's Beauty Owl." These heifers should make a great foundation herd for some one who wishes to start the dairy business, or a fine addition to a herd. Do not let this opportunity to buy some high-grade dairy stock pass. Also four splendid Heifer Calves sired by the herd bull.

BULL—Do you want a great Bull to head your herd? Here he is. "Practical Maid's Beauty's Owl is his name. He is registered in the American Jersey Cottle Club under No. 82857. He was dropped April 29th, 1907. He has a fine pedigree and is a splendid animal of the best dairy type. He has always shown a gentle disposition. He should sell for several hundred dollars, and if you buy him for less you have that much better bargain. Be sure to see him. Buy this Bull.

Remember the Date, Thursday, March 27th, 1913.

HORSES—Five head of Horses will be sold. One small Bay Horse, gentle for children to ride or drive. One large Black Horse, blind, 7 years old. A true puller and fine work animal. One pair of large Black Horses, 7-yrs. old, suitable for hearse team. To be offered singly and as a pair; this is a fine farm team. One beautiful, high-spirited bay mare, 9 years old; very fast in harness. The kind of animal you like to look at. This mare is bred to Squirrel McDonald and is expected to bring her colt about the time of the sale or a few days later. When the colt is a day old I would consider it worth a hundred dollars. The purchaser will pay the season. Buy her.

Remember the Date, Thursday, March 27th, 1913.

HOGS—Four Poland China Sows. Two Boars. Eleven fine Shoats.

BEES—Nine stands of Bees.

DAIRY OUTFIT—One "Simplex" Hand Cream Separator, capacity 900 pounds per hour, in perfect condition, and has been used very little. One Cream and Milk Cooler and Aerator. This is one of the best things in a milk room. One large "Tettenborn" Refrigerator in fine condition. Can use either water or ice to keep your cans of milk or cream cool. One complete Babcock Milk Tester. Milk Scales. Large number Milk Cans.

Resolutions of Respect.

On January 22d, 1913, our hearts were made to sorrow over the home going of our dearly beloved sister, Mrs. J. W. Cleek.
In her death we the members of the W. M. W., of Beaver Lick Baptist church, feel that we have sustained an irreparable loss. She was a devoted wife, and mother, a true, good neighbor and friend and an earnest, faithful christian.
Of her we can truly say, "To depart is to be with Christ," and since it has pleased our Heavenly Father to take her from us, Therefore be it resolved,
That our lives would be more useful if we could but follow her beautiful example of gentleness, sincerity, and christian fidelity. That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to her family, relatives and friends and join with them in their sorrow and bereavement.
That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our society and a copy be sent the family.

Mr. Youell is a great fancier of the draft horse, and believes it would be greatly to the benefit of the farmers to produce more of them.

NO FARM TRAIN THIS YEAR.

Because of the depleted condition of the treasury, it is announced by the State Department of Agriculture, through the medium of a Frankfort dispatch, that there will be no demonstration train on the road this year. Last year a special agricultural train was equipped and sent on a thirty days' tour, during which it visited seventy counties. It attracted much attention and hundreds of letters have been received making inquiry as to whether a similar train will be operated this year. Commissioner Newman believes that if the tour could be repeated it "would return the State a hundred fold value," but he feels that in view of the condition of the Commonwealth's finances, expenses should be cut whenever possible without doing positive injury to agricultural interests.

There is no doubt of the value of such demonstrations in stimulating agricultural effort and production. They are more effective than the county institutes, for "seeing is believing." The institutes, as a rule, are poorly attended. On the contrary the agricultural train seldom fails to draw a crowd, even at the smallest way station, and its exhibits and demonstrations are much more impressive than the mere spoken words of professional lecturers on agricultural topics.

The "farm train" will be missed and there is nothing that can exactly fill the void. The expense is not large, as the railroads probably would extend the same courtesies and assistance that they gave last year. At a time, however, when economy is desirable, if not absolutely necessary, in all departments of State, the wisdom of the Commissioner's decision is not likely to be called into serious question.—C.-J.

Postmaster General Burleson is reported as saying. he plans to place all fourth-class postmasters on a civil service basis; that all second and third-class postmasters, and possibly also first-class postmasters, would be in the classified service before he had finished. As to the fourth-class postmasters, he declared that former President Taft had not gone far enough; that he should have taken a step further and instead of transferring positions originally filled as rewards for political service to the classified roll should have required an examination to determine fitness. The Postmaster General said he had not finally decided how he would handle the situation.

Frankfort, Ky., March 12.—The following statement to the Confederate soldiers of Kentucky was issued today by Capt. W. J. Stone, the Confederate pension agent:

"To the Confederate soldiers and widows in Kentucky who have applied for pensions, and their friends:

"I notice in the Louisville Times of Tuesday, March 11, a card from Gen. Bennett H. Young, giving out the information that he intends to prosecute a suit to test the constitutionality of the Confederate pension law. For your information, I want to say that as soon as the Attorney General had written his reply to the Auditor expressing doubt as to the constitutionality of that law, I at once took steps to bring a suit to test the question and before anybody outside the Capitol knew of the reply, I had the arrangements all made, and before Gen. Young's card was written a suit had been filed in court.

"Two prominent and highly competent lawyers volunteered their services in Mr. James W. Blackburn, Sr., one of the most gallant Confederates in the State, and Judge James H. Hazelrigg, who was himself as brave and gallant Confederate as ever wore the gray and who has since the war honored the judicial ermine of the State by his services and decisions as a Judge of the Court of Appeals.

"I took the necessary steps to this contest at the earliest possible moment, believing it my duty and knowing I was in better position to do it than any one else because of my thorough familiarity with this whole question. I employed the above named attorneys because I knew them to be entirely competent. I not only took the matter up at the earliest possible moment, but will be heard by the court in defense of the law.

"I have no objection to any and all the assistance any Confederate soldiers or sons of veterans may desire to render, but I want it known that I am leading in this matter and will continue to do so till the question is decided in the State's highest court. I want to say further that the Auditor, Henry M. Bosworth, is the son of a Confederate soldier and his sympathies are all with the idea of pensioning needy Confederates, but he is under a bond for a large amount and cannot issue warrants for money where there is a question of the legality of a law until that question has been decided by the Court of Appeals.

"James Garnett, the Attorney General is also in sympathy with the objects of the pension law, but is sworn to do his duty, and must render opinions in accordance with what he deems the law to be. That we will be able to show that the pension law is in accord with the Constitution of the State I have no doubt.

Very Truly, W. J. Stone."

WHO WANTS GOOD ROADS?

It is not unnatural that a wrong impression prevails as to the class of people who will be most benefitted by good roads. The enthusiasm of automobile owners for good roads, and the large number of cars seen in all parts of the country, has given the impression that the automobilists will be the largest gainers. This is, however, an erroneous idea, as a "road census" taken would show that the motor car owners are in the minority, and the people deriving the greatest benefit are the farmers. While the users of motor cars may assist in the work of creating public sentiment in favor of road improvement, the real benefit to the country is in the saving to the farmers in transportation, and in the enhanced farm production which better marketing facilities engender. Many a farmer will take to market over good roads a load of early potatoes for which he can get $1.50 a bushel, while with bad roads it would not have occurred to him to plant them. The difference to him is between a quick trip to town early in the morning over an improved road, or a slow, laborious trip, taking practically an entire day over bad roads. It is everywhere admitted that with the improvement of our roads, farm lands will greatly enhance in value. All of these arguments in favor of a strong agitation for better roads should receive the earnest attention of every farmer. Our faithful servants, the horses and mules, should also be considered in this matter as it is nothing less than cowardly to let these patient, dumb servants be lashed through mud and ruts, straining every nerve to serve.—Farm and Press.

Children are much more likely to contract the contagious diseases when they have colds. Whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever and consumption are diseases that are often contracted when the child has a cold. That is why all medical authorities say beware of colds. For the quick cure of colds you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by J. W. Berkshire and Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

The number of parcel post packages continue to increase and the rural carriers are beginning to wonder how much longer the parcels post is going to enlarge their burdens. They expect Uncle Sam to even up matters however, by coming down with an increase in pay in the next year at the longest, when they will be all smiles again.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of coughs, colds and croup. It can be depended upon. Try it. Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

KY. OIL FIELDS MAKING GOOD

The Wolfe and Morgan county oil fields are beginning to take on a real boom and soon they will rival the great Pennsylvania fields. The Licking Valley Courier of West Liberty, says last week: "The third producer was drilled in on the Cannel City field Monday with every indication that it will eclipse either of the others in production. It shows a volume of more than 1,500,000 feet of gas per day and a flow of oil variously estimated at from 600 to 1,000 barrels per day. On account of the terrific pressure even an approximately correct estimate is hard to make, but the most conservative do not hesitate to say that it is a much better well than either the "Gray Eagle" or the Terrill No. 1, and that is admitting a great deal. Great excitement prevails at Cannel City and all kinds of rumors are afloat in regard to deals that are being negotiated and the prices offered for territory adjacent to these wells.

Many sufferers from rheumatism have been surprised and delighted with the prompt relief afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. This liniment is for sale by J. W. Berkshire and Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

DON'T FEED CREAM TO THE CALVES

If you are skimming your milk by any setting or dilution method or are using an inferior or worn out cream separator you are surely feeding a lot of butter-fat to your calves and pigs that is worth from 25 to 30 cents a pound.

You may think this is too small a loss to amount to much, but when you figure that it happens twice a day, 365 days a year, you will find that a De Laval Separator would save its cost every six months over any kind of "gravity" skimming and every year over any inferior or worn out separator.

Get a clean skimming DE LAVAL Cream Separator as soon as you can and get all the money that is coming to you from the product of your cows.

We can make you a liberal allowance for your present separator, if you have one, and, if more convenient for you, can also arrange for a partial payment at time of purchase and balance on easy payments.

If you want to see for yourself just how much more cream you can get with a De Laval let us set up a machine for you and have you try it out for yourself. Just 'phone or drop us a postal and we will be glad to bring a machine out to your place.

PIGS NEED EXERCISE.

You ought to encourage the pigs to exercise by feeding them some distance from their sleeping quarters.

Fruit growing and poultry raising go well together. Anyone following either will do well to consider the other.

Be sure to destroy all human scent about the traps you set, else the varmints will fight shy of your little game.

The growth and feeding value of the soy bean is quite like that of the cowpea.

It pays to get acquainted with the market demands and supply the market with the products it wants.

Muskrats make good bait for mink. In their natural hunts for food, mink often prey on rats.

Red raspberries do not thrive in the west. They seem to like moister, cooler climate better. They are also more likely to winter-kill in the west than the black variety.

Liberal Reward

earned by those who grow fruit. There is always a demand on the market for fruit, perfect in size, color and flavor.

Using Grasselli spray products, insures the grower against poor fruit, and assures him that when he has sprayed with Grasselli products his labor is not in vain.

This brand is recommended by State and National experts.

Local Happenings.

The ice harvest is over.

Considerable nice weather the past week.

Last Monday was St. Patrick's day all day long.

You want to sow those oats the first opportunity you have.

The tack hammer and the scrub brush chorus will soon be heard in the land again.

Harry Roberts has a sale advertised in this issue. Read it on another page.

Grass is growing rapidly, and with a few days of warm weather will make good pasture.

The roads were in fine condition several days last week for an application of the spit-log drag.

Spring is due to arrive tomorrow, Friday. It is hoped it will be on time and make its stay permanent.

Elmer Kirkpatrick bought a good work mare of Clem Kendall, of Limaburg neighborhood, one day last week.

William Kirkpatrick, sold to Bobrink, of Lawrenceburg, one day last week thirty-five hogs at 8½ cents a pound.

Not as much plowing as usual has been done in this county for the coming crop. Very few have started their breaking plows.

The ground hog's winter schedule expired last Sunday, but he has several postponed dates to fill, which he will attend to later on.

Kirb Tanner says that the wind blew so hard last Friday that when he was walking against it and it would stop he would fall forward.

Last year's base ball club at Burlington was a financial success. It had one dollar left in the treasury when the last claim was paid a few days ago.

Harbengers of spring were in evidence at the Boone County Deposit Bank corner last Friday morning, where they lined up on the fence with their backs to the sun and let Old Sol take a fair crack at them.

Jailer J. S. Adams bought a horse at H. W. Ryle's sale in Erlanger, last Wednesday. He wants to be prepared to take to the political war-path when the time comes to begin an ective campaign.

Not many wild ducks have been seen in this part of the county the past month. It is prrobable that they have been informed of Grover Jarrell's recent success as a hunter and are afraid to light anywhere in the territory where he might reach them.

The first consignment of garden seeds arrived at Burlington postoffice one day last week. An effort was made to have the garden seed business cut out but the Congressmen would not stand for it and they will be sent out as usual from Washington.

W. J. Breli, of Erlanger, made his first trip between Burlington and Cincinnati, last Monday with his auto express. He had a pretty good trip, and his business will in all probability increase, and the public wil lfind his three trips a week on Monday, Thursday and Saturday, will be a great convenience.

The small frogs that make life a burden in the neighborhood of sloughs and ponds early in the spring woke up one night the first of last week and began their nocturnal concerts. It is said that they look thru ice three times each spring after their first concert.

Look at the printed label on your paper and see if it shows correctly the time to which your subscription is paid. If it does not notify this office at once that a correction can be made. Do not wait for a year and then make your complaint. It is the desire that these dates be correct all the time.

Robt. McMillan shipped to Louisville, last Monday, the following race horses to take part in the races there next month; Jack Cavanaugh, Burlington Bess, Wishing Ring, Joe Pugh and Lockland. At the same time B. B. Hume shipped his very promising two year old filly, Anna Gillmore, which is entered in several races.

Rev. Edgar Riley has a field glass that was presented to him by W. W. Grant, of Belleview. It was picked up on the battle field of the Thames by Mr. Grant's grandfather in 1812. Compared with instruments of its kind of the present day it shows it is of primative pattern. It is of English manufacture.

Spencer Tanner, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, was in Burlington a few days since lodging for record deeds for some real estate for which he closed a deal a few days before. Mr. Tanner now has over four hundred acres of land, and to this he will, doubtless, add more in the next few years, as let come what will he continues to accumulate, being one of the most successful dairymen in this part of the State.

The Recorder suggests that the citizens of Burlington get together and designate a clean-up day at which time the old town will be given a thorough cleaning, thereby adding to its looks as well as improving its sanitary conditions. One day spent in cleaning the streets and alleys might prove of great benefit to all concerned, and the time would not be missed. If the work cannot be done by individuals let money be subscribed by the property owners and merchants for clean-up purposes and put in the hands of some one authorized to have the work done and who will see that it is done. What say you all?

When boys begin playing marbles you can feel satisfied that spring is here.

Being disappointed in getting the tenant with whom I thought I had contracted my farm for this year, I had to call off my sale advertised for the 19th inst.
B. E. AYLOR.

There ought to be considerable figuring in prgoress in this county now, being conducted by those who contemplate bidding on sections of public roads as will be let by the county engineer.

Albert Conner has finished prizing his 250,000 pound purchase of 1912 tobacco. He says he made no big money on the purchase but has made very good wages handling it. He has contracted for a few crops to be raised this year.

Arrangements are being perfected for the County Road Engineer, accompanied hy a highway expert, together with the County Judge and the Magistrates, to meet the people of every magisterial district in the next two weeks. There will be at least two meetings in each district. A practical log drag will be exhibited at each meeting.—Bowling Green Messenger.

King George I. of Greece, was assassinated Tuesday, as he walked a street of Salonica accompanied by his side. The murderer was captured and said simply he was against governments. The ruler lived but a few minutes after the fatal shot was fired. The death of the King threw many European courts into mourning. King Constantine, his son, succeeds to the throne.

The high wind that prevailed last Friday, left its mark in this locality. It unroofed a portion of Jack Sandford's barn, took a section of roof off of the building occupied by Sam Kirtley, colored, in Burlington and blew a shed down for James E. Smith near town. The wind was a remnant of the destructive storm that visited the Southern States the day before. It is believed, as the wind blew from that direction.

A young man, a patron of the Burlington postoffice was present at the distribution of the mail, one evening last week, and was handed a letter the direction on which he read several times and then asked someone standing by who the party was to whom the letter was addressed, saying he knew of no one by the name. You can imagine his surprise when the by-stander remarked, "she is your mother."

Three auto loads of doctors passed through Burlington about six o'clock, last Tuesday evening, enroute to Belleview to attend the meeting of the Boone County Medical Society held there that night. About a mile out on the Belleview pike one of the machines was put out of commission for a time by a puncture which was repaired in short order. The first automobile owned in this county was the pathfinder for the party and was driven by its present owner, Dr. B. K. Menefee, of Walton. The society was entertained by Dr. Richmond, of Belleview, and a most delightful time was had.

Robt. McMillan shipped five of his race horses to Louisville, last Monday, where they are entered for the races. Among the horses shipped was "Wishing Ring," the animal that made a big killing at Latonia, last year, pulling down nearly one thousand dollars to one, but, unfortunately for Mr. McMillan he had not a dollar on her. The horses shipped Monday by Mr. McMillan were wintered on his farm on the Belleview pike half a mile west of Burlington, where they were brought through in fine condition. Mr. McMillan's friends here wish him the best of success with his horses this season.

There were two lively battles with fire in this neighborhood, last Tuesday. One of the fires started from a briar pile to which Elmer Kirkpatrick applied a torch on his premises. It soon invaded J. C. Revill's domain and threatened to do much damage, when a couple of men with plows and horses and about twenty other men and boys volunteered to do battle with the flames, which were extinguished after a hard fight. The other battle was waged on the farm of Bert Sullivan, where a burning log started the trouble. Mr. Rector's buildings were in very great danger at one time, being saved only by the heroic efforts of several men who chanced to be close at hand when the fire was discovered.

TEXAS LAND SWINDLE.

WARNING TO HOMESEEKERS—If you are thinking of buying any land in Texas be careful from whom you buy and what kind of land you are buymg, for hundreds of farmers from Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and other states have been swindled through misrepresentation and misleading statements made by some large land companies. While in certain sections of the Gulf Coast in Texas is the richest soil in the United States, and many farmers are making big money on small tracts of land, some of the land is low and swampy, which is misrepresented. I know this is the fact, for I have been over the land, and came here purposely from my home in Covington, Ky., to investigate the actual condition of the country, the soil and climate, and I know the truth of it. As I will remain here for another month or more I will be pleased to give the full particulars to any one, especially those who intend to buy land in Texas. Address.

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated airight.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS,
Erlanger, Ky.

President Woodrow Wilson.

Welcome to Woodrow Wilson! May his administration deserve the praise of the people,—and receive it.—Washington Post.

His decisiveness, his devotion to duty, his splendid ideals, which have been illustrated not merely by his promises and his words but by his extraordinary performances in his State of New Jersey, speak for him against detraction and allay doubts and misgivings.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Meantime the inaugural must commend itself to all intelligent and sober-minded Americans as the utterance of a sincere, scholarly, thoughtful and progressive man who assumes his exalted position with a rare single-mindedness of purpose and with every determination to serve the people without thought of self, faction or party—to serve under the guidance of a "rectified will" and disciplined mind,—Chicago Record Herald.

Woodrow Wilson enters the presidency better equipped in one respect than any other man who has held that high office. He is absolutely free. So far as is known, there is not a single obligation, either personal or political, which threatens to hamper or unduly influence his juggment. Fate has given him a stainless parchment upon which to write the record of the next few years. There is nothing to erase.—Philadelphia North American.

Mr. Wilson will make mistakes. His administration may fail to accomplish all that is expected of it, as most administrations have tailed, for this is a Government by man and not by gods. But if the American people give to Mr. Wilson the support that he has earned, we do not believe that he will fail in the greater achievements to which he is pledged. The failure may be Woodrow Wilson's failure, but the disaster will be the disaster of American Democracy.—New York World.

It is fair to consider that he is new to the complex machinery of politics and government in Washington. The sad fate of some of his predecessors who have not realized what that means may well have taught him caution. It is fair also to consider that in his brief experience of public responsibility Woodrow Wilson has given proof that he can act. At any rate, the new President has made an appeal to his fellow-countrymen which will touch their loyality and bring the cordial wish that he may cap high aspiration with noble achievement.—Chicago Tribune.

The public is interested in results and does not have the concein it used to have for the sacredness of party labels. It is disposed to be entirely fair to the new President and to give him full credit for any contributions he may be able to make to general welfare and progress. That does not mean, of course, that the parties opposing his own have surrendered the natural right to criticise him if his programme of betterment fails, either thru his own fault or through that of the imperfect political instrument with which he has to work. —New York Tribune.

The Old Confederate.

Who has been lead on by luring promises more or further than the the boys who wore the gray and fought for a just cause? They left their happy homes, wives, fathers, mothers and all, and followed the stars and bars, fought for a lost cause, the shattered army marched back home in rags after many a hard fought battle,victorous but outnumbered. They came back home and builded cities upon the ruins, and made the South blos some as a rose. Most of them have crossed the golden strad and are resting with Stonewall Jackson in the "shade of the trees." A few are left in Kentucky, some without homes, still lisening to rosy promises, too old to work and too proud to beg. They have been promised the paltry sum of $10 per month, but promise is all. There is no assurance that Kentucky's blue-grass will not wave above their sleeping forms, and a like race of heroes will never peopte thid earth again. Money has been found for everything else. There is no duty greater than that of paying this deserving tribute as a recognition of duty done. Pay the few who remain this pittance. God knows it is due them. They have waited too long. The official who dares shw his head after opposing a measure to pay them will reap his reward. Owen County Democrat.

It is costing the Attorney-General considerable postage and requiring a great deal of his time answering questions propounded by candidates in regard to the primary election law. The petition feature of the law is causing the most doubt in the minds of those who expect to have certain claims submitted for adjudication under that law on the first Saturday in next August, and they constitute a considerable per cent of the State's population.

It appears to be the desire of the voters of this county that the candidates for the legislature mount the raging stump early in their campaign and make public their views upon questions of the most importance to the State. The day has come when the legislative capacity of all democrats is not recognized as equal.

MRS. WM. ARCHER

Tells Mothers What To Do For Delicate Children.

"My fourteen-year-old daughter was very thin and delicate. She had a bad cough so that I became very much alarmed about her health. She was nervous and did not sleep well, had very little appetite and doctors did not help her. Having heard so much about Vinol, I decided to give it a trial. It has helped her wonderfully. She can sleep all night now without coughing once; in fact, her cough is gone. Her appetite is greatly improved and she has gained in weight. Vinol is a wonderful medicine, and I will always keep it in the house. I wish every mother knew what Vinol will do for delicate children." Mrs. Wm. Archer, 223 Broadway, Long Branch, N. J.

This delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil is a wonderful body-builder and strength-creator for both young and old. We promise to give back your money in every such case where Vinol does not benefit. This shows our faith in Vinol.

SLOGAN IS "ONE FOR EVERY ONE"

Cheerful Cry Adopted In Rowan County In 1911.

JEANETTE BELL ORIGINATOR

Practiced What She Preached on Poor Girl Who Got Behind In Her Studies on Account of Practical Blindness. Work Has Not Stopped, Either.

Last winter, when the enthusiasm of the moonlight school campaign was at its height in Rowan county, Miss Jeanette Bell, an official stenographer, decided to adopt and carry out the slogan, "One for every one." She looked about her in Moorehead, the county seat, for some person who was out of school and could not read or write. In the hotel in which she was living she discovered a pupil, Cordie Wilson, who was working as a chambermaid.

When asked about the work she had done for Cordie Wilson, Miss Bell smiled quietly and said: "It wasn't work at all. It was a pleasure, and a very real pleasure too. You see, Cordie was born in Elliott county, and when she was quite young she was almost blind. Of course she did not go to school with the other children, and when her eyes grew better she felt shy about going to school with children so much her junior. This was somewhat accentuated by the fact that she was one of those unfortunate overgrown girls that look almost twice their real age. Today, at fifteen, Cordie looks like seventeen or eighteen.

"At night when her work about the hotel was done she would come to me with her books and pencil and pad and work like a Turk. Naturally I expected it to take her some time to learn to write and read, but in six nights she could write her name easily and knew how to join all her letters into words. In this same time she had also learned to read well enough to cover the first twenty pages in her first reader. Soon after this she left the hotel and did not come to me any more."

Every vital human movement easily becomes both religious and contagious and the moonlight school seems to prove the rule. Other counties and communities are taking up the work, and it is hoped that the whole state will realize the value of a school for out of school folks.

In 1911 Rowan county decided to strive to get a number of her schools to open their doors for adults who could not read or write. Grown people do not care for a primer or a first reader, so Rowan county launched a paper, THE ROWAN COUNTY SCHOOL MESSENGER, that the pupils might have a real live paper to read. The first column of the paper, dated Sept. 16, 1912, is as follows:

Can we win?

Win what?

Win the first night school prize.

Of course we can. Just watch us try. And watch us WIN!

We are winners, we are!

Watch us grow. Grow what? Everything but weeds.

Our district shall win!

Our division must lead!

Let's all go to school. It is good for us. It will make us young again. It will make us more useful. It may start us on the road to greatness.

All night schools in Rowan county started on Monday evening, Sept. 16.

Each will try to have the largest number enrolled, the best attendance each night and the largest graduating class; also each will try to have the oldest pupil.

Rowan county has the finest building stone in the world.

Rowan county will grow the finest fruit in the world.

SOME INTERESTING LETTERS

Organization of Children's Corn and Poultry Clubs Is Doing a Whole Lot For the Commonwealth—"Education Must Be More Than Books."

Moorefield, Ky., Jan. 17, 1913.

Mr. James Speed, Louisville, Ky.:

Dear Sir—In answer to your letter regarding the poultry contest I will endeavor to tell you how I became a prize winner.

First, I gave my county superintendent my name and told her I wanted to enter the Poultry club. The next thing I had to get two settings of eggs of fifteen each from pure bred chickens.

Out of the thirty eggs I hatched twenty-six chicks. I then put them in a place to themselves. Out of the twenty-six I raised fifteen chickens. They were Barred Plymouth Rocks, Ringlet strain.

When it came time for the fair I selected two and took them to the fair. The reason I have not answered your letter before was because I could not get my picture. Yours sincerely,

MARY D. THOMPSON.

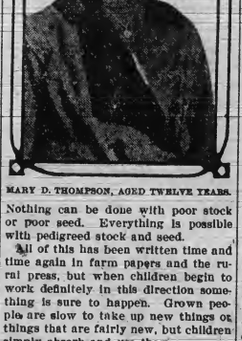
Ewing, Ky., Jan. 2, 1913.

Mr. James Speed, Louisville, Ky.:

Dear Sir—Your letter of recent date received. As it was directed to Carlisle, I was delayed in receiving it. You wish to know something about our Poultry club. We are not yet thoroughly organized, but if you can meet with us in March, 1913, you can learn more about it.

Last year we gave our names and address to our county superintendent, Miss Lida Gardner. There were four girls from each of the four divisions of the county. Last year we bought our own eggs. Next year we hope to have them furnished from some place in order to bring new stock into the county.

We live on a farm, so my chicks were not much trouble. Mother raises Plymouth Rocks; I had Buff Orpingtons. I kept the chicks free from lice; fed them twice each day until fall, when I fed corn and cane seed. They were with the hen, had a large range and grew fast.



We had our exhibit in the courthouse the 14th of December with corn and tobacco. Besides these, there were various kinds of school work.

I cannot send you photo, as I have no late picture, none since I was nine years old. I forgot to say the girls were to be twelve and over. A prize of $2.50 was awarded in each division.

I shall inclose a clipping from our county paper. Hoping this will help you in preparing your newspaper work and thanking you for the interest you have taken, respectfully, THELMA SAMPSON.

"Just a woman's job raising chickens"—how often have you heard that remark! But the figures at the head of this article are from the government reports for the year 1910 and are approximately correct and show that it is a big proposition. No wonder the school people who have been pushing corn and potato clubs should use poultry clubs to interest the girls in light and pleasant work that means dollars and cents in their pockets.

In corn clubs one of the slogans has been "pure bred seed," and in the girls' poultry clubs it is "pure bred fowls."

MARY D. THOMPSON, AGED TWELVE YEARS.

Nothing can be done with poor stock or poor seed. Everything is possible with pedigreed stock and seed.

All of this has been written time and time again in farm papers and the rural press, but when children begin to work definitely in this direction something is sure to happen. Grown people are slow to take up new things or things that are fairly new, but children simply absorb and use them.

If you have had a successful boys' corn club in your county, why not try to organize a small poultry club for the girls? If you do, be certain to insist upon the rearing of only fowls of pure blood. It will mean that the girls will have an absorbing occupation that adults can watch with great advantage.

EDUCATION MUST BE MORE THAN BOOKS IF THE CHILD IS TO BE A REAL SUCCESS IN LIFE.

Tired Fields.

No farmer would think of working his horse continuously. He gives him Sunday off and at times says: "I think I'd better let ol' Bill run out to grass for a right smart spell. He don't look just right the last few days."

Does this same farmer watch his fields as carefully as he does his horse? Does he know the looks of a tired field as well? Does he turn his tired fields out "to rest for a spell?"

If a horse is thin he is rested and fed carefully. If a field is thin and tired it, too, must be rested and fed with clover, cowpeas or barnyard manure.

The Man and the Mule.

A man is a creature; so is a mule. The mule has all the advantages. He don't have to suht off the alarm. You can trae a mule's pedagree; you can't a man's. A mule goes to work because somebody drives him to it; a man works because he don't know any better.

When a mule eats he don't have to wash the dishes; when a man eats he has to begin figuring. Some times he don't always figure right. When he pulls up to thetrough there's no food in it. A man has to hunt hay for both the mule and himself.

When a mule goes to bed he sleeps, when a man goes to bed he thinks. Often a man don't get much time then to think. I know a married man who took off his clothes to walk. Wore a path in three carpets keeping the noise down. He did most of his thinking in his bear feet. He never said, but I guessed what he was thinking about.

When a mule gets ready he stops. When a man stops he backs up. If he backs up too often he has to move. When mules wants to rest he he rests, when a man rests he has to work twice as hard the next day. A mule don't have any pay days; he don't have to get over them.

When a mule quits they bury bout him. It costs only five dollars him, when a man quits they talk liars to bury a mule—great advantage for the mule. When a mule kicks they pay attention to him; when a man kicks they shut off his gas.—Tulsa, Oklahoma, World.

FARM DAIRIES.

With the development of the creamery butter-making industry and the reaching out of cities along railroad lines for their milk supply, there has been a decrease in the output of butter from the farms.

As a rule the marketing of the output of the dairy in the form of milk or cream will be found more profitable than working it up at home into butter. However, there are localities in which a few cows are kept as a part of the stock on the farm, where a milk or cream market is not available. From these farms comes the supply of "country butter, some good, some bad, all dumped together in the country store and thence to market as disreputable a food product as is to be found. "As poor as country butter" is a comparison often made, yet as a matter of fact the butter made in the farm can and should be made superior to that made at the creameries. On the farm the milk is controlled from the cow to the churn, all by the same person, while with the creamery butter this is impossible.

Notwithstanding the fact the country butter as a whole is known to be of low grade, there is an urgent demand for fancy farm butter even at creamery prices. Where such a demand exists and where the skim milk is fed to calves and pigs the making of butter on the farm can be made most profitable.

Poor butter is usually found as a companion of poor cows. A low-priced product combined with low production, a most unprofitable combination. The average dairy cow in this country is producing something like 160 pounds of butter per year. There are many herds producing 400 pounds per cow annually. The income from such cows is almost three times as great as that from the average cow. This does not take into account the fact that these good cows make good butter, while the average dairy cow of the farm dairy makes the inferior product. Then, too, the amount of skim milk from good dairies is more than twice as great. Why, then, keep poor cows and make the product into low priced butter?

The quality of butter made on the farm is a good indicator of the character of the individuals responsible for it. Good butter comes only from those farm dairies where intelligent efforts are spent in its making. Unless it is possible to keep good cows, to care for them so as to make them do their best, and to care for the products so as to turn out the best grade of butter, farm butter-making as well as the butter will be found unpleasant and unprofitable.—Ex.

President Wilson's policy of having the heads of departments make a selection of the men they desire to fill the subordinate positions is not a bad one. It will relieve him of much worry and work, and shows that he does not desire to be the whole thing when it comes to dishing out patronage. It is generally conceded that President Wilson has displayed a very level head so far.

It looks very much like Kentucky's big Senator is going to cut considerable ice in government affairs at Washington from now on, and there is no member of Congress who will take more pleasure in going after positions for his constituents. Ollie has a list of all the desirable positions of which he intends to see that Kentucky gets her share.

Mt. Sterling is considering a proposition to tear up some of her brick streets and have them repaved with wooden blocks so the travel over them will not disturb the slumbers of the property owners. A town without noise and smoke does not amount to much in this day of hustle, and get-there as soon as possible.

Senator Tillman lost his long fight for chairman of the powerful Appropriations Committee, the Steering Committee according the position to Martin, of Virginia. Tillman heads the Naval Affairs, Bacon the Foreign Relations, Culberson the Judiciary and Owen the new Banking and Currency Committee.

The prospects for an extra session of the Kentucky General Assembly have disappeared. The Governor realizes that Kentucky's financial condition will not justify the unnecessary expense. The legislatures of Kentucky are responsible for the present condition of the State's treasury.

These are busy days on the farm and no farmer who expects to raise any crops at all this year has any time now for eating idle bread. There is so much to do now that the farmer hardly knows where to start.

The Attorney General's department has advised the Kentucky State Auditor not to issue any interest-bearing warrants on account of the School of Reform payroll in excess of $5,000 annually.

The Kentucky delegation in Congress were not long in finding their way to the pie counter, and the best part of it is they got results at once, showing that Kentucky Congressmen are not without influence at headquarters.

It is impossible for some of the county candidates to restrain a desire to enter upon an active campaign it seems. There is plenty of time, boys, in which to present your claims for consideration by the voters.

Albert Piper, who kept a store at Bank Lick, Kenton county, was shot by his wife and instantly killed about 6 a. m. yesterday. It is said that he was whipping his wife, who reached for a pistol near at hand, and shot him thru the temple. They had not been living together in a peaceful manner for some time. He was about 43 years old, and leaves three or four small children.

Dr. Hamilton is looking remarkably well, and is having a fine practice, it averaging about $1,500 per month. He is well pleased with his prospects and likes Chicago for its many advantages but still has a great fondness for this section and its excellent people. He returned to Chicago last Sunday.

Abner L. Ward, the popular postmaster at Glencoe, Gallatin county, was here a part of last week assisting Thos. Percival to secure enough contracts with the farmers to insure the arrangement with the Snider Preserve Company of Cincinnati for the raising of an acreage of tomatoes in this quarter this season. They have about 100 acres signed, and expect to get fifty more. The Snider Company has accepted the contracts, and add that they would arrange to have a factory here again if given the proper encouragement.

AN EXPANDING IDUSTRY.

The poultry in Kentucky, according to an official of the Experiment Station, is worth nearly as much as all the sheep in the State and about one half as much as the total number of hogs, says the Courier-Journal.

Kentucky is attaining some prestige as a poultry State and the industry is a growing one. With the exception of Texas no Southern State exceeds Kentucky in the extent of its poultry interests, though some of the Northern States and the neighboring state of Missouri are far in advance as shown by the Federal Census reports. By the census figures of 1910 Iowa, Illinois and Missouri were the leading poultry states, in the order named in the number of fowls. Each of these States reported more than 20,000 States reported more than 20,000,000 domestic fowls of all kinds, while Kentucky reported nearly 9,000,000.

The poultry farms are becoming every year more numerous. The poultry farm is also being conducted more as an independent and substantial business enterprise and less as an avocation and amusement or a side line to farming.

Public Sale!

Thursday, MARCH 27th, 1913

Of F. S. Pollitt's Live Stock

AND OTHER THINGS

One mile West of Crittenden, Grant County' Kentucky.

Having sold my farm I will offer on the premises at Public Sale the following Live Stock and other property:

SIXTY-FIVE HEAD OF JERSEY CATTLE,
FIVE HEAD OF HORSES,
SEVENTEEN HEAD OF HOGS.

For five years and a half I have been building up a herd of High Grade Jersey Cows. It has been my aim to get rid of all inferior and unprofitable cattle. The most of my present herd are of my own raising. They are superior cream and butter cows. On account of the great richness of the milk from my herd it has sold at from five to eight cents per gallon more than average market milk. This herd has a most Remarkable Record. According to test made by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky., the milk showed 5.9 per cent. butter fat. For a large herd and a big quantity of milk this is an uncommonly HIGH RECORD. Almost 6 per cent. butter fat. The cows are well broken and gentle. Twenty-nine of these cows are from three to five years old. Two cows are six years old, and the balance are over six. About a dozen of these cows have freshened in the last three months; some ten or twelve should have calves at their side on day of sale, and most of the balance should come fresh a month or two later. Buy these cows.

Remember the Date, Thursday, March 27th, 1913.

HEIFERS—I will offer at this sale 18 highly-bred Yearling Heifers. They were all sired by my bull, "Practical Maid's Beauty Owl." These heifers should make a great foundation herd for some one who wishes to start the dairy business, or a fine addition to a herd. Do not let this opportunity to buy some high-grade dairy stock pass. Also four splendid Heifer Calves sired by the herd bull.

BULL—Do you want a great Bull to head your herd? Here he is. "Practical Maid's Beauty's Owl is his name. He is registered in the American Jersey Cottle Club under No. 82057. He was dropped April 29th, 1907. He has a fine pedigree and is a splendid animal of the best dairy type. He has always shown a gentle disposition. He should sell for several hundred dollars, and if you buy him for less you have that much better bargain. Be sure to see him. Buy this Bull.

Remember the Date, Thursday, March 27th, 1913.

HORSES—Five head of Horses will be sold. One small Bay Horse, gentle for children to ride or drive. One large Black Horse, blind, 7 years old. A true puller and fine work animal. One pair of large Black Horses, 7-yrs. old, suitable for hearse team. To be offered singly and as a pair; this is a fine farm team. One beautiful, high-spirited bay mare, 9 years old; very fast in harness. The kind of animal you like to look at. This mare is bred to Squirrel McDonald and is expected to bring her colt about the time of the sale or a few days later. When the colt is a day old I would consider it worth a hundred dollars. The purchaser will pay the season. Buy her.

Remember the Date, Thursday, March 27th, 1913.

HOGS—Four Poland China Sows. Two Boars. Eleven fine Shoats.

BEES—Nine stands of Bees.

DAIRY OUTFIT—One "Simplex" Hand Cream Separator, capacity 900 pounds per hour, in perfect condition, and has been used very little. One Cream and Milk Cooler and Aerator. This is one of the best things in a milk room. One large "Fettenborn" Refrigerator in fine condition. Can use either water or Ice to keep your cans of milk or cream cool. One complete Babcock Milk Tester. Milk Scales. Large number Milk Cans.

A NEW SILO—Last September I bought a new Silo, and when it arrived I found I did not have time to set it up. The size is 18x36 and the capacity is 190 tons. It is as fine a lot of material as I ever saw, and much superior to the silo which I built four years ago. You ought to have a silo. In my opinion the time is coming when the progressive stock farmer will think it as necessary to build a silo as to build a corn crib. Start now.

The school, despite interruptions, is doing excellent work.

In the Path of the Storm.

A remnant of the storm that destroyed about five millin dollars worth of property in the south and killed a hundred or more people, last Thursday night, passed over this county about 4 a. m., last Friday, and in some places did considerable damage to property, but no lives were lost nor persons injured.

Both the residence and the barn of Ezekiel Rice, who lives on the East Bend road in the Waterloo nighborhood were partially unroofed while his cornerib was demolished.

Considerable of the roof on Charles Kelly's barn in the same neighborhood, was carried away, a portion of it having not been recovered yet.

The roof on Wm. Hedges' residence out on what is known as the John Unedrhill place, was damaged considerably, while several nice fruit trees were uprooted.

The barn of G. W. Sandford out on the East Bend road gave up a portion of its roof.

The residence of Jerry Beemon at the top of Limaburg hill on the Florence pike was in the path of the storm and a portion of its roof was lifted off.

Two large silos in Hebron neighborhood were wrecked.

In some localities fencing suffered considerably.

Notice.—R. C. Gaines, of Idlewild, is authorized to receive and receipt for assessments made by the Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Boone County.

DEATH AND DESTRUCTION

Follows The Down-Pours of Rain of Tuesday and Tuesday Night.

The storms that have visited the south, west and central parts of the United States this week have been appaling in the extreme. Following are the headlines in yesterday's Enquirer:

Flood Sweeps 5,000 to Death in the streets of Dayton; Four Hundred pupils perish in Submerged Schoolhouse; 500 drowned at Peru, Ind., Ohio Valley Total 7,000.

Nothing like the storms of this week ever visited the Ohio valley. The down-pours came so suddenly and lasted so long that time was not given in which to escape their fury. Death and destruction covered Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. Tuesday night, thousands of lives being snuffed out while millions of dollars worth of property were destroyed. The account of the disaster is too harrowing to read.

William Utz, who resides a few miles this side of Florence on the pike, was in Burlington last Saturday afternoon to have one of his hands treated, it having been giving him considerable pain as the result of having run a briar in the back of the hand near one of the knuckles and being unable to remove it.

As Mr. Henry Terrill was coming up in town, last Saturday morning, led by his little four year old grandson, Terrill Riley, he fell over a roll of carpet that chanced to be on the sidewalk, and got a hard fall which jarred him considerably, but, fortunately, he was not hurt serriously. Mr. Terrill was eighty years old yesterday, Wednesday.

CLOUD BURST

Does Considerable Damage in Union and Vicinity—Bridges and Culverts Washed Away.

The hardest rain fall in many years visited this county about 7 p. m. last Tuesday, and Union precinct was the scene of a cloud burst and the little stream called Tiger inundated the town and caused much excitement and did considerable damage. Benj. Norman's store was in the track of the flood and the water was several inches deep in the building. B. L. Cleek and Harry Riley had to ride horses into their stables to release those that were in the stables, while Dr. Senour waded in water up to his arm pits to get his horse out of his stable. Bridges, fencing and water gates were cleaned up along the streams.

Wallace Cleveland, colored, whose stable stands near a branch at the north end of Burlington, had to wade into his barn Tuesday evenlng and carry out a colt and a calf that were swimming to prevent drowning. For a while it looked like the building would be swept away.

Peach and plum trees are in bloom in some parts of this State.

The grass has begun its spring growth, while several varieties of shrubbery and some of the fruit trees are putting forth their leaves. Indications all point to the approach of spring.

Lawrenceburg has a new paper, The Citizen, which is devoting its entire efforts to the advancement of public improvements in that city. It is a nicely gotten up sheet and will make itself felt in the field of labor it has chosen.

I will be in Burlington next Monday, with good clothing which I will sell at $5.00 and $6 a suit; good shirts, 39 cents apiece; good socks, 75 cents a dozen pairs. Remember the date and place.

DAVID LUCAS.

Mrs. Gertrude Piper, of Bracklick, Kenton county, who shot and killed her husband one day last week has been acquitted of the charge of manslaughter. It is evident Mrs. Piper acted in selfdefense.

The heavy rains that have fallen since Monday morning have kept the water courses on the boom, washed the land considerable, damaged roads and packed the land that has been plowed.

When crossing the creek near the creamery with a load of milk Monday morning one of Walton Rice's horses got down in the stream which was on the rampage, and for a while it looked like there would be serious results, but timely assistance prevented them.

Edgar Riley has purchased several fine Duroc hogs as a nucleous for a herd of that breed. The young animals he now has cost him considerable money but he has faith in being handsomely remunerated for his efforts to improve the hogs in his neighborhood and possibly the entire county.

Bert Smith, carrier on R. D. No. 2 out of Burlington went as far as W. C. Weaver's, last Monday morning, where he found Gunpowder creek to high to cross, and by the time he got back to the small creek just south of town it was on such a rampage that he could not cross it until about noon.

James Smith, who resides on Rock Spring branch, brought a load of corn to Charles Maurer, last Saturday, and while in Burlington he was attacked and prostrated by rheumatism, and it was some time before he rallied sufficiently to be taken home. WHO IS WHO IN WILSON'S CABINET

Brief Sketches of Advisers of the New President.

BRYAN'S CAREER EPITOMIZED

McAdoo a Famous Tunnel Builder McReynolds Skilled in "Trust Busting," Garrison a Man of Unusual Executive Ability, Others Able.

Washington, March 5.—President Wilson today sent to the senate the names of the following as the members of his cabinet:

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN,
Secretary of State.

Secretary of the Treasury—William G. McAdoo of New York.

Secretary of War—Lindley M. Garrison of New Jersey.

Attorney General—James C. McReynolds of Tennessee.

Postmaster General—Albert Burleson of Texas.

Secretary of the Navy—Josephus Daniels of North Carolina.

Secretary of the Interior—Franklin K. Lane of California.

Secretary of Agriculture—David A. Houston of Missouri.

Secretary of Commerce—William C. Redfield of New York.

With one or two exceptions, these men have attained considerable national fame, and all of them are admittedly able.

Mr. Bryan's Career.

William J. Bryan has been so much in the public eye for a good many years that a sketch of his career seems almost superfluous. Born in Salem, Ill., in 1860, he was graduated with highest honors from Illinois college at Jacksonville in 1881 and received his master's degree in 1884. In 1883 he was given the degree of LL. B. by Union College of Law, Chicago. After practicing law in Jacksonville and Lincoln, Neb., he served as a member of the 52nd and 53rd congresses. Having written the "silver plank" for the Democratic national convention of 1896 and made a sensational speech, he was nominated for president, but was defeated by William McKinley. Nominated again in 1900, he was again beaten by McKinley, and then established the Commoner and made a tour of the world. Nominated a third time in 1908, he was defeated by W. H. Taft.

Mr. Bryan married Mary Elizabeth Baird in 1884. He has done much lecturing and written several books.

McAdoo the Tunnel Builder.

William Gibbs McAdoo, though a lawyer by profession, is known to most people as the builder of the great system of railway tunnels of New York city. He was born near Marietta, Ga., in 1863 and was educated at the University of Tennessee. In 1885 he was admitted to the bar.

and the same year he married Sarah Houston Fleming of Chattanooga. He entered the practice of law in New York in 1892, and since 1901 has been interested chiefly in tunnel construction there. He is president of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad company.

Lindley M. Garrison.

The selection of Lindley M. Garrison, vice-chancellor of New Jersey, to be secretary of war is in line with President Wilson's idea that the holder of that position should be a man of unusual executive ability. He is a close friend of Mr. Wilson. Mr. Garrison was born in Camden, N. J., November 28, 1864. He is a son of Rev. Joseph F. Garrison, an Episcopal clergyman. He is a brother of Justice Charles G. Garrison of the New Jersey supreme court. He was appointed to the chancery court in June, 1904, and reappointed by Chancellor Mahlon Pitney, now a justice of the United States Supreme court, in 1911 for a term of seven years.

James C. McReynolds.

In picking James Clark McReynolds for the position of attorney general, Mr. Wilson selected a man who has had a lot of experience as a "trust buster." He is a native of Elkton, Ky., where he was born in 1862, and a graduate of Vanderbilt university and the law school of the University of Virginia. From 1903 to 1907 he was assistant attorney general of the United States. He then returned to private practice, but has been retained as special assistant to the attorney general in matters relating to the enforcement of the anti-trust laws. Mr. McReynolds is unmarried.

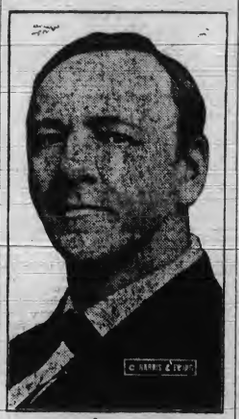
Albert S. Burleson.



Albert Sidney Burleson already has served seven consecutive terms as congressman from the Tenth district of Texas and was re-elected to the Sixty-third congress. He was born in San Marcos, Tex., in 1863, was educated at the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, Baylor university and the University of Texas, and was admitted to the bar in 1884. He was assistant city attorney of Austin for several years before going to congress. Mrs. Burleson was Miss Adele Steiner of Austin.

Josephus Daniels.

Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, is the one newspaper man given place in the cabinet. He has also been active in politics and is the member of the Democratic national committee for North Carolina. Mr. Daniels was born in 1862 at Washington, N. C., and began his newspaper career at the age of eighteen as editor of the Wilson (N. C.) Advance. In 1885 he became editor of the Raleigh State Chronicle, which nine years later he consolidated with the North Carolinian and the News and Observer.

commission since 1905, and this experience is believed to have fitted him for the executive and judicial tasks in administering the public land laws of the country. Born in Prince Edward Island in 1864, he received his education in the University of California and became a lawyer in San Francisco. Prior to his designation to the commission he was a Democratic political leader in California. He was Democratic candidate for governor, being defeated by a narrow margin.

DAVID A. HOUSTON,
Secretary of Agriculture.

subsequently he was the Democratic caucus candidate for United States senator.

David F. Houston.

In David Franklin Houston, chancellor of Washington university, St. Louis, Wilson has a secretary of agriculture who is familiar with the processes of advancing scientific farming and allied questions in this country. Mr. Houston was president of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college for a number of years, and has taught

Mr. Redfield was born in 1858 in Albany, N. Y., was educated in the schools of that city, and removed to New York in 1877 and to Brooklyn in 1883.

Blossburg, named for secretary of labor. He was born in Blantyre, Scotland, in 1863, and came to this country in 1870. The next year he began working in the Pennsylvania coal mines, and from early manhood he has been actively interested in trade union affairs. For eight years he was international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America. He is now engaged in farming. Mr. Wilson has been a member of the last three congresses, representing the Fifteenth district of his state. He is married and has nine children.

CONSORT PICKED BY ROYALTY

Somewhat Summary Method of Mating as It Is Done in the Kingdom of Siam.

Kings of Siam apparently do not believe in the wisdom of allowing single women to drift unattached about the country. In certain districts after a girl has reached an age where her securing for herself a husband is considered doubtful, she becomes "a "daughter of the king." That is, the king takes upon himself the task of settling her suitably in life.

His process is quite simple, and to the point. He proceeds to the Siamese penitentiary and looks over the various prisoners. There is a law in Siam that any prisoner can obtain his release by marrying one of this class of girls, and, naturally enough, any prisoner whom the king picks out is not likely to be backward about consenting to the ceremony. Nor does it make any difference if he is married, for the men of that country are not restricted to one wife.

As far as can be learned, there is no allowance made for the inclination of the girl in question. She has failed in her mission in life as far as she herself is concerned, and she must abide by the decision of the king.

Cream Corn Soup.

Heat a quart of milk in a mush boiler, as milk scorches easily; press a small can of corn through a strainer to remove hulls. If the corn does not go through the strainer well, pour the milk into it; this will help to secure the pulp of the corn. Add a lump of butter the size of a walnut and pepper and salt to suit the taste. Beat the white of one egg to a stiff froth and stid into the soup lightly a few minutes before serving.

NOTED SPEAKERS WILL BE HEARD

When Kentucky Educational Association Meets.

GATHERING AT LOUISVILLE.

Program Committee of K. E. A. Extremely Fortunate in Securing Services of Many Distinguished Educators and Speakers of National Reputation. Partial List Given Here.

If never there, you ought to go.
If ever there, you'll want to go.

The program committee of the Kentucky Educational association has been extremely fortunate in securing the services of practically all the prominent speakers that were originally selected for the gathering in Louisville on April 30 and May 1, 2 and 3. The music will be quite varied, as it is planned to have high school glee clubs, class choruses and organ recitals.

Before becoming president of the Armour Institute of Technology of Chicago Dr. Gunsaulus occupied some of the largest pulpits in that city. Whether Dr. Gunsaulus talked in his church or in one of Chicago's great theaters, he always had a large audience to listen to him say big things in a splendid, big way.

Dr. Gunsaulus' lecture dates have carried him all over the county in the winter, and during the summer he is always in demand as a popular Chautauqua talker. One of the finest things about Dr. Gunsaulus is that, although he is popular, he has never failed to say strong, vigorous things.

Colonel Henry Exall.

It will be an inspiration to the trustees who attend the Kentucky Educational association to listen to Colonel Exall of Texas. Last January the Commercial club of Louisville had Colonel Exall as the speaker at the annual New Year gathering and he simply electrified the men present.

Something over two years ago Colonel Exall decided that it was time for Texas to take care of her soil. Now, when Colonel Exall decides things ought to be done the things usually have a way of getting done. He at once inaugurated the Texas Industrial congress, which offered $10,000 in gold as prizes for crops in all parts of Texas. It was soon evident that the $10,000 in gold was the least expensive part of the undertaking for the various contestants must be kept in touch with each other and the congress. The undertaking cost $30,000 for the first year. Colonel Exall raised the funds.

This year 4,000 men, women, boys and girls contested for the prizes and the whole state is awake to the fact that results are being produced. In fact this feeling has become so strong that a group of business men are preparing to finance the Texas Industrial congress for a period of three years.

Dr. Charles Evans.

Dr. Charles Evans is president of the State Normal school at Edmond, Okla. He is a transplanted Kentuckian, and like any number of transplanted Kentuckians he has made good in the state of his adoption. He grew up with the country, and grew up big. In fact he has grown so big that he is now being spoken of as the next state superintendent of Oklahoma.

His new book, "Growing a Life," published by Rand, McNally & Co., is receiving favorable comment from prominent educators in all parts of the country. It will probably be adopted as one of the Kentucky reading circle books for the ensuing year.

Dr. Alston Ellis.

Another ex-Kentuckian on the program of the Kentucky Educational association is Dr. Alston Ellis, president of the Ohio university at Athens. For twelve years he has been making history at the University of Ohio, so he is sure to have something worth while to say to the teaching force of his home state.

It is said that his love for Kentucky has never been dimmed by his service out of the state. In fact it is rumored that he will build a handsome home at Fort Thomas, Ky., where he will reside after leaving the university in 1915.

FARMERS' LOSS IN SOUTH IS GREAT

Lack of Co-operation Declared to Be the Cause.

EXPERT GIVES FIGURES.

Professor Coulter of Census Bureau Has Compiled Some Startling Statistics on Annual Loss Sustained by Southern Farmers—Co-operation at Versailles For Past Year a Success.

Professor John Lee Coulter, expert special agent in the census bureau at Washington, has compiled some startling statistics in regard to the annual loss sustained by the southern farmers because of lack of co-operation.

The crops of the southern farmers are worth each year in round numbers $2,500,000,000. Most of this sum is spent for farm supplies, food, clothing, etc., and $1,000,000,000 of this amount finds its way into the pockets of the ever present middlemen.

It is estimated that the southern farmers secure credit by paying $163,000,000 in excessive interest each twelve months.

All of this tremendous waste of money is made possible through lack of co-operation on the part of the gardeners and farmers, while at the same time it makes the city man pay a much higher price for the produce than he should.

Among the men in big business enterprises co-operation has been recognized as the golden key to success in the twentieth century. Co-operation and close organization, however, are products of education, and education is the weak point in most of our rural communities. Co-operation among farmers and growers has failed largely because the mass of our rural population has been poorly educated and at the same time scattered over a wide territory. In the future our success in organization and co-operation among farmers, gardeners and fruit growers will lie in better schools, in better teachers, wide awake ministers and a closer community life.

Versailles is finishing a successful year in co-operative work with its Farmers' Union Supply company. Last summer 119 farmers and stockmen took stock in the company and its success was almost immediate. As the stockholders in this company are largely growers of Burley tobacco and raisers of blooded stock it will be seen that the union can do very little as a selling agent. The main work of the past year has been as a buying agent; and in this particular line it has been a great success.

The first year's buying business will amount to about $45,000. Large amounts of wire fencing, field seeds, farm machinery, paint and coal have been bought both from jobbers and wholesale men. The first year's business has been good enough for the members of the union to receive 6 per cent on their stock and also obtain a rebate of 5 per cent upon all purchases made through the union.

A new mill has just been completed and will soon be in operation. This will take care of the grain grown by the members of the union and enable them to buy their mill feed at quite reasonable figures.

Education in co-operation will mean better roads, better schools, better trustees, better tax laws, better men and women everywhere in the highways and byways of our rural Kentucky.

TO RALLY IN LOUISVILLE.

If never there, you ought to go.
If ever there, you'll want to go.

During the Kentucky Educational association meeting, April 30, May 1, 2 and 3, Louisville will be overflowing with teachers, trustees and friends of the schools. The people of the big cities are watching the rural school problem with great interest. Louisville was among the first to strive to help in its solution.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS,

2844 A. S. B. A.
Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet,

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriton Chief 1608 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2330) by Indian Chief 1718).

1 dam Miss Berry 4034 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99)
2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112.
3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $3,600, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzsimmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible should any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

Wanted—Good farm hand, will pay $1.00 a day, and furnish a house and garden and pasture for one cow. Apply to W. A. Gaines, Burlington R. D. 1.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Why we use Open Hearth Wire in Preference to all other kinds

Remember the iron wire your father and your grandfather had around the farm? Good old wire, wasn't it?

The Special Open Hearth Wire, as we make it today from our own (secret) formula, is more like the old time iron wire than that used in any other make of fence.

It takes longer to make this special Open Hearth Wire, but it excels in strength, toughness and long life, and consequently makes the most serviceable, satisfactory fence. The wire is the very foundation of fence-durability.

Buy "Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence for lasting satisfaction.

DEMAND THE PLACES.

Taft's Civil Services Ordered to Be Revoked by Democrats as Soon as Possible.

(Washington Post.)

The Taft executive order covering all fourth class postmasters into the civil service will be revoked by the new Administration as soon as the details of a substitute order are worked out.

Indications point to the issuance of an order which will provide that fourth class postmasters shall be under the civil service, but that all applicants, including the present incumbent of any office, shall be put on an equal footing in taking the examination.

In other words, the Republican postmaster who is in will not have the advantage over the Democratic applicant who is out. All will take the same examination, and the member of Congress in whose district a particular postoffice is located will recommend the postmaster.

A Democratic member of Congress is apt to recommend a Democratic "eligible," and in this way the party workers who have been out in the cold for a number of years will be appeased.

Democratic members of the House are traveling to the Postoffice Department these days to inform the Postmaster General that it is imperative that the Taft order shall be revoked or amended. The order it is charged, as issued a few months before a change in the Administration and was made to keep Republicans in office. The Democrats are unwilling to have 30,000 odd postoffices thus taken away from the ministering care of the Congressmen, and they are hammering that fact home whenever they get a chance to talk to the Postmaster General.

On the whole, however, the question is declared to be one of principle rather than patronage. The Democratic objection to the Taft order is not that it would fill fourth class offices with civil service men, but that the encumbents were practically retained in office and given an unfair advantage under the action of the former President.

An amended order giving Democrats the privilege of competing with Republicans in a civil service examination will bring satisfaction in the majority of instances. At heart, the average member of the House does not want to be worried with a straightout spoils system; but he does insist that his Democratic constituents shall have the privilege of taking the civil service examination for a postmastership if that Democrat so desires.

It is declared that the average Democrat living in a fourthclass postoffice town isn't particular about who gets the office just so the postmaster is a Democrat. The perpetuation of Republican rule at the cross-roads stores, however, doesn't set well with the Democratic ruralists.

"I believe three districts in my State will switch to the Republicans at the next election if this Taft order is not annulled," said Congressman Rouse of Kentucky, today. "I do not crave the job of recommending fourth-class postmasters—it is a hard task for any member—but I do want these offices filled with Democrats; by men who have been doing hard work for the party for years. These workers now demand that the party in power shall fill these places and the approval by the new Administration of an order which covered Republicans permanently into the service will bring resentment in many quarters."

In some instances, says Mr. Rouse, there as many as twenty Democratic applicants for one fourth-class postmastership. Nineteen will be disappointed, no matter what Democrat receives the place, but this disappointment will be as a passing breeze to a whirlwind if the Republican encumbent is permitted to hang on and twenty Democrats are not even given a chance for the place.

This condition exists all over the country, asserts the Kentucky Congressman, and the question of small patronage is one of the most serious confronting the new Administration.

The Triumph of the Law.

(Blue Grass Clipper.)

This is a proud day for Woodford county for it has been shown that the law, when rightly and fearlessly administered, can, and will, provide punishment to fit a crime.

The triumph of the law represented by Judge Stout and the jury of twelve men, and upheld by hundreds of the best citizens of the county, which was demonstrated in the trial of the negro, Williams, at Versailles on Monday, was a most inspiring spectacle, and one unlike anything of the kind ever witnessed in a Kentucky court room.

Too much cannot be said in praise of Judge Stout for his first stand. He gave an exhibition of moral courage that has perhaps never been surpassed in the annals of Kentucky trial courts.

His appeal to his fellow-citizens to stand by and support him in an effort to uphold the law was most unusual, yet most effective.

It was wise, it was courageous, and showed how men's minds can be influenced in the right way by the words of a brave strong man in whom they had the greatest confidence.

His request of a minister to ask divine guidance at such a time was a splendid tribute to his faith in a Supreme Being, and that he was not afraid to show that faith before the multitude many of whom no doubt, longed for harsher methods in dealing with the prisoner at bar. The answer to the prayer came immediately. Men's feelings were allayed, and a solemn silence pervaded the room, an evidence that every man there felt that God would overrule the occasion to His glory, and to the supremacy and maintenance of the law. The result that followed so quickly satisfied all, and the crowd dispersed believing that justice had had her perfect sway.

We commend Judge Stout's exampel to every judge in the land who may be called upon to face similar conditions.

We would also commend the Sheriff, his deputies, Commonwealth's Attorney, the jury and all other officials who had a part in so admirably sustaining the reputation of Woodford county as the place where law and justice can be held supreme over the passions of men.

Rain coats, umbrellas and other wetweather goods have been in great demand this week, and at the time of going to press there is no indication of the demand decreasing, as the rain is still coming down at a lively rate.

Temp Graves and Dr. Nunnelly, of Bullittsville, were in Burlington yesterday morning and reported the dirt road in bad condition and all culverts and bridges gone, which is about true of the roads all over the county.

The Louisville Courier Journal's Southern Prosperity number, issued Tuesday, was a hummer, and contained 192 pages. When the Courier-Journal does undertake to do big things it always succeeds.

The local mails have been completely demoralized this week by the high waters. The mails that come by the way of Cincinnati did not reach here yesterday.

Woolper creek was as large as a small river, Tuesday night, and several who reside along the stream, were driven from their homes.

Yes, Who Wants Good Roads?

March 24th, 1913.

It does seem to me that every body wants good roads, but want the farmers to build them so it will increase the value of their land. I agree with them there as far as taxation is concerned, but no farther. Who does the kicking on the bad roads? Is it the farmer or the Plug Hat man? I rather think it is Mr. Plug, for being a farmer myself I think I know. Of course the farmer would like to have good roads as he is a good natured cuss and does not shy round Mr. Plug when in a mud hole stuck fast, but goes to the barn and harnesses his team and pulls him out; but take the other hand and see the thanks Mr. Plug gives Mr. Farmer for his kindness. He says, "kno——yous if you don't fill up that mud hole I will have a law passed to make you." Then Mr. Farmer bows his head in submission; but reverse the thing and let Mr. Farmer leave Mr. Plug in the mud hole for twelve months and the world would go on just the same, but put Mr. Farmer in the hold 12 months and see what would happen. I believe the good people of Boone county know just what would happen—Mr. Plug's stomach would shrivel up as well as his pocketbook. Here is to the Plugs—sorry, sorry that they have no sympathy for their friend, the Farmer.

Local Happenings.

All fools day comes on Tuesday this year.

Sunday was not a favorable day for displaying Easter toggery.

Honey bees were very busy on several occasions last week.

When the wind gets under a tin roof it is very apt to be taken off.

Last Friday was the first day of spring, but it looked and felt more like the first day of winter.

Fishermen will soon line the banks of the streams which are supposed to be inhabited by fish.

Stand up, oldest inhabitant, and tell when, before last Sunday, you heard it thunder on Easter morning.

Just now the prospects are good for early pasture which is very necessary to a crop of good lambs.

There has been considerable high wind this month which did a lot of damage to roofs and fencing.

W. J. Brell's auto express has been having very good trips, and he is confident that his business will continue to grow.

The wind last Friday stripped the tin gutters off of the south side of the telephone exchange building in Burlington.

The Hathaway correspondent's contribution did not show up at this office last week until after the paper was printed.

Taking advantage of the low price at which sugar is selling the local merchants laid in a pretty good stock last week.

Some of the early birds succeeded in getting some potatoes planted during the nice weather the fore part of last week.

Good ice has been housed during the month of March in the past, but it is hoped that none will be put up in March this year.

When a few more automobiles are placed in this part of the county Burlington will be a good location for an automobile repair shop.

A good sized crowd attended Harry Roberts's sale last Saturday afternoon, and very satisfactory prices obtained for the articles sold.

The frogs that had been so hilarious for a few nights previous to last Friday night were frozen in good and solid that night.

The high wind gave the local telephone linemen some extra work to do last week. Several poles were blown down while the wires were broken in many places.

B. B. Hume sold, one day last week, a five passenger Ford automobile to J. C. Hughes, of Richwood. Mr. Hughes' daughter will learn to operate the machine.

If hard freezing during the winter is necessary to make the land plow nice in the spring it will work badly this spring, as there were no hard freezes the past winter.

One of the leading fruit men in Central Kentucky says the fruit in that locality has not been injured by the cold weather so far, and the indications are the crop will be a large one.

Dr. Wallace Tanner, who travels all over this county and a considerable portion of Kenton county in his practice, says that the Burlington and Florence pike is long ways the best road that he knows of.

The measles have disappeared from this part of the county. There were many cases in the town and vicinity, but the disease did not make a clean-up by any means, and there are several who will continue to dodge the malady for another season.

Spraying orchards is becoming very popular among the fruit growers in this part of the State, and they believe that their crop is increased many fold by the spraying. Some claim that they can make a declining tree produce a good crop by spraying it at the proper time.

Many sufferers from rheumatism have been surprised and delighted with the prompt relief afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. This liniment is for sale by J. W. Berkshire and Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

The policies in the Boone County Insurance Company amount to in round numbers, one million, six hundred thousand dollars. The total tax valuation of property in county is some over seven million dollars, from which deduct the value of everything but the farm buildings and it will be seen that company carries policies on nearly all the property in the county that is insurable in the company.

For Sale—One four year old broken horse, and three spans of three year old mules. Apply to E. L. Grant, Petersburg, Ky., R. D. 1.

The water courses in this part of the country have been taxed to their fullest capacity this week, the volume of water that has fallen having been unusual for this time of the year.

You can say goodbye to constipation with a clear conscience if you use Chamberlain's Tablets. Many have been permanently cured by their use. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

This end of the Burlington and Belleview pike must be something fierce if all the reports in regard to its condition that reach this office are true. Some go so far as to say the company ought to be compelled to throw open its gates until travel puts it in passable condition again.

You judge a man not by what he promises to do, but by what he has done. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judged by this standard has no superior. People everywhere speak of it in the highest terms of praise. For sale by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Ken Scott traded his popular draft stallion, Black Badger, to an Indiana party for another very handsome draft stallion which he will handle this season. Mr. Scott thinks the horse he now owns is a better individual in several respects than is Black Badger, and expects him to be more popular with the farmers than was Black Badger.

Caddie Maurer went storking, one afternoon last week with Dr. Yelton, expecting to get back home by 4 p. m., but instead it was 4 a. m., the next day, when he and the doctor drove into Burlington, and Mr. Maurer declares that he will never again accept the invitation of a doctor to take a ride if he expects to go more than a mile from home.

Harry Roberts, wife and little daughter will move to Cincinnati in the next few days, and Burlington will lose another installment of mighty good citizens, who take with them the best wishes of all who know them. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts are natives of this county and will always have a warm spot in their hearts for old Kentucky, let their lot be cast where it may.

Moses Ryle, of East Bend, was buried at Belleview last Tuesday. He was a son of the late Hogan Ryle. He is survived by a widow, a son, two sisters, Mrs. Moses Scott and Mrs. James Stephens, all of this county, and one brother, Oscar J. Ryle, of Los Angeles, California. Mr. Ryle was a most estimable gentleman and will be missed greatly in the neighborhood where he spent his entire life.

The High schools that will participate in the tournament at Dry Ridge, Grant county, next month, are making preparations for the event, and no doubt but what it will be an interesting assemblage of teachers and pupils. The tournament is already looked forward to with much interest on the part of the teachers and pupils, and it bids fare to become a very popular annual educational event in this part of the State.

Harry Ackemyer will be in Burlington next county court day with his Clydesdale stallion, Knight (16110) 16143. This horse is rising five years old, was bred by James S. Stenhouse, of Fod Dunfirnling, Fifeshire, Scotland, and was imported by John Leitch & Sons, of Lafeyette, Illinois. This horse is an individual of good quality with first-class feet and legs and a good body. Now here is an opportunity for all who like the Scottish drafter. They certainly will be pleased to see this horse on the street in Burlington, on Monday, April 7, next.

The poultry business is growing rapidly in this county where the very best strains of chickens are bred by numerous persons. A few years ago no one thought of advertising their stock, but now there are several persons in the county who make large sales of eggs every spring for hatching purposes, while their hens are a source of considerable revenue during the year as producers of eggs for the market. It is said that the propagation of poultry has a great fascination for those who engage in it, to say nothing of the profit they realize. Read the poultry ads. in this issue.

J. L. Rich, of Big Bone neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington one day the past week. He came across the country on horseback and found the roads pretty bad except where they had been dragged. By the way, Mr. Rich has had the rural route down Gum Branch reestablished. He was on the route when it was first established from Union, but it had not been in operation long before somebody concluded that the route should be taken off of Gum Branch and extended around by R. Lee Huey's, and before Mr. Rich got wise as to what was going on the route was changed and he was about put off of the map. He got busy at once and after several months' labor with Uncle Sam he succeeded in satisfying him that the route should not have been changed, and Gum Branch once more is a trunk line as it were, and Mr. Rich and all his neighbors are well pleased with their mail facilities.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS,
Erlanger, Ky.

NOTICE—All persons are positively forbidden from passing thru my farm opposite Mrs. Eliza Walton's farm on the Belleview pike.

Notice of Road Letting.

Bids will be received for working and keeping in repair the hereinafter advertised Sections of County Roads, in Boone County, Kentucky, the bids to be opened and considered by the Fiscal Court at its April term, to be held Tuesday, the Eighth (8) day of April, 1913, in the Court House in Burlington, Kentucky.

All bids for work to be let to contract made under this advertisement shall be received at the time and place specified herein, and shall be opened publicly, at the time of letting and the amount and items comprising each bid shall be publicly announced, and the contract, if let shall be to the lowest responsible bidder who shall furnish satisfactory security in an amount equal to the amount of the contract in question, to be approved by the County Judge.

The Court may as protection to the county, reserve from payment twenty per cent. of the amount accruing on said contract until the completion of said work and the same is approved by the County Road Engineer. The Court may reject any and all bids and if thought advisable, may readvertise for and receive bids. The working and repairing of the roads let under contract as above stated shall be under the supervision, direction and control of the Road Engineer, and under the general terms as follows: The contract period is to be from the acceptance of the bid until the First day of May, 1914.

All dirt roads shall be graded not later than July 1st of the present year, and must have as nearly as possible a fifteen (15) per cent. crown, and are to be dragged at least five times during the contract period. Shoulder between wheel track and ditch must be removed.

All loose stones, larger than usually broken, lying in the beaten track along the public roads to be removed at least one time in each year, between the first of April and the first day of June, and broken and placed on road, or broken where they lie. Sand roads need not be crowned, but ditched and kept level. All places rocked must have good ditches, especially grades which must have necessary water breaks in addition to ditches.

Creek roads must be kept in passable condition, as travel require.

Where it is impracticable to ditch on grades, water breaks must be made instead.

The contracts let hereunder will require all roads to be kept free of obstructions, and will include grading, ditching, crowning and keeping in repair all bridges and culverts, the material and hauling of same to be paid for outside of these contracts.

Parties may bid on one or more sections as they see fit, the bids however to be separate and specify to which section they refer, and describe definitely giving the number of section.

QUICK WORK.

Negro Murderer Tried, Sentenced and Electrocuted Within Five Days.

(Blue Grass Clipper.)

Perhaps the most remarkable trial ever held in a Kentucky Court room was that of the negro, Silas Williams, who brutally murdered Mrs. Susan Black, and attempted an assault upon her daughter, Mrs. Lee Moffett, two of the most respectable women of the Troy neighborhood, about three weeks ago. Less than an hour was required from the time the prisoner was arranged at the bar until the death verdict was returned by the jury.

Following his arrest and confession Williams had been confined in the Fayette county jail, the Woodford county officials fearing that an attempt would be made to lynch him if left at Versailles. He was brought to Versailles at an early hour Monday morning, in an automobile, accompanied by a guard of deputies.

At an early hour Monday morning citizens from all parts of the county began coming into Versailles, many of them having determined that they would take the law into their own hands, should there be any miscarriage of justice.

Long before the hour set for the trial the court room was crowded with men waiting with tense anxiety the outcome of the special term of court that had been called to try this monstrous criminal.

When Judge Stout appeared in the court room he realized the temper of the hundreds of his fellow-citizens that were massed before him, and took the most effective means to prevent any outburst of passion against the prisoner then awaiting under guard at the jail. Rising at his place on the bench, with words that burned with earnestness, and in the silence of the room that showed the presence of a spirit that must be allayed, he made an appeal to his hearers to uphold the law, promising them that the criminal would be given a speedy trial, and that he felt sure that justice commensurate with the crime would be administered.

He told them that the reputation of Woodford county was at stake, that it had always been noted for its lawabiding citizens, and that he hoped on this occasion, every law abiding citizen would do his part to see the law upheld. He then appealed to every man in the court room to stand by him in the enforcement of the law, closing his appeal by asking all who would do so to come forward around him. Slowly the crowd began to rise, and when the full force of the appeal swept over them the vast assemblage pressed forward as one man to assure him they were ready to support him and see the law take its course.

Judge Stout then called on Rev. J. M. Fuqua, pastor of the Versailles Methodist church, to offer prayer. While the court and the crowd stood with bowed heads, Rev. Fugua offered a most earnest and eloquent prayer, asking divine guidance for the judge and the jury in an hour that was trying men's souls, and in an hour that was destined to show which should triumph, the law or men's passions. The effect of the prayer was most noticeable, the vast crowd seeming to feel that a higher power was working hand in hand with the law, and that right and justice would prevail.

While Judge Stout was delivering his appeal to the crowd to allay the intense feeling that was evident, the jury was locked in the jury room and the prisoner had not been brought over from the jail.

At 9:30 o'clock the trial proper began. The prisoner was brought into court under a strong guard, and the jury took its seat in the box and was specially instructed by Judge Stout.

The court appointed attorneys Frank Baker and Louis Morancy to defend the prisoner, but their mission was brief.

Williams when arraigned pleaded guilty and threw himself on the mercy of the court. The charge against him was the murder of Mrs. Black, his attempted assault of Mrs. Moffett not being included in the court.

Only two witnesses were introduced. They were Spencer Stewart, who saw the culprit leaving the house and discovered the bodies of Mrs. Black and Mrs. Moffett when he ran to the house to extinguish the fire which Williams had started in the hope of concealing his crime, and Dr. Hodges of Troy, who was summoned to attend the injured women.

Mr. Stewart told of meeting Williams running from the house and of telling him not to go near the house. His statement of his encounter with Williams and the discovery of the bodies of Mrs. Black and Mrs. Moffett, the former dying and the latter almost dead from the blows administered to her by the prisoner was substantially as have been published. Dr. Hodges testified as to the extend of the wounds when he was summoned to the house to examine the injured.

After hearing the evidence of Mr. Stewart and Dr. Hodges, the jury was given the case. In exactly one minute and a half the jury filed into the room with its verdict, which was the death penalty.

Following the reading of the verdict Judge Stout passed sentence of death upon the accused and fixed March 21st as the day for his execution in the electric chair at the Eddyville penitentiary.

Leaving the Farm.

Among the new comers every year to the city, thousands are the young men and women from the country who are victims of the notion that riches and pleasures await them in the city. Under this delusion they condemn themselves in nearly every instance to the disappointments of an over-crowded labor market, and if they get work, it is at a small wage or salary, with everything to learn. They must live in cheap boarding houses, lacking all the conveniences and sympathy of the home life, and where they are just one of the grains of sand that make up the mass of toilers. If they should marry, they must pass on to one of the cheap tenements, finding more and more that their position is one of anxious dependence and that the imaginary charms of city life fade out, leaving nothing but the depressing reality of buildings jammed together, noise, dirt, strife and constant struggle for a mouthful of bread and a breath of air. With the present bare subsistence, the future holds out no promises of betterment. While the country may have serious drawbacks, it is plain that these young people make serious mistakes, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, when they plunge into the turbid stream of uncertainty offered by the city, and they inevitably find that it is a constant fight for life, or to keep their heads above the surface. Half the people who live in the cities do not have enough to eat, and the hand is never off the pocketbook except when there is nothing in it. If only they could be made to see how infinitely better it is for them to put into the study of their home environments as close attention as they have to give to the subject of clearing expenses in the city, they would soon turn a cold shoulder to the illusions that the city sets before their eyes. But they laugh at one who tells them this, asking, "Why then do you stay in the city?" Alas! in more cases than a few, the stay is enforced; these deluded ones can not get away.—One Who Knows.

Whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever and consumption are diseases that are often contracted when the child has a cold. That is why all medical authorities say beware of colds. DE LAVAL Cream Separators

ARE EASIEST TO WASH

The construction of the De Laval bowl is such that it can be completely taken apart for washing.

The discs, bowl parts and tinware have no tubes, crevices, holes or corrugated surfaces such as are found in other machines and which are very hard to clean.

The De Laval discs are washed as a single piece and the whole machine can be thoroughly

CLEANED IN FIVE MINUTES

There is no part of the De Laval bowl which cannot be easily reached and seen, so that the operator can always tell whether or not every part has been properly cleaned.

The ease with which the De Laval can be thoroughly washed and kept in a sanitary condition is one reason why creamerymen prefer De Laval to other separator cream, and is likewise one of the reasons why butter made from De Laval cream has scored highest at the National Dairy Show for over 20 years.

THE FLOOD

The Worst In The History of The Ohio Valley, All The Towns and Lowlands Along The Ohio Completely Submerged.

The Appeal For Food Quickly Responded to By The People.

The report reached Burlington last Saturday shortly before noon that the people in Lawrenceburg were in need of provisions, and work was begun at once to make up a lot of supplies. The report was telephoned out the East Bend road and the Petersburg pike, where helping hands were soon industriously engaged preparing food for their suffering neighbors. About dark Wesley Underhill, who lives about three miles out on the East Bend road came into town with a wagon pretty well ladened with good substantials which had been contributed by the following persons between Locust Grove and Burlington: William Bondurant and wife, Elmore Ryle and wife, Doc Bondurant and sisters, Jesse Bondurant, Fannie Smith, J. D. Acra and wife, Jesse Eddins and wife, William Sebree and wife, William Carpenter and wife, Sam Petitt and wife, Wm. Hedges and wife, Wesley Underhill and wife, Chas. Clore and wife, Wm. Clore and wife, Asa Cason and daughter, Mrs. Elbert Roberts, Edward Hensley and wife, and Geo. W. Sandford. This installment of supplies was deposited with parties to keep over night for shipment Sunday morning to Lawrenceburg. Most of the people in the town of Burlington had been busy as well as their neighbors, and when the packages, baskets and bundles were added to those which Mr. Underhill brought in there was a very handsome contribution considering the short notice that had been given. Early Sunday morning Elmer and Jesse Kirkpatrick loaded the supplies into a two horse wagon and started to Petersburg to have them shipped to the mayor of Lawrenceburg, and at nearly every house between Burlington and Idlewild a generous contribution of provisions was received and when they arrived at Petersburg they had about all they could accommodate with their wagon. At Petersburg the boys were met by E. T. Krutz, who rendered them valuable assistance, and the contents of the wagon were soon placed on the steamer Pauline by the numerous willing hands that were present, and started on the final lap of the trip.

The levee at the west side of Lawrenceburg broke about 3:30 few hours the entire town was last Friday afternoon and is submerged to the depth of many feet. Coming in from the lower side of the town the destruction was not near so great as it would have been had the levee broken above the city, as the pressure from that quarter would have been too great to have been withstood by any structure in the town. All the able bodied men in the town had been at work for several days strengthening the levee, hoping to keep the water out, and no doubt the work they did above the town saved its destruction as they succeeded in holding the water back until the break came below. Center street suffered the severest property loss as the water rushed up that thoroughfare several feet deep, turning over houses, barns and all other buildings that were in its path, but, fortunately, no lives were lost as everybody was on the lookout for the worst that could happen, many having left the town while hundreds of others fled to the second stories of buildings in which the water was soon several feet deep. Among the residences swept from the foundations was that of Harry Blyth, whose loss will be considerable. The city is in at least as bad a condition as it was in the 1884 flood, and the surrounding country must be ready to lend the unfortunate inhabitants assistance. There are a great many day laborers in Lawrenceburg, and that class will need especial attention as these people are bound to be out of employment for quite a while. Lawrenceburg looks like it is located in the middle of the Ohio river, while there is a sheet of water miles wide, extending up the Miami valley, covering it many feet deep to nearly the source of that stream. Even after the water subsides it will be some time before those whose homes are not destroyed will be able to occupy them, and while Lawrenceburg has not experienced the loss of life and property that the towns up the Miami have, yet its condition is deplorable, and those who have not seen its surroundings cannot realize what suffering is possible there. The citizens are suffering because of too much water and at the same time they are very much inconvenienced by the want of water.

R. W. Clark, who use to keep a jewelry store in Burlington, was talking to N. E. Riddell, Monday morning over the telephone from Lawrenceburg, said that the damage to the city was already greater than it was in 1884.

Mayor Axby, of Lawrenceburg, acknowledged the receipt of the provisions that were sent to that city from this vicinity, early Monday morning.

A Mr. Griffith, of Ghent, Carroll county, passed through Burlington late Sunday enroute to Erlanger to make his way to his home. He is a clerk in one of the Lawrenceburg banks, but his hands indicated that he was a laborer, having them pretty badly blistered by work on the levee several days the past week.

A couple of newspaper reporters struck Burlington about seven o'clock last Saturday night on their way from Cincinnati to Lawrenceburg in a taxicab. At Florence they got off the road taking the Price pike instead of coming on to Burlington, and when they found themselves they were at Constance, when they retraced their steps to Florence, having to come up the Minneola hill. When they reached Burlington their machine was about as hot as it was possible for it to get and not be in a blaze. They stopped and cooled out, oiled the taxi and went on, after having expressed their opinion of the roads they had been traveling.

O. P. Phipps took a bundle of Cincinnati Enquirers to Petersburg, last Sunday, it being the first supply of daily papers that had been received there in many days.

The water is running thru the slough from Petersburg down below the Aurora ferry. It is several feet deep.

C. G. Riddell, the Rabbit Hash merchant, had to move his store twice to avoid the flood. His first move was into the K. of P. hall immediately above the town, first story, and in a few days it became evident that he would have to seek higher ground.

Shelby Cowen, who was in Hamilton, Ohio, the night that city was struck by the flood, spent a few days the past week with his aunts, the Misses Cowen in Burlington. The hotel at which he was stopping had water several feet deep in it, and it was about forty-eight hours before he and the other guests made their escape, he coming to Cincinnati on the first relief train that reached the stricken city. The hotel at which he was stopping was so located that he witnessed some of the worst features of the flood, and says that no one can imagine the horror of the happening and hopes never to witness the like again. When the fire broke out it was in the neighborhood of the hotel on two sides but it could not be told how close. The people in the building facing death by water on one side and by fire on the other discussed the situation in a quiet way, some of them deciding to take their chances with the fire while others decided to take their chances with the flood, Mr. Cowen being one of the latter. To hear the cries for help and being unable to render any assistance he said was agonizing in the extreme and made one forget the impending danger. He says the descriptions of the disaster given by the newspapers fall far short of being perfect or conveying to the mind its full extent.

The B. & O. Southwestern Railroad, which has been damaged immensely between Aurora and Cincinnati by the flood, has been rebuilt half a dozen times by people on this side of the river in the past two weeks. According to the reconstructing plans the road is to cross the river at Aurora and pass thru this county. Building a bridge across the Ohio river at Aurora would be a small matter as compared with the cost of the right of way through this county, unless people over whose land the road would pass should manifest more liberally towards the enterprise than they have ever been known to display towards similar enterprises proposed in other parts of the county in the past. Basing an estimate on what has been shown to be the temper of Boone county people in the past when they thought a railroad was threatening to cross their lands the right of way from the Aurora ferry to any point in Boone and Kenton county line would cost close to a million dollars.

A crowd of nearly or quite three hundred people visited the top of the river hill, at Rice Bros., last Sunday, to take a look at the city of Lawrenceburg and the Ohio and Miami rivers. It was a sight to see, and those who saw it last Sunday, while they hope to be on this mundane sphere for many years to come, have no desire to see or hear of a repetition of what they saw last Sunday.

Dr. T. A. Dickey, formerly of this place, now residing in Middletown, Ohio, is a heavy loser from the flood. He was a prisoner in the second story of his home for several days. Everything on the first floor was destroyed or swept away.

A number of our people drove down to see the river at Hamilton, Sunday afternoon. The back water extends up Landing creek about a half mile above Normansville, where we were met by Mr. L. R. Miller, a genial gentleman, indeed, who rowed us in a flat boat to the old mill below his store. From there we walked a mile to Hamilton where we found "water, water every where" and wreckage galore. Geo. Pitcher's house was rapidly being surrounded and he was preparing to move his family to his hill top farm. Many houses at Normansville were almost covered by water and at L. Jone's barn was surrounded, the water reaching almost to the eaves. Wm. Huff's general store was an island in a dreary, muddy waste of waters and while the scene was interesting, yet it was saddening. The fearful loss of life and property incurred in Ohio and Indiana from these same relentless waves was too vividly impressed upon our minds to permit our seeing any real beauty in the wide stretching water. A number of motor boats were busy gathering drift of varied kinds, barrels of kraut, catsup and vinegar, trunks, furniture, lumber, &c. A number of houses were seen going down on Saturday.

W. T. Riddell, who lives in Dayton, Ohio, was in the midst of the flood, but he and his wife escaped with their lives, losing all their personal effects. Clinton Riddell and wife and Elmer Beall and family reside in Hamilton, O., and were just outside of the flood district, consequently lost nothing. Thus it is seen that James A. Riddell's family was pretty well represented in the flood in the Miami Valley.

It is reported that diphtheria has appeared in a family by the name of Sharp living between Pt. Pleasant and Florence. One of the children died of it the latter part of last week.

Harry Thaw is instructed by Justice Tompkins that "he may talk in private." Let the court add, "and only in private," and the public would be sufficiently protected.—Louisville Post.

Troubles of Rural Routers.

As Bert Smith, carrier on rural route No. 3 out of Burlington, was crossing a creek, last Monday, his horse stepped over a log that was beneath the water, just at which time the log's fastening broke away, rose to the surface, striking the horse which made a plunge forward, at which point in the proceedings the saddle girth parted, the horse sliding from beneath the saddle and its rider. When Mr. Smith picked himself up and collected his mail he found himself and cargo sopping wet. Among his parcel post packages was a lady's hat which was given a pretty thorough bath, while his supply of postage stamps were moistened to excess. While his horse and cart was hitched at the postoffice after his return, Tuesday, Sheriff Hume passed in his auto and the horse broke loose and went out the Florence pike at the top of its speed. It was stopped about half a mile out the pike, very little damage having been done. It seems that Mr. Smith is having bad luck in large and frequent installments.

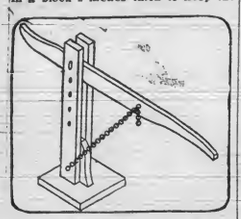
William Hughes, carrier on R. D. No. 1 out of Burlington came in for a slice of bad luck last Tuesday. When crossing Ashby Fork above Jas. White's, having gone that way to escape the back-water, he drove into water that proved to be deep enough to swim his horse, which he succeeded in stopping in time to throw his mail out on dry ground. Ropes were secured and with the assistance of several men who chanced to be near the horse and vehicle were drawn backwards out of their perilous situation. The next day the route was divided into two sections and one of them was served by the regular carrier's father, G. G. Hughes, who is his sub.

* * *



William Gaines, carrier on Burlington rural route No. 3, had an exciting experience while crossing the back water in Sand Run creek, one day last week. The water was deeper than he supposed and he and his team had a considerable struggle to save themselves. When he reached the shore and took an inventory of results he found his mail had received a thorough wetting and two good rain coats were missing from his buggy, while he was about as wet as it was possible for him to be. The rapid rise in the river after he made the same crossing the day before had put the water above the danger line sooner than he was expecting it to reach that point.

HANDY IMPLEMENT FOR FARM

Substantial Wagon Jack Easily and Cheaply Constructed at Home—Directions for Making.

A substantial handy wagon jack can easily be made at home, says the Wisconsin Agriculturist. Cut a block one foot square from sound 1½ to 2 inch stuff, and set into a block of 2-inch stuff 9 inches high, and 9 inches wide at the base. Make a mortise joint.

Cut out two upright pieces from 1½ inch stuff, each 4 inches wide and 3 feet long, and screw them fast to the block mortised into the base. See that these uprights rest solidly on the base, so that the weight of the wagon will not be borne by the screws. Put in a block 2 inches thick to keep the distance at the top of the uprights. Bore three or four three-quarter inch holes at different heights, three inches apart, to take the lever pin.

Make the lever about 4 feet long of strong, durable 2-inch timber, and bore a hole for the pin the lower side, 9 inches from the larger end. The other end is drawn down and shaped to form a handle. Small bolts through the lever each side of the pin will prevent splitting. A chain attached to the bottom of one upright, and hooked into the lever, will hold the weight of the wagon in any position desired.

CORRECT SOIL FOR FLOWERS

Seed of Plants Which Produce Very Delicate Growths May Be Sown on Live Sphagnum Moss.

Moisture and temperature should be carefully considered when sowing seed. Do not use soil which will not allow of perfect drainage and at the same time hold moisture. Pure sand and leaf mold, or a good potting soil mixed with white sand will give a good soil for sowing seed.

Seed of rhodedendrons, kalmias and orchids, which produce very delicate growths, may be sown on live sphagnum moss. Heavy, coarse soil will never produce good results, as seeds usually require a much lighter soil than the mature plant.

Never drench your seed beds or pots, as that will weaken even sound and strong seeds. Water thoroughly enough to moisten the soil throughout, as a moist surface with a dry subsoil is an evil. Seeds should never be allowed to become perfectly dry after they have once started to sprout.

Good drainage is an essential point. A layer of broken pots placed in the bottom of the pot or bed in which the seeds are started will be found a great aid to drainage. Do not sow in deep boxes or pots, as the shallow "flats" require much less attention as to drainage.

MAKING BARLEY MAIN CROP

Work Up Fine Seed Bed by Double Disking in Spring and Drill In Seed Early as Possible.

The preparation of the land for barley varies widely with the locality. It is best adapted to the cool, moist conditions of the north, but may be successfully grown anywhere in the grain belt, writes F. H. Demaree in an exchange. Where it is made a main crop it will pay to plow the land preferably in the fall. Work up a fine seed bed by double disking the land in the spring and drill in the seed as early as possible.

In the northern zone of the corn belt barley can be sown after corn. In this case the land can be double disked in the spring, harrowed down and the seed drilled in. Spring barley is also grown to some extent in the corn belt, often displacing oats. In this case the above preparation of soil and seeding will secure the best and most economical results.

The machinery requirements for the barley raisers vary with the locality. In general, however, any man raising small grain should have a good disk, a plow, a smoothing harrow and a drill.

Horse's Teeth.

Quids of grass, finely chewed and rolled together, found lying about in the horse pasture are the result of trouble with the teeth. No horse should be permitted to go until his teeth have become so uneven. Horse owners should make it a practice to have the teeth of all their horses, of which there is any question, examined and cared for by a capable person.

Cold Weather Layers.

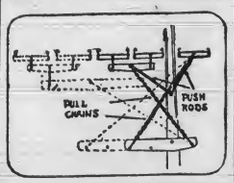
As a rule, hens that lay steadily during the cold weather are indifferent hot weather layers.

Vegetables for Hens.

Vegetables are great for the hens, especially when they can't get green feed in the fields.

Winter Eggs.

Winter eggs do not come by chance. It takes planning and work to get them, but it pays.



OVERCOMING DRAFT ON SIDE

Four-Horse Evener Arranged So That No Horse Would Need to Walk on Plowed Ground.

In reply to a query for an arrangement of four-horse evener on plow so that no horse need walk on the plowed ground the Farmers Call and Breeze prints the following.

Many three-horse eveners do not overcome side draft. The power is so far to one side that the two horses push the tongue over against the one horse. Here is a remedy for any number of horses on one side of tongue and one horse on the other:

Put the tongue hole, or pull pole, in evener so that the length of shorter end will be to the length of the longer one in the proportion of 1 to 2, for three-horse evener. Or in the proportion of 1 to 3 or 1 to 4 if you have a four or five horse evener.

Fasten a chain from short end of evener to doubletree, which will be on opposite side, and run a chain from long end of evener to singletree. Put in push rods from center of power on either side to tongue, or if there is no tongue from center of one power to center of the other power.

START HORSE RADISH EARLY

Make Soil Loose and at Least to Depth of Ten Inches—Work In Well-Rotted Manure.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Horse radish should be started very early in the spring. It consists of one large root from which springs the crown and a large number of smaller roots.

These roots, small as a lead pencil, or larger, are cut off into lengths of from four to six inches and should be placed in the ground with the thick end up.

The should be planted about three inches deep and the soil above them pressed down firmly to prevent water from reaching them before they start to grow.

Make the soil loose and at least a depth of ten inches. Work into it plenty of well-rotted manure. Set horse radish in rows about three feet apart and at intervals of about 15 inches.

Then keep the weeds away from them and the top soil loose with frequent cultivation. A row six feet long will supply a family with all it needs. The plant will be ready for use early in the fall and it makes its best growth then.

It should be dug late in the fall after all other crops are off, the small root tops removed and stored in sand in the cellar or buried in pits in the ground until wanted for use.

PREPARING FOR CLOVER CROP

On Thin Soil It Is Well to Break the Ground Preceding Spring—Grow Fertilizing Crops.

If the aim is to get clover and grass on a thin soil it is often a good plan to break the ground the preceding spring and to grow a fertilizing crop during the summer that can be cultivated and then disked into the surface soil. When cowpeas can be grown they are excellent for this purpose. On very thin land I have gotten the finest clover sod in this way. Expensive way? someone asks. Well, any way of covering thin soil with a heavy clover sod is not inexpensive. I like the plan. The tillage kills weed seeds and frees fertility. The vines are chopped in the surface before they become tough. The humus is just where it is needed, and the soil is firm. If one prefers, rape may be sown the first of September, and then the land fitted for clover in the spring without the plow. Leave the vegetable matter at the surface. Or, timothy may be sown in the fall, and clover added in the spring. Or wheat may be seeded and clover in the spring.

Maggots in Wounds.

Should maggots get in the animal's wounds, kill the pests by a light application of chloroform. After the wounds have been freed of maggots and made perfectly clean, apply freely a mixture of one dram of iodoform and six drams of boric acid, and repeat the application two or three times a day.

Farm Operations.

The farm operations of the past year must have taught every thinking farmer some lessons that should be of value to him in the future, if he will but reflect on them. It will pay to recall these experiences to memory.

For Laying Hens.

A splendid mixture for laying hens is equal parts of cracked corn, wheat and oats, which should be scattered in the litter so that the birds will be compelled to take exercise by scratching for it.

Indigestion

causes heartburn, sour stomach, nervousness, nausea, impure blood, and more trouble than many different kinds of diseases. The food you eat ferments in your stomach, and the poisons it forms are absorbed into your whole system, causing many distressing symptoms. At the first sign of indigestion, try the old, reliable, vegetable liver powder, to quickly cleanse your system from these undesirable poisons.

Mrs. Riley Laramore, of Goodwater, Mo., says: "I suffered for years from dyspepsia and heartburn. Thedford's Black-Draught, in small doses, cured my heartburn in a few days, and now I can eat without distress." Try it.

INGERSOLL'S VISION.

A vision of the future rises:

I see our country filled with happy homes, with firesides of content—the foremost land of all the earth.

I see a world where thrones have crumbled and where kings are dust. The aristocracy of Idleness has perished from the earth.

I see a world without a slave. Man at last is free. Nature's forces have by science been enslaved. Lightning and light, wind and wave, frost and flame, and all the secret, subtle powers of earth and air are the tireless toilers for the human race.

I see a world at peace, adorned with every form of art, with music's myriad voices thrilled, while lips are rich, with words of love and truth—a world in which no exile sighs, no prisoner mourns a world on which the gibbet's shadow does not fall; a world where labor reaps its full reward; where work and worth go hand in hand; where the poor girl trying to win bread with the needle—the needle that has been called "the asp for the breast of the poor"—is not driven to the desperate choice of crime or death, of suicide or shame. I see a world without the beggar's outstretched palm, the miser's heartless, stony stare; the piteous wail of want, the livid lips of lies, the cruel eyes of scorn.

I see a race without disease of flesh or brain—shapely and fair, the married harmony of form and function—and, as I look, life lengthens, joy deepens, love canopies the earth; and over all, in the great dome, shines the eternal star of human hope.

A TRIP TO THE MOUNTAINS OF KENTUCKY.

Leaving Georgetown, went by way of Lexington and Winchester. I arrived at a station in the afternoon in Clark county by the name of Indian Fields. This station is only a short distance from Natural Bridge. I was met at this place by a young man by the name of Swope, and we drove out about two miles to a church by the name of Kildville. I preached that night and again Sunday. This being the first time I ever had an opportunity to see the mountains of Kentucky, and while there I saw a man hauling fodder with a yoke of oxen and while passing a farm house, I saw a gang of peafowls; all of these things being interesting to me.

The mountains of Clark county are quite a sight to one who has never seen a mountain.

I left Clark county on Monday morning, coming back to Lexington. Leaving there for McCreary county, arrived late in the afternoon at a station by the name of Greenwood.

This town took it's name from the green pine timber from which the houses were built.

There is some beautiful country between Lexington and Danville, but after passing Danville the land begins to get rough.

There is some beautiful scenery on the Kentucky river. The cliffs of white rock are quite a sight.

From High Bridge on to Greenwood the road is very rough with many tunnels.

Arriving at Greenwood, I was met at this station by a little mountain girl, who understands the roads and how to drive over them. After driving about five miles around and over the mountains, we came to her home.

I enjoyed this trip as there was so much beautiful scenery on the way. The cliffs and beautiful pine timber was quite a sight to me and on the road we passed Natural Bridge and a place called jump up rock; also the great gulf, which forms an outlet from one pen formed by rocks and cliffs to another on the other side of the mountain. Could look down many feet below into the dark chasm which looked very dangerous to me as we passed over it on the bridge.

Passing through the mountains, we could see real old time houses; just log huts chinked and plastered with mud; just one door and no window.

Just about night I stopped at the home of Mr. Marion Kelth. He has long been a citizen of that county, and can tell many things of interest about the mountains. At his home I was treated with all the kindness that Kentucky people can show.

It was my intention to take another trip over the mountains the next day, but when I awoke the next morning, there was a deep snow on the ground and we had to stay in the house that day. But I enjoyed the day as I got a full history of McCreary county and a review of the civil war, which was interesting to me.

In the afternoon of the next day, we left for a longer trip to gather some relics that I might bring to Boone county. After walking about a mile from the house near some rough cliffs and caves, I noticed some tracks in the snow and I inquired of my guide what they were and found them to be the tracks of a large wild cat and I became scared at the tracks and if I had seen the cat, I don't know but I expect I would have left in a hurry.

Late in the afternoon as we were gathering some holly and mountain huckle berles I could hear the voice of a big owl, which made me think of my boyhood days in Boone county on Gunpowder creek. Now, it being late we started for our lodging place again, being upon a cliff to look at a tall mountain in Wayne county then returning home again.

The next morning I began to make preparation to leave for Boone county. In the afternoon we left, taking another road over the mountain, and this time coming to some rough roads sure enough. I always like to drive horses, but this time the road was too rough for me and as I was afraid I walked and let my guide take care of the horse and vehicle. After getting down to the foot of the mountain, we came to a mining town, known as Indian Head. There we were met by more Kentucky friends. I don't know if I had not met them I might not have stopped. But feeling sure I was safe I stopped for the night and preached at a small mission church to some real mountain people. By the time I got a vision of Kentucky's need.

I left the next day for my home in Boone county with a better knowledge of the state and its needs.

GEORGE N. SMITH.

Why He Was Late.

"What made you so late?"

"I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs.' Sold by J. W. Berkshire & Son and E. E. Kelly.—Adv.

Will Collins, while working in the timber-cutting business, found hid in the hollow of a tree an old-time rifle gun. This was a short distance from where Pierce Patton was killed more than eleven years ago, and it is thought to be the same gun.—Salyersville Mountaineer.

Give Them a Fair Show.

In two Kentucky counties recently railroad companies were indicted by grand juries. In one instance a company was indicted for the failure of its employes to blow the engine whistles. In the other case the indictment was for excessive blowing of whistles. This leads a Central Kentucky paper to remark that no corporation in the world suffers as much from "adverse legislation and general knocking" as does a railroad.

There is a good deal of truth in the assertion. As a matter of fact those who are in the business of operating railroads must find it hard to run the roads to suit the public. One class of patrons inveighs against slow trains while another class protests against trains that are fast. One municipality objects to whistle blowing and drafts an ordinance accordingly. Another insists on well nigh continuous blowing. The railroad companies are harassed by indictments on trivial grounds and they are constantly assailed by damage suits, some of which are utterly without merit. They are looked upon by petty politicians as legitimate prey and they are the target for all sorts of legislation, some of it wise and much of it foolish.

Communities that are without railroads always rejoice at a prospect of getting them. A town withbly a railroad is inevitably a town behind the times. A county without a railroad is virtually "out of the world." All such counties want railroads and some of them give subsidies and make stock subscriptions to secure them—a sensible thing to do, provided the amounts required are not unreasonable. But once a county gets a railroad the "hammering" begins, and is continuous.

The railroads should be given a fair show. The country could not very well get along without them. In essential particulars they are, and should be regulated by law. If held to proper accountability in important things the public should be satisfied and should give small encouragement to legislative hold-ups and petty persecutions.—Courier-Journal.

The Onion Crop.

One of the easiest crops grown in this State and one to which least attention is paid is the onion crop. We know of many farmers and renters who do not raise enough onions to run them through the winter, this is bad farming and bad business system. There are two causes for this neglect, one is the average farmer will not use manures and fertilizers enough upon his garden and another reason is that farmers have never learned the value and importance of a good garden. They need educating along these lines. It takes manures and fertilizers to grow a crop of onions and when these are used connected with a little work light cultivating and keeping the weeds down will certainly grow onions. When you see a farmer come in and buy a half gallon of seed and five cents worth of seed beans after the other fellow has his onions hoed the second time, you can be sure that he is a poor farmer, a poor gardener and a poor man. It takes fifty loads of manure and 1,000 pounds of fertilizer at least every other year to make an acre plot of land a good garden spot. It takes two cultivators per week to grow a good garden and the above will grow onions and the farmer who will do these things will become prosperous and smiling. Place a small feed barn a long side of the garden with a small shed upon the side for the manure and spread it upon the garden before turning it in the fall, plant potato onions in November and yellow Denvers in the spring, store them in the cellar in the yard and market every two weeks in the winter.

The Great Sphinx.

All have read of the Sphinx, an immense and wonderful old stone immage along side the famous pyramids in Egypt. It has long been known that the pyramids were built by the old Pharaohs as seual chers. but the purpose of the Sphynx has not even been guessed till recently. The Sphynx has been the puzzle for ages. But on the Friday of last week, the 11th, a telegram came from Cairo, telling the world that a young man, Geo A. Reisner, born and raised in this city, had made the great discovery, after working twenty years upon it. He has been clearing away the sand heaps that have been driven over it for 60 centuries from the great desert, and burying most of it out of sight, and excavating the immage, until he has penetrated the interior thru the neck, and has found that the interior is a vast temple 120 feet long, and wide and high, in proportion, cut out of the solid rock, perhaps by the ancient Hebrews, and probably for a burial place for the king who oppressed them, in the days of Moses. There will no doubt be many great and important discoveries made within the temple now that it is laid open, and the world will be anxlously awaiting them. Mr. Reisner has been a student of Egyptology for many years, having got a taste for the study at Harvard University and at the University of Berlin. He has been employed in the work by Queen Victoria of England, then by Mrs. Leland Sandford and last by Mrs. Phoeba A. Hearst of California. These ladies have done the world a great service in supplying Mr. Reisner with means to carry on this work of exploration for so many years, and it is a matter of great pride to Indiana that one of our citizens has made the great enterprise so grand a success.—Indiana Farmer.

SEASON 1913

I wish to call the attention of the breeders of High Class Saddle and Harness Horses of Northern Kentucky in regard to

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS.

2844 A. S. B. A.

Bracken Chief (2148)
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Mambrino Le Grande 99

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1,200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet,

By BRACKEN CHIEF 2148

by Harriron Chief 1606 by Clark Chief (89), dam, Kit Hardy (2880) by Indian Chief 1718).

Idam Miss Berry 4084 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99) 2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112. 3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor)

Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Ky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS is also the sire of the champion walk-trot gelding Mat Coyne showed at the Horse Shows in the fall of 1908 and sold for $3,600, and also the champion harness mare shown by C. C. Harris.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last two years, and they have proven to be the best in the state. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all thru the state and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the state and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair when they were showing for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of mares shown like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where there were a hundred colts shown.

The greatest Show, Harness and Saddle Horses of our State have sprung from the loins of Harrison Chief and Indian Chief. Where can you find a horse of better breeding than Bell's Fitzsimmons? He has been a winning show horse ever since he was a suckling colt, and has proven himself a successful sire. Some of the highest price Saddle, Harness and Walk-trot horses that have left the State have been sired by him.

Now is the time for breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief's and his sons and grand-sons are still breedling on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzstmmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the state today.

Personal care given all stock, but not responsible shonld any accident occur. Mares left on grass at $2.50 per month.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. T. Best's stable, Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

BEST & RENSLER, Owners,
Walton, Kentucky.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

The Fine High Bred Percheron Stallion,

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1913 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs., and is 17½ hands in height. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

PRINCE OLSEN was sired by Blackjon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., where he was foaled in 1907, and from whom he was purchased by me in 1911, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olson was a high bred registered Percheron mare. I feel that farmers and breeders will make no mistake in breeding to Prince Olsen as it means a good, strong colt that will meet every requirement on the farm. One of the lacking features of our horses is the size and strength. With the well bred Percheron like Prince Olsen these essentials are fully incorporated.

Come and see the horse and inspect his good points and you will breed to him.

Two Fine Young Jacks,

Ben and Dewey.

BEN is a black jack with mealy points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ears, and has proven himself to be one of the best jacks in Kentucky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. Service fee $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine jack, five years old, and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Take a look at them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

"Pittsburgh Perfect" Fence

Why the Electric Weld is the Most Effective Fence-Joint made

Electrically welding joints eliminates innumerable exposed wire ends, and does away with sharply and tightly bending one wire against another, which cracks the galvanizing. The Electric Weld makes every ounce of wire count for strength and durability—no wasted wire, no useless weight dragging down the fence. Electricity is the only medium which truly amalgamates metals—makes two wires one. As we use it, the galvanizing is piled around the joints, producing a one-piece fabric with absolutely dependable joints. Electrically Welded fence-joints (patented) are used only in "Pittsburgh Perfect."

CODLING MOTH.

Of all the insects that infest and prey upon the apple none is causing greater loss and damage than the codling moth, more familiarly known as the "apple worm." The actual loss sustained by Kentucky fruit growers is hardly appreciated, as most of the wormy fruit drops off prematurely, and is not observed, but it is safe to say that over fifty per cent of all the apples raised in the state are infested with the larvae of the codling moth.

The mature insect belongs to a class of insects commonly known as millers. The moth is grayish brown in appearance and usually flies at night about the time the young fruits are forming. The female deposits her eggs singly at the calyx end of the fruit and on the nearby leaves and branches. The individual egg upon the leaf or fruit looks very much like a small white blister and is smaller than the head of a pin. The number of eggs laid by a single female ranges from sixty to seventy. The eggs hatch in from five to ten days after they are laid. As soon as the worm hatches it crawls to the nearest apple and usually eats its way in through the calyx or blossom end. After remaining in the apple from 20 to 25 days the worm eats its way out through the side of the apple and builds a cocoon under a loose strip of bark or crevice in the trunk.

In order to control this insect it is best to spray just after the blossoms drop and before the calyx cup closes. If the spraying is put off, the calyx cup closes and it becomes impossible to deposit any poison within it. The calyx cup remains open from seven to ten days after the blossome fall and the spray may be applied during this time. An effort should be made to spray immediately after the petals falls and not wait, as bad weather may srawls to the nearest apple and on.

Arsenate of lead and Paris green are practically the only poisons used in controlling the codling moth. Arsenate of lead is safer to use because of its superior adhesiveness and because it is not liable to burn the foliage. To get the best results one should use three pounds of arsenate of lead to fifty gallons of water. Paris green should be used at the rate of five to eight ounces to fifty gallons of water. Where the poisons are used alone two pounds of lime should be added in order to avoid danger of burning the foliage. Paris green or arsenate of lead should preferably be mixed with lime sulfur or with Bordeaux and so applied. If this is done it will save an extra spraying that is necessary in order to keep fungus diseases such as apple scab, bitter rot, etc., in control.

To get the best results it may be necessary to make a second application from ten days to two weeks later and for the second brood from the middle of July to the first of August. These sprayings are important.

Care should be taken to cover the tree in a thorough manner. Try to place a particle of the poisoned spray in the open calyx cup of every apple. To prevent further appearance of the codling moth fallen fruits should be destroyed, either by gathering or by allowing hogs to run in the orchard. Detailed information will be furnished free by the Extension Division of Experiment Station. Correspondence is invited.

Mary Belle Adams.

Miss Mary Belle Adams, daughter of Robert Adams, and Namie Francis Clements Adams, born near Hathaway, Boone county Kentucky, November 21th, 1890; died at home, near Sherman, in Grant county, Kentucky, on Saturday evening, March 22d, 1913, at 8 o'clock, aged 52 years, three months and 23 days. One of 12 children, two of whom preceded her in death. Survived by seven brothers, O. W., H. O, Byron A., Lee A., B. D., Ira D, and C. C. Adams, and two sisters, Mrs. Laura A. Rogers, wife of J. W. Rogers, and Mrs. Nannie A. Stephens, wife of Harry Stephens, all of whom followed the remains to the last resting place, except the last named sister, who was detained at home by serious illness, her children all being at the funeral.

Deceased was sick only five days, her death being caused by a form of bronchitis, bordering on pneumonia, hastened by the excitement, and conditions incident to the grave illness of her mother, who all the while, and still, suffers on a bed of sickness, unable to sit up, half unconscious, the result of a partial paralysis. After a brief funeral service at home, on Tuesday, March 25, conducted by the Rev. D. H. Starns, in the presence of the family, and sympathizing friends and neighbors, the remains were born to the Big Bone Baptist church, in Boone county, and after appropriate services, conducted by Rev. Wm. McMillan, consisting of song, scriptural reading, prayer and consoling words of comfort, the remains were deposited in the cemetery near by.

THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

How A Boone County Lady Escaped From The Flood at Dayton.

I will try to give my friends a brief account of the experience of my uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Calnan, and myself in the flood at Dayton, Ohio. At 5:30 a. m., Tuesday, March 25, we were awakened by the distress signals but did not know what they meant, but soon saw the water appearing on the streets and people running towards the river. We were told the levee had broken and by six o'clock the water was coming in torrents, and we were told to go to the second floor but not to be frightened. Grabbing our clothes we obeyed, and by this time water was several inches deep on the first floor. My uncle and Mr. Bardes, who lived in the house with us, had gone out to work, but managed to get back to the house about noon, by which time the gas was turned off and it begun to get cold, the water continuing to get higher and swifter and brought many things against our house. We caught baskets which we broke up and put in a bucket making a small fire over which we were able to make some coffee which we used with a bite of bread occasionally. By 6:30 p. m., the water was within an inch of the second floor, and we saw houses with people in them floating past. The people were calling for help but no one could go to their rescue and I suppose they were drowned. The people living next to us occupied a brick house and they had us come there as our house was expected to go every minute. We made the trip to our neighbors by walking on drift and holding to a small rope connecting the two buildings. We measured the water every minute, and by the next morning it had fallen a little. We prayed all night and could not help thinking that we would be seved. We had to use matches for light to measure the water by. A fire broke out in town Wednesday and there was an explosion that threw sparks in every direction. The fire furnished us our only light. Thursday it snowed hard and was colder and we came near freezing. It was that day we were rescued, being taken to a church where we registered and remained until my uncle and the others were brought from the house. By invitation we went to Dayton View where we were made comfortable. Saturday we concluded to go to Cincinnati, and was looking around when we met my uncle, Wm. Wilson, of Covington, and my father, Mr. Geo. Rice, who had been searching for us since Thursday. This was a joyful meeting. We walked five miles to get a train to Cincimati. Of course there were many worse things than we saw. We trusted all the time in the dear Lord and he brought us through safe. I extend thanks to all my Walton friends, in Walton, who were so nice to my family and to me, and hope none of them will have an experience like mine.

The rains last week destroyed nearly all the tobacco plant beds that had been sowed in this county, which will go a long ways towards reducing the acreage of tobacco pitched in Boone as a resowing of the beds will produce plants for a late setting, a fact that will cause many of the growers to abandon the crop for this season.

J. S. Walrath, of Grant, this county, requested the U. S. Mail authorities at Cincinnati to forward the mail for that office by the way of Burlington during the flood in the Ohio river, and the request was readily granted. Mr. Walrath is an enterprising and resourceful citizen who is an advantage to any community in which he resides. The fact of the business is Grant ought to receive its mail by the way of Burlington all the time.

Dodging the High Water.

Last Saturday at noon an elderly gentleman and his wife stopped at W. A. Gaines' out on the Petersburg pike. They were walking from Aurora to Burlington to get a conveyance to Cincinnati, desiring to reach their home from over in Indiana, where they were visiting when the flood cut off communication with their home. Mr. Gaines gave them their dinner and then brought them on to Burlington in his buggy.

High Price for Cows.

Despite the disagreeable weather about five hundred people attended F. S. Poilitt's sale at Crittenden, Grant county, on Thursday of last week. The interest centered chiefly in the fine herd of thirty-eight high grade Jersey cows. Other things sold low enough, but the cows brought very high prices. One cow sold for $101; another for $99; and another for $90.50, and several others for more than $80. The average price for the entire herd was about $70. The sale bill amounted to over $4,000.

Escaped The Flood.

C. C. Adams, of Williamstown, writes the Recorder under date of March 31st, "I have just returned from Dayton, where I found the water had reached five feet above the second floor of my sister, Laura A. Adams' house, filling it of course with mud, and seriously depreciating if not ruining all its contents. The other buidlings and their contents were washed away. My sister and her husband, J. W. Rogers, at the time were at my father's at the bedside of my mother and sister, and hence escaped with their lives in that manner."

No More Punctures.

Dr. Wallace Tanner and Robt. Rouse, of Florence, were in Burlington, last Saturday afternoon, demonstrating a preparation they have invented for the repairing of automobiles tires. The preod automobile tires. The preparation is put in the inner tube and the instant a nail pierces the tube the preparation, having an affinity for metal, collects around the nail and prevents the air from escaping, and if the nail is withdrawn the puncture is repaired instantly by the preparation which is named Fribro. If Fribro makes good the claims of Messrs. Tanner and Rouse, they will have something worth a fortune to them, and they say there is no doubt about it doing so as they have given it a thorough try out.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Rescued From the Dayton Flood.

Mr. Boogler and his sister were guests at the Boone House last Monday night. Mr. Boogler resides just above Rising Sun, Indiana, and was returning from Dayton, Ohio, with his sister, who had a narrow escape from death in the flood that devastated that city last week. Her house was surrounded by the raging waters and the water was several feet deep in her home when she was rescued. She was rescued the second time and suffered severely from cold and hunger. The lady gives a vivid description of the terrible scenes which she with thousands of others were compelled to witness, and is of the opinion that the number of those who lost their lives in the flood is greater than the present estimate. It took Mr. Boogle some time to locate his sister after he reached Dayton, his search being very much impeded by the strict rules that it was found necessary to enforce in the flooded district. He was required to have numerous passes in order to go from place to place in the town. He left Dayton as soon as possible after finding his sister.

SPECIAL NOTICE

To My Friends and Patrons and The Public at Large.

I have perfected a system for repairing Buggies and Vehicles of all kinds whereby the work is better than ever, wearing longer, holding the luster just twice as long as the usual way of repairing. Another great advantage whereby it is far ahead of the old way is that I use no water on any part of the body or gear until the job is in the last coat of rubbing varnish, and by that time I have all parts of the body well protected, where in doing work the old way we rub with a rubbing stone out of water, called Filler, thereby letting the water get between the pannel of the body and the sill, loosening the plugs, rusting the screws and causing plugs to come out. That is why your pannels break in corners and come loose—water gets in and destroys the glue, letting the water stand there by rotting the wood.

Recollect I have been in the Carriage Business for 35 years, and have made it a life study. I have been working on my Dry System for the last four years and now have it perfected. While there is more work attached to my system and material is more in cost, my price for a Buggy still remains the same—$12.00 for a first-class job of painting and guaranteed to be such. If you want something cheaper in painting I will do it for you but at you risk.

Kelly Rubber Tires.

I have just bought a full supply of the Kelly Springfield Rubber Tires and am prepared to supply your wants at a moment's notice. I have 3,000 pounds now ready to put on while you wait for them at prices to suit everybody that wants a high-grade tire for just the same money they pay other people for a cheap grade. Of course you know I am prepared to do anything for you in the carriage maker's line. Come and see me and get prices and I'll assure you you will go home convinced you have been treated alright.

N. B.—I guarantee the Kelly Tire to be first quality—not second or third grade, and wear twice as long as anyother make of tire.

Yours respectfully,
H. G. COLLINS,
Erlanger, Ky.

NOTICE—I will deliver fruit trees at Burlington next Monday, court day, and will also have some good apple, peach, pear and cherry trees, now sold at very reasonable prices. Don't fail to see them. B. T. Kelly

JUDGE JOHN J. HOWE

A CANDIDATE FOR COMMONWEALTH'S ATTORNEY IN THIS JUDICIAL DISTRICT.

Heretofore there has been a suggestion that the nomination for Commonwealth's Attorney in the Fifteenth Judicial District would be awarded without a struggle. The force of that suggestion vanished when John J. Howe, of Carroll county, announced his candidacy. Were we called upon to epitomize Judge Howe's qualifications, we would do so in two words—

CLEAN AND COMPETENT.

John Junior Howe was born in Carrollton, Ky., Nov. 5, 1879. He attended the Carrollton public schools, and was graduated from the Carrollton high school in 1896. Being a Methodist, he selected Kentucky Wesleyan College for his classical education and in 1900 was graduated, receiving the A. B. degree, and in 1903 receiving the degree of Master of Arts. Owing to family financial reverses, it was necessary for him to defray his own expenses and make many sacrifices. Such was his thirst for learning and so great was his ambition, to be as well equipped as the best, he attended the Law School of the University of Michigan, from which he was graduated in 1909, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

OF LEGAL LINEAGE.

He comes of a "lawyer family," being a grandson of "old man Billie" Winslow, years ago the leading lawyer of the district, and having four uncles who are lawyers and his only brother being a lawyer. After receiving the academic degree, he read law in the offices of Winslow & Winslow in Carrollton. He was called to the bar in the Carroll Circuit Court September 20, 1901, during the incumbency of Hon. John M. Lassing as Circuit Judge. In 1903 he formed a partnership with George B. Winslow, president of the Carrollton National Bank, and is junior member of the firm of Winslow & Howe, general practitioners. The firm, through its predecessors, is one of the oldest established in Northern Kentucky and is equipped with what is said to be one of the finest and most modern country law-libraries in the State.

AN IRISH DEMOCRAT.

Following the footsteps of an Irish father and grandfather, he became an enthusiastic, hard-working Democrat in his early teens, and November 5, 1900, celebrated his arrival at majority by casting his first vote for William Jennings Bryan for President. For years he has been a vigorous campaigner and an active party servant, and as an election officer has always fought gallantly for his party at the polls. Although a busy bee in Democracy's hive, he has never held a party office and has never asked for any. He has never held an elective civil office nor has he ever been a candidate for any, notwithstanding that he has been repeatedly importuned to run for various offices. His aim seems to have been to do everything for his party rather than to have his party do anything for him. He has ever asked for work never for position.

A PARTY WORKER.

Before reaching his majority he became an active member of the [illegible] Men's Democratic Club of Carrollton, and he has been identified with it ever since. Several years while attending the University, he became a staunch worker and member of the [illegible] Democratic Movement, an organization formed to [illegible] College and University [illegible] and statesmanship.

Since then the scope of its influence has been widened and all young men throughout the country are eligible. During the last campaign the State Committee had the assistance of the Kentucky Young Men's Democratic organization. Judge Howe was chairman for the Sixth Congressional District, and did yoeman's service in starting first voters' clubs throughout the district, which doubtless augmented the tremendous majority in the Sixth.

Being a power on the stump, his services have been sought in every campaign to preach the gospel of Democracy. He has never refused, but has freely given his time and money to going upon the hustings. His style on the platform is attractive, for he pleasantly combines the argumentative and persuasive, reaching both heads and hearts of his listeners in an entertaining manner.

TREASURER OF CARROLLTON.

Judge Howe has held two appointive municipal offices, to-wit, treasurer of Carrollton and judge of the Carrollton police court. In December, 1909, he was by the Board of Council put in charge of the city's finances. Altho none of his predecessors had been making regular reports and some none at all, Mr. Howe made detailed reports of every fund, every month, and his annual financial exhibits of the city for the years 1910 and 1911, as published by the Carrollton press and mailed to every citizen, were the most complete and comprehensive statements of conditions of municipal affairs ever given the voters of Carrollton. He took pride in this work to the point of making it a hobby, and gave his time and attention to city business to a degree far in excess of his meagre "salary." The amount of city taxes collected by him during the years 1910 and 1911 was a greater percentage of the total levies than the best record ever made before or since.

JUDGE OF CITY COURT.

In December, 1911, the then judge of the Carrollton police court died. The Board of Council unanimously appointed Judge Howe to fill the unexpired term, and the Mayor requested him to inject a reformation in the finances of the judicial department like he had in the executive and legislative departments of the city's government. To what degree Judge Howe accomplished this may be realized when the financial reports of the city are examined. The annual report for 1911 shows the receipts from the police court for that year to have been $91.00, whereas the annual report for 1912 shows the receipts from the police court for the first twelve months of Judge Howe's incumbency to have been $325.85.

HEARS VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

The success achieved by him in his municipal duties and the satisfaction with which his work has been received, coupled with a general expression of the desire of the voters throughout the district themselves to select their Commonwealth's Attorney, caused Judge Howe to consent to announce as a candidate for the nomination. Even then he was persuaded to do so only in the interest of good government. Although he has in the past done valiant service for friends and champions in fights for office, he has never "gone after" anything for himself; and his many friends seeing him often plugging away tenaciously for others, have been tempted to ask, as did Longfellow's Priscilla: "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" John's answer has been that his ambition is solely for the law. In fact, he is much like the Psalmists "man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly," in that "his delight is in the law * * * and in the law doth he meditate day and night." He has always had an aversion to being considered a mere politician or a chronic office seeker. Up to this time he has strictly adhered to the view that "the post of honor is the private station," but now considers it his conscientious duty to accede to the urgent demands made in the name of higher standards and civic righteousness, for a prosecutor unallied, yet panoplied and environed to prosecute infractions of the law without fear or favor, whether it involve the high, the low, the rich the poor.

HAS HIGH IDEALS.

Born in a home of culture and reared in an atmosphere of righteousness, it is only natural that one whose training has been so thorough should possess high ideals. Imbued as he is with mental concepts of his own, he has consistently refused to wear the yoke of any man, and with a becoming independence and unfaltering courage has asserted himself with the stamina of an intellectual gentleman. As a scholar of literature, philosophy and history and as a student of men, affairs and law, he has sought his own self-improvement and the improvement of the race. His temperment is therefore especially fitted to prosecute without innumanity, yet with rigidity.

A FRATERNALIST.

Judge Howe was a member of the Kappa Sigma Greek letter fraternity at college and is still prominent in the councils of its alumni. He belongs to the Masonic Lodge and chapter and is well known to their grand bodies. It is probably as a Knight of Pythias that the light of his fraternal lamp has shone so brightly. He was formerly district deputy of this Pythian district. For years he has served as Chief Tribune of the Grand Tribunal, the court of appeals of the order. For five years he has been editor-in-chief of the Kentucky Pythian, the official organ of the Grand Lodge, and as such his pen has become a clarion in the Pythian world.

FRIENDS PRESAGE VICTORY.

He is ever on the alert to do "noble things" and his heart and hand have gone out to suffering humanity. No wonder there are hosts of friends who recognize his ability, appreciate the character, and are charmed with the personality of this man. Nor is it surprising that these friends assure Judge Howe of victory in the August primary. L. F. H. in Carrollton Democrat.

HANGER FOR ALL BARN TOOLS

Notches Cut in Board Afford Convenient and Safe Place for All Kinds of Implements.

Means should be provided to have a place for all tools used in and about a barn. The forks and shovels are usually stood up in a corner, but they can be more conveniently taken care of by making a hanger for them. The illustration, from Popular Mechanics, shows how a hanger can be easily made and screwed to the wall of a barn.

The hanger is cut from a piece of board and has a hole bored into it the size of the handle on the fork or shovel, then a notch is sawed into the hole to pass the handle through. The board may contain one or as many notches as there are forks and shovels to be hung on it. The implements are hung with the fork or shovel end upward.

Buckwheat Crops.

No other crop will bring in better return in the northern states for the time it occupies the ground than buckwheat. It is put in after the other crops have been planted and are growing. It is the best grain to raise to subdue a patch of troublesome weeds and to starve out worms in the soil. It comes handy to sow on vacant pieces of ground which have been left because too late to be sown to some other crop. It is a valuable crop to plow under to enrich the soil and give humus.

Wheat Fertilizer.

Phosphoric acid and potash gave a greater profit per $1 invested in fertilizer than complete fertilizer on both corn and wheat in some Indiana experiments on clay and loam soils. Fertilizer gave a greater average profit per acre on wheat than on corn, and was profitable in a much larger percentage of the experiments.

Seed Potatoes.

In 13 comparisons on the Minnesota station farm new seed, from outside sources, gave an average increased yield of 125 bushels of potatoes to the acre more than seed from varieties continuously grown on the farm for three to twelve years.

FIVE CENT MEAL SOLVED PROBLEM

It Helped Reduce Expenses of Domestic Science Course.

ATTENDANCE 100 PER CENT.

Colored High School of Owensboro Among the First to Offer Full Four Year Instruction in Household Arts. Every Girl Pupil and Several Boys Now Enrolled.

Three years ago, when very few high schools in Kentucky were offering a course in domestic science, the Colored High school at Owensboro made a beginning. The board of education there at that time, like many others in the state, was hampered by a lack of funds. The board also had before it the experience of other schools where the expense account of the domestic science course had proved quite a burden. It was a difficult problem, but the faculty of the high school felt that the work could be put upon a basis that would make it almost self sustaining.

Today the Colored High school of Owensboro has a four year course in domestic science and will graduate seven girls that have taken this full course. During these four years only three girls have failed to take the course, and this year 100 per cent of the girls in the high school take domestic science. Besides these girls, it might be well to add that there are eight boys enrolled in the classes, so that the figures should really read 100 per cent plus.

A five cent dinner and lunch counter handled by the domestic science department have made this splendid work possible. The cost of material in both cooking and sewing classes has been met each year by the board of education paying a deficit of about $5 a month.

The preparation of this five cent dinner would seem to be a definite loss in some of the technical training, but it appears otherwise when one visits the school.

It appears to be of absolute value in the general training, as the girls are used in small relays, so that each girl in the school comes to this special work once a week. The class book, which is carefully kept, shows exactly the work the pupil has done each time she has been on duty for a dinner and luncheon.

If she has made biscuit and afterward cleaned the stove this week the next she will probably prepare a salad and clean the refrigerator. In the course of the school year she will have covered a certain definite amount of practical housekeeping work. There is the added value that she has prepared this food in quantities sufficient for an ordinary family, and not in laboratory quantities.

It might be urged that a high school is not a vocational school, and that our schools are not preparing girls for lunch room service. This is all true, but the greatest indictment brought against our schools today is that they do not give our boys and girls a grip on live, real, everyday things. The work in this school seems to give this and at the same time helps to sustain itself while giving all the pupils something that is wholesome to eat at a remarkably low price.

There are high schools all over the country that cannot afford domestic science. There are many others where the girls are doing laboratory domestic science, and a large percentage of the pupils go to the corner grocery or a cheap confectionery for their noon luncheon.

The value as well as the economy of serving the children with an appetising, inexpensive meal, scientifically prepared, is obvious. Their health is conserved and a practical course in domestic science is made possible.

Is it not possible to gain both things at the same time by a carefully prepared course of study?

It certainly is worth thinking about, for people everywhere are looking to the school for more real every day efficiency.

Don't Get Into a Rut.

A rut in the road is bad enough, but a rut in your life work is infinitely worse. Get out of the rut and come to Louisville April 30, May 1, 2 and 3, to the forty-second annual meeting of the Kentucky Educational association.

It'll do you good to meet new faces and see some of the old ones again. It'll do you good to see and know that Kentucky is thoroughly alive educationally. It'll do you good to see over 5,000 people together who are interested in education.

If never there, you ought to go.
If ever there, you'd want to go.

MANURE FOR CABBAGE

Deep, Rich, Mellow Soil Is of Importance.

Winter Variety Is Mostly Grown on Early Potato Ground—Hotbeds Are Prepared in February and Seed Sown in Frames.

Cabbage likes a deep, rich, mellow soil. For summer cabbage, a mellow, sand loam will bring the earliest crop. The early June cabbage that is shipped to the Baltimore markets is mostly grown on the deep river bottom lands of the lower portion of Baltimore county, says the Baltimore American. A large portion of this cabbage is grown from night soil which, after fermentation, is sprinkled along the rows, just before the plants are set in the fall. If this fertilizer is thoroughly mixed through the soil it is said not to injure the quality of the cabbage. For the fall and winter cabbage crop, plant on deep, mellow, red clay soil. As the value of the cabbage is in large solid heads, the best fertilizer to use is that of rotted manure from grain-fed horses and cattle, with the addition of 1,000 pounds of high grade vegetable guano sown to the acre and well harrowed in before planting. Winter cabbage is mostly grown on early potato ground. This land, being heavily dressed with fertilizer for the potato crop—not more than 600 to 800 pounds of fertilizer will be needed for each acre planted. The fertilizer is nearly always sown in the drill. The drill rows are then covered in and the ridges rolled. Large growers now use the planter; the machine sets and waters each plant, very few plants fail to grow. Plants set by machine are better firmed in the ground than plants set by hand. The old method of starting early plants in the fall and wintering them in a cold frame has now been abandoned in favor of sowing the seed in a hotbed. The hotbeds are prepared in February and the seed sown in the frames by the middle of the month. When the plants are two inches in height they are transplanted into cold frames. The plants are given abundance of air in the middle of the day, but well protected by glass and thick straw mats when the weather is cold and stormy. In the New England states early plants are raised in hot houses heated by hot water. Expert gardeners grow large quantities of early and late cabbage for their retail trade. Truckers grow for the wholesale markets. Their principal crops are kale, spinach, tomatoes, corn and eggplants.
